INCREASES YIELD OF WHEAT

Experiment of Treating Seed Electrically Meets With Success in England.

An interesting experiment as to the effect of electrically treating seed wheat before sowing has been carried out at Bodsham Green, Elmstead, Kent, during this season, by W. F. Pledge of the Victoria flour mills, Ashford, the London Times states. The variety of wheat chosen for the experiment was "red standard" and two adjoining plots were sown on November 13 and 14 last at the rate of three bushels to the acre, the seed on 'one plot being electrically treated and that on the other not. The land was treated exactly alike all through the year.

Recently the growing crops were inspected by a party, including R. L. Robb, lecturer on agriculture at the Southeastern Agricultural college,

A marked difference between the two plots was noticeable, the wheat on the treated portion being much the more vigorous in growth and habit, and promising, so far as the experts present were able to judge, a yield at least 20 per cent higher than that of the untreated plot. There were evident signs of rust, too, in the untreated crop, and it was significant fact that the other plot was, at any rate at the present stage, entirely free from this disease. It was the general opinion of those present that electricity is likely to become a very important factor in the cultivation of agricultural crops and that great developments along that line may be confidently anticipated in the near future.

HEART OF THE DOUGHBOY

Experiences of War Taught Him to Tackle Every Problem From Rock-Bottom Up.

Most of our soldiers went to the other side young boys. They came back men hardened by fire and experience. They will tell you that they have "figured out a new bunch of dope," or that they have "learned a rule or two about the little game of life." What they mean is that they have gone down to fundamentals and tackled every problem from rock-bot-

It was with the understanding that the doughboy is a new man and a problem in himself that Col. Arthur Woods, assistant to the secretary of war, laid out his plan of campaign for the war department's gigantic effort to get jobs for returned service men. "This," he told his assistants, "is not merely an employment idea. It is a new experiment in psychology. We must understand the soldier, the satior, the marine, right down to the ground, learn their problem minutely and take infinite pains to restore them to civilian life with as little friction and as much celerity as possible.

"These boys are coming home eagery, but also a little fearfully. We must bridge the gap that they have crossed during 1917 and 1918. America's future lies in her youth. The soldier drilled faithfully and patiently at home, must not be left in the lurch after what they have done for us."

The dark room, necessary evil, has always been the one rigid obstacle to the perfect flexibility of the photographic art. Now, however, the operator can carry a complete dark chamber along with him, and develop his expos-ures when and where he pleases. The "room" described and illustrated in Pepular Mechanics magazine packs in a case less than two feet long, about a foot wide, and four inches thick. It opens to a height, in the larger size, of 18 inches in front and 13 inches in back, with walls of light-proof fabric. Elastic cuffs at the side admit the operator's hands, while he looks through a hood in front, equipped with two shutters that are opened by pressure on the hood, and instantly closes on release, Trays and plates are inserted through a ruby-glassed door in the Scated at the various tables in the cabaret, dining and chatting, are such fascinating ladies as Fashion, Beauty, Excitement, Song, Frivolity, Pleasure, Slander and Pride. With their escorts they sit intent simply on dining and chatting, but as soon as the music strikes up a dance step, everything is changed, and the Golden Cababret becomes a whirl of merry dancers, whose greatest ambition in life seems to be keep dancing all night.

> One can very easily realize the impression that this scene makes upon Youth on his first visit to the cabaret, as he turns to Pleasure and says: "Pleasure, let me thank you. It's glorious! the music and the laughter; the air is sweet with the far faint odor of dying roses. Everywhere there are women's eyes that sparkle like the moonlight on a silver food substances.

Youth's enthusiasm however, is not dampened, and he says to Pleasure: "I think you are the end of the rainbow, and all the treasures of the world are in your keeping. I think you are the sunshine of a cloudless day and all the flowers of the earth look up to you."

Experience has a different point of view. He says: "I think Pleasure is but the stain of last night's wine, spilled upon the tablecloth. She is but a snowflake fallen into the ocean. Pleasure, my boy, is the last crimson flood that the setting sun has left to die in a cold gray sky."

Fire Protection

We beg to call your attention to the constantly increasing cost of labor and materials, and the consequent increase in the value aof buildings, machinery, merchandise and household effects, and would recommend that you look over your insurance with this in view, and advise us how much additional insurance you require.

As you know, the cost to construct a buildling today is from 35 to 100 per cent more than it was five years ago, and even taking into consideration depreciation, the replacement value, which is the adjustment basis in case of a fire, is greater than the cost of the building a few years ago. Machinery, merchandise and household effects have also increased in like-proportion.
