Solsosons.
 Solsosons, whose ruined cathedral now takes rank with Rheims as the prey of German guns, has a religious and a military history unparalleled among French towns, says the London Chronicle. More than one great abbey took root in the town, but the greatest of all was that of St. Medard whose abbot, in the thirteenth century, led it over 220 villages, with innumerable manors and vassals. St. Medard drew in 1530 over 300,000 pilgrims to the famous shrine. One or two of the early kings of France are buried in what remains of the crypt of the old abbey. Every war that France has suffered from has visited Solsosons with intense severity, sacking and bombardment following fast and faster. A century ago in 1814, the town was twice captured by the allies and retaken by the French, to become, in the following year, a cockpit for the contending armies.
Dog Helps Milk Cow.
 Mr. J. F. Jamison, who lives near Gaffney, has a collie dog which is a most remarkable animal. His master sends him to the pasture with instructions to bring up only the cows which are giving milk and Nip will confine himself strictly to those instructions, and then Mr. Jamison will tell him to bring all the cows, and he will come driving them all to the barn. In addition to this, when milking is in progress, Nip will seize the calf around the neck with his paws and hold it off while the cow is being milked. Now the above information was obtained not directly from Mr. Jamison, but from Sheriff Thomas, who is a truthful man, and anyone who doubts the statement will be liable to arrest as soon as he may put foot in Cherokee county.—Gaffney Special to Greenville News.

RULES FOR PREPARING EGGS FOR SHIPPING
Clemson Poultryman Instructs Shippers in Correct Methods of Egg Marketing.
 F. C. Hare, poultry husbandman of Clemson College, has prepared a set of rules for grading and packing eggs and has distributed copies of these rules among the farmers on the cream and egg routes of Clemson College in the Piedmont counties.
 "Though these rules," said Mr. Hare, "are designed particularly for those farmers who are co-operating with us on the cream and egg routes, many of the rules will be worth attention from all men in the state having surplus eggs at this time. There is a steadily increasing supply of eggs in South Carolina just now and many poultrymen will want to find quick markets outside the state. Any one having a considerable surplus to market will be told where to find an immediate market for all his eggs if he will write to the extension division of Clemson College.
 "We are not justified in asking the press to print as news the names of dealers who are ready to purchase the eggs, as such matter belongs properly in the paid advertising columns. But we will be glad to supply these names by mail to anyone desiring the information."
 Such of the rules compiled by Mr. Hare for his egg shippers as will be of general interest are quoted below.
 1. Eggs must not be over six days old. In cool weather they must be gathered at least once a day and in warm weather twice a day. This is necessary in order to prevent hens from sitting on the eggs and starting incubation.
 2. As infertile eggs will keep better than fertile eggs, all roosters should be killed at the close of the breeding season, May 1. Do not allow any roosters to be with the hens in summer as if fertile, the eggs will not reach the market in good condition. You can raise cockerels this year for breeding with the hens next year.
 3. Keep nests clean. Put fresh straw in them frequently. This is important.
 4. Do not wash eggs. A damp cloth may be used to remove stains, but the eggs must not be dipped in water.
 5. Pack only clean eggs in cases or cartons. Ship only full cases of 30 dozen eggs. Do not ship half-filled cases. Place about one-half inch of excelsior in bottom of case and over top row of eggs. In case, to prevent eggs from shaking in shipping. A case should be made up of all white eggs or all brown eggs. Do not mix colors.
 There are a number of other suggestions in the list which apply only to eggs that are collected on the cream and egg routes. These eggs are shipped direct to New York as soon as collected on the routes. In spite of recent decreases in egg prices on the big northern markets, due to the increasing supply in the country, eggs thus shipped are netting considerably higher prices than it is possible to get in local South Carolina markets.
 "If every patron," says Mr. Hare addressing the cream and egg route patrons, "will cooperate with us in selecting and shipping only the best eggs, we will establish a good reputation for 'CC' brand eggs in New York and will obtain a premium of perhaps several cents per dozen through this reputation."
 Any one having difficulty with his egg marketing problems is invited to seek assistance by writing to F. C. Hare, Clemson College.
