

"What You Find Beneath the Service"

"Outside Appearance May Be Deceptive"

"THE MILBURN WAY"

The prime essential of a good wagon is Timber, and the prime essential of good wagon timber is Correct Seasoning.

The Milburn Wagon bears evidence on the surface of skillful workmanship and good material, culminating in a beautifully finished wagon, HOWEVER, you should have MORE conclusive EVIDENCE than this, you should KNOW of the painstaking selection of the MATERIAL of its scientific SEASONING and AGING, its careful TREATMENT before it goes to fulfill its proper place in a finished wagon.

It is SERVICE that COUNTS. SERVICE to the WAGON USER has proven the wisdom of the "MILBURN WAY" of SEASONING wagon timber.

Let us show you what you find "Beneath the Surface"

CAMDEN, - S. C.

Editor Couldn't Read.

An editor was sitting in his office one day when a man entered whose brow was clouded with thunder. Fiercely seizing a chair, he slammed his hat on the table, hurled his umbrella on the floor and sat down.

"Are you the editor?" he asked.

"Yes."

"Can you read writing?"

"Of course."

"Read that, then," he said, thrusting at the editor an envelope with an inscription on it.

"B"—said the editor, trying to spell it.

"That's not a 'B'; it's an 'S'."

"S?" Oh, yes, I see. Well, it looks like 'Soles for Dinner,' or 'Souls for Sinners,'" said the editor.

"No, sir," replied the man; "nothing of the sort. That's my name—Samuel Bruner. I knew you couldn't read I called to see about that poem of mine you printed the other day entitled 'The Surcease of Sorrow.'"

"I don't remember it," said the editor.

"Of course you don't, because it went into the paper the villainous title of 'Smearcase Tomorrow.'"

"A blunder of the compositor, I suppose."

"Yes, sir; and that is what I am here to see you about. The way in which that poem was mutilated was simply scandalous. I haven't slept a night since. It exposed me to derision. People think me a fool. (The editor coughed.) Let me show you. This first line, when I wrote it, read in this way: 'Lying by a weeping willow, underneath a gentle slope.' That is beautiful and poetic. Now, how did your vile sheet represent it to the public? 'Lying to a weeping willow, induced her to elope.' 'Weeping willow, mind you? Widow! Oh, thunder and lightning! This is too much!'"

"It's hard, sir—very hard," said the editor.

"Then take the fifth verse. In the original manuscript it said, plain as daylight, 'Take away the jingling money; it is only glittering dross.' In its printed form you make me say, 'Take away the tingling honey; put some flies in it for the boss.' By George! you fire shovels! But, oh, look at the sixth verse. I wrote 'I'm weary of the tossing of the ocean as it heaves.' When I opened your paper and saw the lines transformed into 'I'm wearing out my trousers till they're open at the knees,' I thought that was taking it an inch too far. I fancy I have a right to murder that compositor. Where is he?"

"He is out just now," said the editor. "Come in tomorrow."

"I will," said the poet, "and I will come armed."—Tita-Bits.

"SWAT THE FLY."

Camden Post Describes Columbia's Vagabonds.

The following article is prompted by the writer's personal experience and that of several of his friends while on visits to Columbia during the base ball season, meetings of Confederate Veterans and other gatherings:

This expression is heard and read daily and applies to that common nuisance, the ordinary house fly.

It's good advice and should be followed. There are however, many kinds of flies, viz: the horse fly, cow fly, sand fly, house fly, blue fly, often called blow fly, also the butterfly and many other kinds of flies, too numerous to mention. The writer will add to the above list the "Bar Fly." In days gone by, days prior to the establishment of that grand institution, "The Dispensary," the bar fly was commonly found, in one, two and three and sometimes in droves, hovering around the mahogany or marble topped counters of the numerous bars or bar-rooms.

They were a great nuisance and really more expensive to the patrons of the various bars than the house fly.

When the dispensary was established, the writer and many others thought this "Bar Fly" was doomed. But not so, for since the clubs of cities, hotels of certain order, summer resorts as well as winter resorts have carried the necessary drinks for the accommodation of their guests, this common, loathsome, annoying, distressing nuisance "the Bar fly," has grown and flourished. Any one who doubts this can easily satisfy themselves by "bracing the counter" in any club in the "city" and be convinced. They not only come in ones and twos, but take the trouble to introduce all of their friends.

The "Bar fly" flourishes in winter and summer, from Southern Pines to South Florida, and I have reason to believe they do well from Southern Pines to Maine, as well as from New York to San Francisco.

What shall we do with them? Swat them? If so, with what shall we swat them? Will some one in Columbia suggest a method of getting rid of this pest?

The Barfly's a curious creature And often its dressed like a dude. It's fond of conversing with strangers And always avoids being rude; It will deceive the most skeptical sucker Until he is on to their game, And then he consoles himself thereby,

I deserve it, for I was to blame. When you order a drink o'er the counter, It'll ease up right close "do you mind," And not only force himself on you, But several of his loathsome kind He'll split and he'll take a whole bottle, Or a drink of straight Rye or Corn.

He's the most contemptible dead beat I swear! that ever was born. He'll hang on with patience and courage He'll advise and direct and explain, He'll stay by you hourly, yes daily And drink with you again and again He'll bring up his Bar-fly relatives And introduce each by his name, "But take it from me," my dear reader They're Bar-flies like him just the same.

To shake him is out of the question There's no way to drop him at all He'll hold you in parlying over Just how the Corners play ball; He'll talk and gesticulate wildly And before you have half time to think— He'll suggest that perhaps you've forgotten To pay for the last round of drinks.

There are many who'll vouch for this story, Although it is written in rhyme Have you ever heard one of those Bar-flies say: "Have drinks on me boys this time."

What to do with these dirty vipers I can hardly say just what— Shall we all join our forces together And give just one great big Swat?

A moving picture of Jerry Moore at work on his prize acre at his home near Winona, in Florence county, will be shown to several million people in the United States, and incidentally South Carolina, will receive some beneficial advertising as to the agricultural possibilities of the State.

His Tombstone Ready.

A tombstone has been erected in the city cemetery the like of which has probably never been equaled in these parts before. Mr. W. J. Copeland, who lives now a few miles from the city, has had a monument erected with a life sized reproduction of himself chiseled out of the marble. The figure looks exactly like Mr. Copeland does today, every little article of clothing or ornament which he now wears, being faithfully reproduced in the marble. The monument was erected a short time ago and has attracted the attention of a large number of people. Although Mr. Copeland is now not classed as a young man, being seventy and some years old, he still has many more years before him.—Laurens Advertiser.

The attention of all tax payers is called to the notice from Treasurer McCaskill in this issue of The Chronicle. All able bodied male persons between the ages of 21 and 65 years are liable to a road tax of two dollars which must be paid when they pay the State and county taxes for the present year.

It's easy for any girl to get married; the hard thing for her is to get the happiness out of it.

CITATION.

State of South Carolina, County of Kershaw, By W. L. McDowell, Esquire, Probate Judge.

Whereas, Mrs. Mary D. Mickie made suit to me to grant her Letters of Administration of the Estate of and effects of John Belton Mickie,

These are therefore to cite and admonish all and singular the kindred and creditors of the said John Belton Mickie, deceased, that they be and appear before me, in the Court of Probate, to be held at Camden, S. C., on Oct. 4th next, after publication thereof, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any they have, why the said Administration should not be granted.

Given under my hand, this 18th day of September, A. D. 1911. W. L. McDowell,

Judge of Probate for Kershaw Co. Published in The Camden Chronicle on the 22nd day of September, 1911.
