Not to Speak Of. "Has anything ever been discovered on Venus?" asked the student of astronomy. "No," replied the old professor, whose mind had slipped a cog and transported him into mythological fields; "not if the pictures of her are authentic."—Chicago News.

Overcured. Doctor—"You admit that I cured you of insomnia, then why don't you pay my bill?" Patient—"Sorry, doc, but I sleep so soundly now that my wife goes through my pockets nights and takes every cent."—Boston Transcript.

Physician—Have you any aches or pains this morning? Patient—Yes, doctor. It hurts me to breathe. In fact, the only trouble now seems to be with my breath. Physician—All right. I'll give you something that will soon stop that.—Good Housekeeping.

AN INDUCEMENT. Mrs. Fad—We propose to give a dinner. Mrs. Fad—Ah! At how much per plate? Mrs. Fad—Two ninety-nine.

Might Be Worse. He bought some bogus mixing stock. Oh, well, 'twas not so great a shock.—He still, at least, is healthy.

High Valuation. "Is his fiancée fond of him?" asked Maudie. "I should say so," replied Marmie. "She thinks as much of him as she does of her engagement ring."

The Man That Counts. "Remember such of you that the chance for heroic endeavor of a noble or spectacular kind does not often count; that the man who really counts in this life is not the man who thinks how well he could do some bit of heroism if the chance arose, but the man who actually does the hard work, workday, every-day duties as those duties arise."—Theodore Roosevelt.

HE KNEW. De Boose—Yes, the first time I drank whiskey I suppose I made a wry face, but after that it grew on me. De Whittly—The wry face? Yes, indeed, it did.

Too Hot. He told his old straw hat good-by and sang a glad refrain; The sun still blazed up in the sky—He's put it on again.

Golf Patter. McFoolzie—What the deuce am I doing wrong caddie? The Caddie (in his element)—Why, yer stance is rotten, an' yer pullin' yer drive, an' allein' yer brassy. Yer too low w' yer iron, an' yer toppin' w' yer mashie; yer fallin' back an' drawin' in. Yer dont keep yer eye on the ball and yer can't putt fer toffee.—London Sketcher.

More Important. "Officer, there's a gambling joint in full blast down here in the next block. One of the steers, if that's what you call 'em, showed me the stairway that leads up to it." "Can't ye see, mister, that I'm busy makin' the merchants take their signs in off th' sidewalk?"

Easy. Physician—Have you any aches or pains this morning? Patient—Yes, doctor. It hurts me to breathe. In fact, the only trouble now seems to be with my breath. Physician—All right. I'll give you something that will soon stop that.—Good Housekeeping.

EXPECTING TOO MUCH.

After wandering up and down the earth for half a century the wayfarer went to visit the little village where he had passed his boyhood days, and the first thing he did was to hunt up an old friend.

"This is Mill Bivens, is it?" he said. "Yes."

"Well, I'm Bill Lantz." "Lantz? I don't seem to—"

"Don't you remember that hazel patch that used to be right in the middle of the village?"

"Yes, I think I do." "Well, you and I gathered nuts there many a time when we were boys together."

"I recollect the hazel patch very well, but—well, you see a fellow meets so many people that sometimes he—he can't just—"

"I see. Well, good day, Mr. Bivens." "Good day."

Diving Barred. Two inexperienced anglers went fishing one day. One sat down on the pier, while the other stood. Just before beginning operations they made a wager with each other as to who would make the bigger catch of fish.

They had been fishing about half an hour with little or no success, when John, who was standing, lost his balance and fell off the pier.

As he went headlong past Dick, the latter gave a yell and said: "Hi, John, if you are goin' to dive for 'em, the bet's off!"—Tit-Bits.
