PLAYING GREAT BALL

Camden Boy Best Catcher Playing in Minor League.

From the Cleveland Press.

The American Association not only furnishes new material for the big leagues, the American and National, but it also makes over all players for the leading organizations. Twenty-five ex-members of the Nap club are now being put through the "make-over" process.

Prominent among this number are Sid Smith, catcher, and Bill Hinchman, outfielder, both members of the Columbus Senators, leaders in the race for the pennant.

Smith and Hinchman are playing in whirlwind fashion for the A. A. pace makers. They have all season. Big league scouts have been watching their performances for many weeks. The talent picks them to advance into the select class in 1913, if not during the close of the 1912 season.

Smith is a great deal more value than any number of catchers in the major leagues, being probably superior now to any backstop that the Cleveland club has. He has participated in most every game Columbus has played. Smith set out to catch every game of the season, but after working in sixty odd games in succession, was forced to drop out of one of them on account of sickness.

Hinchman has been hitting and doing all the rest of his work as well as ever. Probably his throwing is improved. Bill is the leading slugger of the A. A. and is giving Charlie Carr and Stansbury, also Ex-Naps, a stirring battle for batting honors. Hinchman also ranks with the leading run getters of the Association.

Smith is hitting in excess of .300 in 89 games. His fielding has also been brilliant. The stellar work of these two players, probably more than anything else, is responsible for Columbus's present position in the bunting struggle.

Smith was a member of the Nap catching staff last year. He failed to display the class expected and was turned back to the minors. The Naps secured Smith with Atlanta. Smith is a heady catcher. He uses good judgment in handling his pitchers, and the Senator hurlers owe a whole lot to his ability to make selections.

REMBERT NEWS NOTES.

Rembert, S. C., July 30.—Not in many years have the farmers had such adverse seasons to make a crop. For three weeks lately nothing was done on the farms on account of the rains, and now when the crops should have been laid by they have got to be worked. With a drought now the yield will be cut heavy. The man that expects a big crop of cotton will have to go to another country for he will not find it here. We have some good corn safe and young corn will make if the army worm don't eat it up.

Peaches all rotted from rain or blight.

The health of our section is very good.

The protracted meeting at Pisgah was postponed last week owing to the press of farm work.

Mr. Tolar, of Sumter, came and preached two very able sermons.

Mrs. T. L. Cole who went to the mountains has returned.

Rev. Mr. Cole is in Orangeburg this week aiding in a meeting. He will be occupied a month in meetings.

Rev. Mr. Hatfield is carrying on a meeting at New Hope church this week.

The county campaign meeting will be held here in August.

Several new buildings are going up and some stores will be built for the fall trade. So our town is increasing.

A darkey tried to commit suicide by taking laudanum for no apparent cause. Guess he thinks it fashionable.

Judging from those who say they are going to Camden on the 5th inst., the meeting will be a large one. The court house will never hold them. Guess you will give us Hampton Park, but Camden always measures up to full measure in public things.

Politics are much divided on the governor's race. The governor in the lead, with McLaurin for State treasurer in this section.

Several of our folks will go to the mountains and other places as soon as they can get off. The heat has been so intense lately that people are fagged out and need a rest. Keep cool, whether you are or not and it will be best for all, mentally and physically.
