ERUPTIONS FOR THE SCIENTISTS

Volcanoes in the Southwestern Part of Alaska Are Accommodating.

GEOGRAPHIC SOCIETY THERE

Members Who Went to Study Mount Katmai and Its "Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes" Are Favored With Fine Performance.

Juneau, Alaska.—Volcanic peaks in the far southwestern corner of Alaska are in eruption this summer, evidently for the benefit of a party of scientists sent by the National Geographic society to study Mount Katmai, the greatest of Alaska's smoking mountains, and its "Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes."

Persons who have returned recently from the volcanic country to the westward said Shishaldin peak, on Unimak Island, in the Aleutian chain, was in eruption recently. They also reported it was believed Mount Bavioff on the southwestern Alaskan mainland, also had spouted, as the snow about the summit was coal black.

Last "Blowoff" in 1912.

When the party of scientists left Anchorage, Alaska, on their way to the Katmai country, they said they believed there was little likelihood of an eruption this summer and declared they were certain there was absolutely no danger attached to the investigation. Katmai's last big "blowoff" was in June, 1912.

The party of twenty-six scientists is headed by Professor Robert A. Griggs of the University of Ohio, and some are from Carnegie Institute. They were planning to make observations of the botanical, biological and geological effects of the 1912 eruption.

In 1913 Professor Griggs headed a party of scientists to Katmai and returned with the announcement that the crater was the largest on the globe and that near Katmai lay a great valley whose floor was dotted with thousands of mouths vomiting gray vapory gas and smoke. This valley Prof. Griggs named "The Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes." Instead of 10,000, it is said there are literally millions of smoking vents.

Set Aside by Congress.

Congress recently set aside "The Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes" as national property, and it is believed that some day it will be a second Yellowstone geyser field. Steaming springs, it is said, will eventually take the place of the present smoking vents.

Professor Griggs and his party expected to remain in the Katmai district until the middle of September. Until they return nothing probably will be heard from them, as there is no direct means of communication. Mrs. Griggs and her children accompanied the professor to Kodiak, an island near Katmai, and will remain there during the summer waiting for him to return.

Moving pictures of the smoking mountain and valley are to be brought back by the party.

Each Beauty in Harem Demanded a Gold Tooth.

Trials of a toothpuller in a harem were described by Dr. A. S. Hungerford of Teheran, Persia, who visited Toledo on his way back to the Pacific coast.

Fourteen years as the royal dentist for his majesty, the Shah of Persia, who has a nifty harem in his palace, has convinced the dentist that life with a surplus of beautiful spouses does not have all the traditional joys.

One of the doctor's first duties in the Shah's palace was to pull a tooth for a member of the harem. When the dentist finished her beauty had been enhanced by a brilliantly flashing gold bicuspid. Such jealousy did this addition to her beauty strike in the hearts of the harem that forthwith they all went salivating and sobbing to the Shah, charging his majesty with partiality. His majesty got out of the difficulty by ordering a gold tooth for each of them, but to even matters up ordered three United States molars for himself.

WANTED HER DOG UNWITCHED

Pennsylvania Woman Asked the Federal District Attorney for Help, but Got None.

Harrisburg.—"My dog is bewitched; what can you do to help me?" pleaded a woman at the district attorney's office.

"Its name is Lady. The woman that did it is a witch. My poor dog didn't eat for two weeks. Whenever I go away from home Lady keeps house for me, but this woman bewitched it, and I want the dog to get well again."

No one in the district attorney's office knew of any magic word that could unwitch the dog.

If Noah were a clothing maker—

Today—and he saw the gathering clouds in the market that the makers of High Art Clothes saw a year ago, he'd have filled his ark with woolens. The retail prices of are not as high as they would have been if the makers hadn't backed their judgment with big advance purchases of woolens. This foresight is clearly reflected in the fair prices that these famous clothes for Fall bear.

CAROLINA SECOND IN TAX

Only Nevada Shows a Greater Increase In Report by Roper.

Washington, Sept. 9.—Preliminary report made today by Daniel C. Roper, collector of internal revenue, reveals a phenomenal showing by his own State of South Carolina on comparative receipts from income and profits taxation for the fiscal years 1919 and 1918.

South Carolina's payments into the national treasury on this account were $17,200,000 for the year ending June 30, 1919, as compared with $7,884,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1918.

There was an increase of about 119 per cent in one year. It was by far the heaviest increase shown by any of the States but Nevada, which is hardly a State except politically and by way of divorce.

With the exception of Nevada, which showed an increase of 1,000 per cent, no other State showed anywhere near the percentage gains of South Carolina. The country as a whole turned in $243,019,000 less than for the preceding fiscal year, two very large deferred payments being due in the fiscal year of 1920.

Georgia paid in about 55 per cent more for the fiscal year of 1919 than for the fiscal year 1918, and North Carolina very nearly 50 per cent more.

A congressional committee headed by Representative Hull, of Iowa, will start a tour of the South this week visiting cantonments and aviation fields to make recommendations for their purchase or disposal.
