

The Orangeburg Times and Democrat very sensibly says: "Don't fall out with your neighbor because he does not agree with you in politics. He has just as much right to be a Bleese man as you have to be a Jones man. So agree to disagree pleasantly, with one another on these matters and vote for the man you want elected."

A Sermon on Good Roads. Maybe the road question ain't none of my business. Then, by granny, I'll just flinder away and talk about it anyhow. Strikes me that every feller who can ride, walk, hop or crawl ought to take some interest in the road question.

If you are the principal stockholder in a yoke of bull calves and a five dollar wagon loaded with 3 cull crossties and mired up to the top bolster in a mud-hole, you ought to cut your bulls loose and ride one of them into town, waving your last year's hat and yelling hurrah for good roads!

If you possess nothing in this world but your mammy's match - hosses and have to go as bare footed as a shoemaker's wife, there ain't no use to slop around in the sour mud and get 10,000 John Rocky hookworms to boring gimlet holes in your whitelather heels and climbing up inside of your legs like an army of Taft Democrats going to hog-heaven.

If I was a barefooted nigger and had to make my living by running foot races with a one eyed muley steer, hanked if I wouldn't want good roads to run on. Dirt is a good thing if it is good clean dirt and rich enough to grow 'taters and things. But, oh! deliver me from mud! I have always hated the stuff, and some of my experiences this winter have made me hate it wusser'n ever.

If I live five miles from the railroad and during all this bad winter there has been just one mud-hole between here and the depot, but the blamed thing reached all the way. A four horse team goes straining through the mud with about half as much as a week-old calf could pull on good roads, while the fool driver wades along at one side and whips and cusses. If he had a good macadam or sand-clay road he could take one of his mule sand haul four times more than they all pull, and do it with four times the ease and satisfaction.

The average wagoner could make more clear money in one day than he now makes in a month. But the poor idiot never thinks about that. If you mention a tax for building good roads, he will put up a pitiful mouth and say, "Oh, our taxes are so heavy already, we just couldn't stand a road tax!" And then he will larrup his bone - piles and tug on through the mud, thinking he has put up a good argument. He don't realize that he is losing enough every day to pay his part of the tax for a year. Poor fool!

Now, gentlemen, I ain't worth much, and the only vehicle that depends on me for axle-grease is a sway-backed wheel barrow, but I am willing and anxious to go my part on good roads any day.—J. L. Pearson in the Fool-Killer.
