GOR'S GALLERY.

WOOD 12m poor and cannot buy the rare time mellowed things of art. The gallery is an open gallery. The walls are hung with grander show than any other gallery in the city. The artist's sketches of Michelangelo are in the best cartoons he drew. All this is mine to have and hold. No fire may burn nor years may melt the traces of the Master's toll. I can show you some ruthless child of fate. I can show you some darkly gifted Corsican. I can show you some success decorate the leaves from my Vatican. Maurice Thompson.

Fair Street Embroidery Club.

Miss Katherine Zemp entertained graciously on Tuesday afternoon a meeting of the Fair Street Embroidery club. This attractive Fair Street residence showed a pleasing arrangement of ferns, jonquils and violets. This club is composed of twenty members, and the rooms were filled with busy maids and maistresses, who demurely plied needles and scissors until attention was concentrated upon the dainty refreshments served by the young hostess.

Was Four Years Old.

Little Miss Mollie Blackwell was four years old on Monday April 20th. The event was celebrated by an enjoyable party given at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Blackwell. The little hostess greeted her guests most charmingly and all were invited to join in the games, which were held with all the ardor of their little hearts. By and by they were bidden to come into the dining room where a beautifully decorated table awaited them. Everything was laid out from the pink ribbons that twinkled on the snowy surface of the cake in the center. Delicious ice cream and cake were served and the little folks marched out to resume their games on the lawn. A number of pretty gifts attested the popularity of the dainty little hostess.

Junior Bridge Club.

With Miss Rhetta DeLoache the junior bridge club had an enjoyable meeting on Tuesday afternoon. The games were bright and fragrant with spring flowers in all their varied hues. The games were spirited and interesting and the dainty refreshments served for the games by the popular hostess were much enjoyed.

Picnic on Saturday.

The big green woods with their wealth of flowers, and rippling streams gave an irresistible call to the Y. W. A. and the Royal Embassadors of the Baptist church on Saturday, and an enthusiastic response was the result. Chaperoned by their leaders, Mrs. N. R. Goodale and Miss Ada Phelps, and by the Rev. John A. Davison, they went to the precipice and to the pond nearby for a most enjoyable day. The day was spent in fishing, boating and games under the great spreading oaks. At noon a tempting luncheon was served from the well filled baskets that the girls and boys had not forgotten.

A Coming Marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wright Mitchell have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Cleo, to Mr. Edward Brightman Buddin, on Wednesday evening, the twenty-eighth of April, 1915, at 9 o'clock, at their residence on Fair avenue.

The bride-to-be is a native of North Carolina but came to Camden in early childhood and has spent her young life among us. She is an honor graduate of the Camden High School, has marked elocutionary talent, and is a writer whose ability has been recognized by some of the leading magazines. Of attractive appearance and winning personality, she has won a wide circle of friends. Mr. Buddin came to Camden about three years ago and since that time has held a position in the drug store of W. Robin Zemp. He is the son of Mr. E. J. Buddin, of Clarendon county, and is a young man of sterling worth and character, who enjoys the confidence and esteem of all who know him in this his adopted home.

THE TREND OF EARLY STYLES.

Suggestions for the Spring Trousseau. Boleros and Blouses.

New York, April 10.—April, with apple blossoms and arbutus and the fresh green of the first leaves of the Spring, has become the bride's month. If not the month of weddings, at least the month when the fascinating garments for the trousseau are displayed. A traveling costume which I saw not long ago was shown with all the things necessary for a trip across the continent or for European travel. The suit was of a very finely-twilled gray covert cloth, a fabric which is both stylish and serviceable. The jacket, made with raglan sleeves, had a back slightly fitted and flaring below the waistline. The front was the unusual and distinctive feature of the jacket. It might be called surplice, for the right-front buttoned with cloth buttons diagonally over the left side, and at the waistline it was extended into a tab, which buttoned again beneath the arms. Braided was used at the sides, on the back and on the sleeves. The collar was a rounding affair which reached around the back and the sides, with the rounding part in the front. The plain skirt, in two pieces, had the front cut with an extended tab to correspond with the tab on the jacket.

