TIME AND LOVE.

When I have seen by Time's fell hand defaced
The rich, proud east of outward buried age;
When sometime lofty towers I see down razed,
And brass eternal slave to mortal rage;
When I have seen the hungry ocean gain
Advantage on the kingdom of the shore
And the firm soil win of the watery main,
Increasing store with loss and loss with store;
When I have seen such interchange of state,
Or state itself confounded to decay,
Ruin hath taught me thus to ruminate—
That Time will come and take my Love away.
This thought is as a death, which cannot choose
But weep to have that which it fears to lose.

Pastures.

Clemson College, S. C., Jan. 30.—In traveling over the state of South Carolina one cannot help being impressed with the generally poor pastures found on the average farm—if indeed such as we have could be called pastures at all. Someone has described the average South Carolina pasture as a succession of gullies with a fence around them—simply an exercising ground, yet we will find here and there an occasional pasture that rivals the famed Blue Grass pastures of Kentucky, such a one will not be found, however, on the most worn out portions of the farm and still these worn-out, run-down areas may be converted into pastures and made to produce profitable returns.

Bermuda grass has been found to succeed well on every soil type and in every section of the state and if placed on such lands and given even half a chance will do well; but why give it only half a chance when it is so well adapted to our needs? Why not fence our poor, waste lands, deep break and thoroughly pulverize the soil this spring as though preparing for a corn crop, make an application of commercial fertilizer or stable manure, or both, then sod to Bermuda and get excellent returns the first year. Such a pasture, however, will require some attention in the future if best results are to be obtained, weeds may spring up and choke the Bermuda before it is well established. These should be kept down by using the mower occasionally, usually about twice a season is sufficient. It is advisable too on very poor land to apply each year for two or three years from 200 to 400 pounds of commercial fertilizer per acre.

With the boll weevil just a few miles over the Georgia line it would be well for South Carolina farmers to turn their attention to more and better permanent pastures.

Honor to Former Camden Man.

The Columbia State's Washington correspondent sends the following to that paper under date of January 26th. Mr. deSaussure referred to was born and reared in Camden and has many relatives and friends who will be glad to know of this honor bestowed upon him:
"A high honor today came to a former South Carolinian when the secretary of the treasury named George R. deSaussure of Jacksonville to become one of the commissioners to go to Philadelphia February 14 and 15 and pass upon the quality of coins issued by the government during the last year.
"Each year a commission of bankers, men who are experts on different kinds of coin, is picked for this duty and if there are any defects in any way regarding the minting done last year it will be the commission's duty to point them out."

Three Negroes Poisoned.

Grace Benson, a negro woman is in the county jail being charged with murder by poisoning. It seems that the Benson woman had a falling out with the man with whom she lived at Lugoff and placed poison in his food. The man was made desperately sick but will recover. An eleven-year-old negro girl living with her accidentally got some of the food and died from the effects. The woman partook of the food with suicidal intent but is now out of danger. "Rough-on-Rats" was the poison administered. Coroner Dixon held an inquest and the jury charges the woman with murder. She admits the deed but says it was not her intention to poison the girl.

The Show Pleased.

"Potash and Perlmutter," at the opera house Tuesday evening pleased a large audience. The two Hebrew merchants kept the crowd in an uproar of laughter from start to finish.

Circumspection.

"My boy," said the editor of the Billsville Bugle to the new reporter, "you lack caution. You must learn not to state things as facts until they are proved facts—otherwise you are very apt to get us into libel suits. Do not say, 'the cashier stole the funds,' say 'the cashier who is alleged to have stolen the funds.' That's all now, and—ah—turn in a stickful about that Second Ward Social last night."

Owing to an influx of visitors, it was late in the afternoon before the genial editor of The Bugle caught a glimpse of the great family daily. Half-way down the social column his eyes lit on the following cautious paragraph: "It is rumored that a card party was given last evening to a number of reputed ladies of the Second Ward. Mrs. Smith, gossip says, was the hostess, and the festivities are reported to have continued until 10:30 in the evening. It is alleged that the affair was a social function given to the ladies of the Second Ward Club, and that, with the exception of Mrs. James Bilwiger, who says she comes from Leavitt's Junction, none but members were present. The reputed hostess insists that coffee and wafers alone were served as refreshments. The Smith woman claims to be the wife of John Smith, the so-called 'Honest Shoe Man' of 315 East State Street."
Shortly afterward a whirling mass, claiming to be a reporter on the Bugle flew fifteen feet into the street and landed with what bystanders assert was a dull, sickening thud.

A fire which for a while did fair to do a great deal of damage visited the Geo. D. Shore & Bro. warehouse at Sumner Monday night, damaging the building and a large part of the stock of goods in the building. The loss entailed by fire and water was estimated by W. G. Moses, president and manager of the company, at between $7,000 and $8,000, with the building and stock insured for $15,000.
C. W. Coker has been elected mayor of Hartsville.

STYLES FOR SOUTHERN WEAR

They Forecast What Will Be Worn in Spring.

New York, January 30.—Although New York is still in the grip of winter, thoughts of lighter clothes to be worn under many sunny skies begin to be forced on our attention. Immediately after the holiday season the shops begin to show a tempting array of thin dresses and light suits, for it is now that the exodus to warmer climes begins to take place. Those of us who either from choice or necessity must see the winter through in the cold regions, may still contemplate the styles that are offered for Southern wear, for they are a pretty accurate forecast of what will be worn when spring comes.

Blouse of Chiffon With Oyster-White Tussur Skirt.

The delicate lingerie dress this season is of Georgette; chiffon cloth or net—these for the more formal dresses, while for other purposes they are dainty, fine voiles, with new printed, woven or embroidered designs in the most attractive colorings imaginable. Net dresses are finely embroidered and trimmed with lace, while those of chiffon and Georgette are adorned with the ubiquitous embroidery in cross-stitch, beads or darning-stitch.

The New Colors

Green is one of the most fashionable colors for the coming season. It has already been launched by Paris with great success; furthermore, it is the true color of spring and for that reason most appropriate for this season of the year. There is a delicate canary yellow used both for afternoon and evening gowns which is quite new and promises to be very much favored. Yellow in any shade seems to meet with approval. The deep mustard and citron shades are considered especially smart for sports clothes.

We have not been able to get away from dark blue, for, in spite of many people being tired of it, fashion considers it correct for the tailored suit and dress, and it is much too practical a color to be discarded.

Blouses of Chiffon

The sketch illustrates a blouse of chiffon made to be worn outside the skirt, a style which increases in popularity as time goes on. The neck line going straight across the front and back from shoulder to shoulder, is also proving very popular. This line is not so hard when the material is softly shirred, and an additional piece of plain chiffon is placed over the shoulder. Shirred pockets at the edge of the peplum, and the ribbon decoration ending in loops below the belt, which is finished with a prim, tailored bow directly in front, are special style features worthy of consideration, for they appear in many of the new models, varying according to the nature of the design.

Blouses of satin and silk are also making their way among the very sheer materials which are now being used. The tailored skirt with large pockets placed over the inverted pleats at the sides is one of the newest modes in separate skirts. The skirt is of oyster-white tussur.
