POPULAR COUPLE WED.
Quiet Marriage Solemnized at Baptist Parsonage Last Evening.

A marriage of interest to Camden people and elsewhere was that of Mr. F. Rivers Alexander to Miss Belle Osteen which occurred at the Baptist parsonage last evening at 9:00 o'clock. Rev. M. L. Lawson performing the ceremony. The marriage came as a complete surprise to their friends—only a few members of the immediate families being present. The young couple are two of Camden's most popular young people, and number their friends by their acquaintances, all of whom wish for them a long life of joy and happiness. Mr. and Mrs. Alexander will be at home to their friends at Mr. Alexander's handsome home on Monumental Square.

Story Refreshingly New.
A notable feature of Charles Klein's "The Lion and the Mouse," which the United Play Co. brings to the opera house, on Thursday, Feb. 29, is the wholesome and distinct drawing of the various characters in the story.

There cannot be found in the play a villain; a frivolous matron, a wayward girl nor an adventurous. Nowadays it is a rare occurrence to visit the theatre without having to hear the dolings and misdoings of one or more such characters on the stage. Mr. Klein has displayed a keen knowledge of what is most desired by the public today. The cleanliness of "The Lion and the Mouse" has been a huge factor in the remarkable success enjoyed by this interesting and well told story of certain phases of America's money world.

Death of Mrs. Spears.
Mrs. Spears, mother of Mr. J. M. Spears, of DeKalb, died at the home of Mr. J. M. Spears, on the 19th inst. Mrs. Spears was the wife of Mr. Benj. Spears, who was a survivor of two wars—the Mexican and Civil—and who was awarded a silver medal by the United States government for faithful service rendered in the Mexican war, and which the family now has. Deceased leaves surviving her three sons—Messrs. J. M., Alex and Lewis Spears, besides a large number of other relatives to whom we extend our sympathy.

For Rent.

W. Bratton deLoache represented J. C. Langford in the case of the State vs. Langford at Hampton on Thursday. Mr. Langford was the former treasurer of Hampton county and it is alleged had a shortage of $20,000.

Fire this morning destroyed the stable of Dick Woods, a negro who lives just above the passenger station. The fire had been burning for sometime before an alarm was sent in. When the department reached the scene it was too late to do any good.

Camden was visited by a high wind on Wednesday night, which almost amounted to a cyclone. The wind blew at the rate of forty or fifty miles an hour. A few trees were blown down, but very little damage was done. Weider's Carnival, holding forth near the Southern depot, was put out of commission for the night—the high wind blowing down the tents.

Colored Couple Marry.

Funny little things happen occasionally in the life of a newspaper reporter which serve to break the monotony of his strenuous quest for news.

One of these incidents occurred yesterday morning at the office of the Judge of Probate at the court house. A colored couple dropped in there for a license, to commit matrimony just about the time the reporter also happened along, and had the pleasure of witnessing the very impressive marriage ceremony as performed by Judge W. L. McDowell. He and the other witnesses also much enjoyed the aftermath. After tying up the couple hard and fast, Judge McDowell informed the groom that he was at liberty to salute his bride. This proved to be a matter of some difficulty as the bride veil was wide, long and voluminous. After several attempts however, perseverance prevailed—the veil was raised, and the perspiring groom indulged in a delicious bit of "yum, yum," which was no doubt more satisfactory to him than it was to some of the envious colored onlookers.

MANY MISHAPS Marred The First Big Game of Polo Yesterday Afternoon.

Washington's birthday was celebrated by the first big game of polo of the season, which was played for the four handsome Kerr cups, given by Mrs. Wm. N. Kerr, of Pittsburg, who is spending the season here.

As a whole it could not be classed as a fine game, as the players were not in good trim, due to the little practice they have had this season. A cold wind swept the field, but in spite of it a good sized crowd was present, and society of Camden and many Northern cities was well represented on the grand stand and in carriages.

The game was divided into eight periods. In the fourth Beltzazi, of New York, collided with Crawford, also of New York, while the ponies were going at break neck speed. Crawford was hurled to the ground, but was able to continue playing. In the sixth Beltzazi collided with Downey, another New York player, and Downey received a severe fall, which almost caused him to leave the game. In the seventh Beltzazi carried the ball from one end of the field to the other, and in his anxiety to score a goal, ran into the goal post, falling violently to the ground, and was rendered unconscious for several minutes, but later returned to the game.

The stars of the game were Boykin, Edwards, Swartz and Salmond in the first four periods and Tainter in the last two. The Whites were given five goals as a handicap. The final score was 8 to 5 in favor of the Blues.

Whites—Salmond, Tainter, Crawford, Downey.
Blues—Boykin, Edwards, Beltzazi, Swartz.

Referee, LeBoutellier, of N. Y.
Scorer—T. Edmund Krumboltz
Timekeeper—"Pete" Johnson.

Set or Sit?

On this "sit" and "set" debate the press has given a good deal of space and learned comment. There is evidence of more consultation of dictionaries than is the general rule in editorial sanctums. Summing it up, it is clear that both words are correct according to authority when applied to the hen and her process of incubation. The word "sit" seems to be coming into more general use in chicken literature as being preferable, and that is about the only point at issue. But when applied to the sun, moon and stars, the word "set" has the call. The posture is the crucial point upon which turns the propriety and exactness of the use of one word or the other. The hen sits on her eggs. The bird dog sets his game while in an erect posture, generally speaking.—Tampa Times.

WE ARE NEVER SATISFIED

The Thin Man Bemoans His Fate, and the Fat Man Starves to Become Thin.

We are never satisfied, it seems, and the growls and wails of discontent rise all above us, showing that others feel as we do.

The thin man bemoans his fate. He eats fattening things and yearns to be fat, and the fat man starves himself as much as a fat man's self control will admit, and longs to be thin.

It's pretty tough. Over in the valley they grow alfalfa—great crops of alfalfa that bring in money, and our farm won't. It hurts our feelings, but over on the alfalfa farm they can't make a peach tree grow worth a cent, and they're kicking about it envying us.

It would seem that Nature would know better. Discontent is not natural, and it would appear that Nature might rig up some sort of an exchange by which discontented people might swap.

The poor man who aches for dollars could go there and give his appetite for half the sickly rich man's pile, and it would be gladly given.

The woman with the ostrich feathers her sailor brother brought her could swap with the envious woman for a diamond and thus control her own longing.

All we'd have to do would be to go to the exchange and register, and Nature would do the rest. We'd list our discontented state and tell what would make us feel better, and sooner or later the exchange would be made and two discontented people would be made more contented. But no such exchange is being considered, and the two discontented parties to all these troubles are far apart.—Galveston News.

Editor's Mean Revenge.
An editor who was courting a woman of uncertain age, but positive bank account, was cut out by a gentleman from a neighboring town, who married her and took her home. Whereupon the editor sought a mean revenge by heading account of her wedding: "Another Old Resident Gone."

Opportunities Always Present.
"It is not a single opportunity which comes to a man, it is a train. It is a never-ending procession, some smaller and more insignificant as the years flow on, but ever and always opportunities too numerous, too great, and too large for us to utilize fully."—Prof. James, University of Illinois.

Turn to Wooden Flooring.
The use of wooden flooring is on the increase in Italy, taking the place of the former extensive demand for marble, tiling and cement. Oak larch and pitch pine are mostly adopted, and but little, if any maple, birch or beech has been brought to the market.
