A Handsome Calendar.

One of the handsomest, as well as one of the most instructive calendars we have seen for this year; is that sent out by the White and Wyckoff Manufacturing Company, Manufacturers of "Autocrat" and Exclusive Correspondence Stationery, Holyoke, Mass. The large type, the featuring of holidays and notable days of the year, in three-color process, printing, makes the calendar a most desirable one. A calendar will be mailed upon receipt of 10 cents in coin or U. S. stamps.

Just a Slight Mistake.

"The reporter's life is a happy one. When he suffers an indignity, the cause of that indignity is usually beneath consideration, or else the insult is due to some misunderstanding."

The speaker was Albert J. Beveridge, himself a one-time reporter. He continued:

"I know a reporter who went to a house the day after a wedding and said to the servant who answered his ring:

"Can you let me have some details, please, of yesterday's ceremony?"

"The servant frowned. "No I can't, she said. "They ate every crum! And I think you ought to be ashamed, an able-bodied young man like you going around begging for cold details!"—Selected.

TO ADD TEN YEARS TO LIFE.

Expected Discoveries Will Lengthen Allotment Says Dr. Loeb.

Dr. M. L. Loeb, a scientist who is making experiments in the Rockefeller Institute said yesterday he believes human life soon will be prolonged from 10 to 25 years beyond the present normal span.

In a few years he said the doctor discoveries probably will be made which will bear an important relation to the human life. The discoveries he said will result in prolonging existence beyond the normal period given in the Bible as "three score years and ten."

Dr. Loeb explained that to prolong life the tissues of the body must be prevented from decaying. As long as the tissues are kept in good order, life will not leave the body except by violence.

Continuing his explanation Dr. Loeb said the heart, lungs, and stomach are the three most important organs of the body. When they are treated wisely the other organs will take care of themselves. To prevent tissues from decaying, the physician said, the heart, lungs and stomach must be kept in good condition. That can be done by good exercise, clean living and proper food.

Most of the food eaten by human beings is not sufficiently nourishing, said Dr. Loeb. It will be when proper nourishment is discovered he believes and then the accepted period of human life will grow.

"The trouble with human beings is they do not care for themselves properly," said Dr. Loeb yesterday. "A man who works as a Wall street broker, a clerk or a stenographer cannot expect to live to a healthful old age."

"All of us know death is caused by other than this, we can find the heart ceases to beat because of some other cause. It may be the stomach was imperfect. All of the tissues and sections of the body depend on the heart for life. A long life depends wholly on the heart the lungs and the stomach and not on a fore-ordained length of life."

"It should be remembered that the heart, lungs and stomach are the most important organs in the human body. But the stomach is first. If it is treated properly, the heart and lungs will take care of themselves."

"To get the heart, stomach and lungs in proper shape it is necessary to take physical exercise, and good nourishment also is required, by that I do not mean a great quantity of meat and such things."

"That food of the future man or woman who wants to live to an age that really is ripe will be taken in small amounts, because it will be strongly nourishing."

Dr. Loeb was asked what he thought of Dr. Alexis Carrel's view that the Darwinian theory is wrong. He said he thought the Darwinian theory correct and is sure human beings are descended from monkeys because of similarity in the tissue of men and monkeys.

Growing of Berries.

The following communication by F. E. Ellis, of Level Land, S. C., addressed to the Southern Cultivator, will be of interest to berry growers:

If you will allow space in your highly esteemed journal, I will per a few lines for the good of my fellow-man, pertaining to the cultivation of black berries. About five years ago I noticed an article in "The Home and Farm" headed "Berries." After reading it I was persuaded there was no use of taking chances with snakes and chigoes roaming over the old fields gathering berries here and there. I at once ordered seven varieties from a nurseryman in Texas. After trying them for two years, I decided to give my attention to the three best varieties, namely: McDonald, Dallas and Robinson. The former begins to ripen about the tenth of May, the other two about ten days later.

"Each variety is very prolific, of good size and flavor."

"Last spring I gathered from the 18th part of an acre five hundred quarts. These vines were set in the fall of 1910. I cultivate them in rows six feet apart with plants four feet in drill, so you see about 1800 plants can be set to the acre. On my small patch I averaged five quarts to the plant, or vine. I find a ready sale on the local market at 10 cents per quart. One row in my garden, 35 yards long, we raise more than we can use in our home. When it comes to jams, jellies and wines they are unsurpassed. There is no reason why anyone who has a garden spot, can not have all they need for home use."