With this suit was shown a trim little turban of straw the same color as the suit, but with gay double wings of rose color placed directly on top of the hat. These divided so that one of the wings went on one side and one on the other. A pair of high gray kid shoes—that laced up the side instead of up the front and had narrow black patent-leather tips was displayed to go with this costume. Batiste and handkerchief linen with inch-wide stripes of blue, gray, lavender, green, pink, or yellow and white are extensively used for tailored shirt waists and are a decidedly smart innovation after the vogue for plain colors. Therefore, the bride may select one or two of these striped waists to go with her traveling suit unless a plain colored voile, crepe de chine, or chiffon would be more useful. These are also smart and often more serviceable. A very stylish linen suit for the bride, or for others who are adding to their wardrobe, may be seen in the illustration. Rose-colored linen is the material from which the suit is fashioned. These new, long-sleeved bolero jackets are often closed only at the collar and a button or two below the neck-line, from which point they flare open in the approved manner. Beneath the jacket one glimpses a dainty blouse of sheer linen. The skirt, pleated and stitched at the waist and hips, is made with wide tucks at the bottom. A sailor hat with simple trimming is the accompaniment of this costume. A frock which will be a standby in any woman's wardrobe is of sand-colored twilled taffeta. The bodice is full, with a high white organdy colored twilled taffeta. The bodice is ers, which hang free. The taffeta skirt, slashed to the waistline on one side over a chiffon underskirt, is edged all the way around with black; while through the slashes, a few inches above the bottom, is drawn lavender ribbon, which ends on either side of the slash with a large bow-knot and flower-tasseled ends.

For afternoon frocks, very large polka dots are very smart and new. Cream, white, and ecru, dotted with red green, blue, or lavender dots are seen. These dots are widely spread and sometimes are as large as a dollar.

Wright-Stevenson.

A wedding of interest to a wide circle of friends was that of Miss Emily Wright to Dr. Ralph E. Stevenson, which was solemnized in the Presbyterian church of Clover last evening, Rev. R. E. Stevenson, of Due West officiating. The happy event was attended by scores of friends of the contracting parties from Yorkville, Gastonia and other places immediately after the ceremony a reception was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Wright, which was a most charming affair. The bride is a most amiable young lady and has often visited in Yorkville, where she has a host of friends. The groom is a former resident of this town and is very popular here. Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson will make their home in Camden.—York News of last Thursday.

full, with a high white organdy collar, which opens and flares in the front; this gives it the name of the Henry Clay collar. The sleeves are set in and rather full, having wide cuffs flaring over the hands. The many-gored skirt is very plain, but bears the earmarks of the latest cut. An evening dress is made of changeable green taffeta, with bodice rounding low in front and back, and edged with a pleated frill of fringed taffeta. Following the line of the neck are several buttonholed slits, through which is drawn a lavender ribbon. This ties in the front in a large lover's knot, is invisibly tacked to the waist and has the ends finished with tassels of flow-

Fifty Years Between Meetings.

To meet after 50 years was the experience yesterday of Jeremiah Smith, known as "Uncle Jerry," former senator from Horry county, and W. F. Russel, county auditor of Kershaw county. A score or more of veterans who had arrived early for the reunion were sitting on the State house steps, talking over the past. To the right of Col. J. W. McLaurin sat Mr. Smith. At his left was Mr. Russel.

The conversation drifted from battle to battle of the War Between the Sections.

"We set the bridge afire as we left Richmond," said Mr. Smith.

"You were in that fight?" asked Mr. Russel.

"Why yes."

"What regiment?"

"Seventh South Carolina."

"That was my regiment, too."

The acquaintance of the past was then renewed after a half century.—Thursday's State.

Placed in Jail.

Dick Boyd, an old offender in the whiskey business, was captured at the Seaboard passenger station Wednesday afternoon by Chief of Police Whitaker and Constable Sinclair. The officers had been looking for Boyd since last September when they captured three gallons of whiskey as he alighted from the train at Spalding and made his getaway through the woods.

Camden Beef Cattle Farms.

The Camden Beef Cattle Farms, of Lugoff, was commissioned Tuesday, with a capital stock of $10,000, the petitioners being L. I. Gulon and Henry Cunningham, of Lugoff, and G. A. Guignard, of Columbia. The company will raise horses, cattle, hogs and other live stock; buy, sell and own real estate; operate and maintain farms for the raising of agricultural products. Already this farm has made shipments to northern markets of numbers of beef cattle. Besides the beef cattle they have it stocked with some of the finest pure bred cattle ever brought into this state—many of them being prize winners at state and county fairs and this industry in this county promises to grow rapidly.
