PLEASED AT RICHMOND

What Virginia Paper Had to Say of "Miss Blue Eyes"

Review of Geo. Hobart's new musical success "Miss Blue Eyes" taken from Richmond, Va., Times-Dispatch of March 12th, 1919:

"Miss Blue Eyes" sparkling and bright, elegantly costumed and as precious as an April day, twinkled into town last evening to open a two days engagement at the Academy. She brought with her a dozen other pairs of eyes of assorted colors, adorning faces of attractiveness and charm, their possessors in turn elegantly costumed. Their eyes, or their owners, at any rate, sang and danced, posed and paraded, in a manner to quite win our approbation. So much for the "eyes."

"In speaking of the play itself, purely musical comedy, we must speak with restraint lest we be not believed. If a cleverer comedy has visited this town of ours in recent months we have forgotten its name. If we had only seen the court scene in the last of the three acts we should have gone away satisfied, as George Hobart has invested it with more humor than we can describe in a short review. "The Butterfly on the Wheel" had a courtroom scene that thrilled; "Blue Eyes" has one that convulses.

"Cecilia Jensen plays the title role quite to our satisfaction. She is very pretty, sings well, and puts cleverness into her 'absinthe scene' on the road house porch. Peter MacArthur and Archie Folk play the law partners capably, the former with a quiet style a bit like Richard Carle, Clyde Long, as the chief of Police, puts a new twist in the character far and away better than any Rubie constable we have seen. Marie Kemp as Sylvia, fills the eye, wears stunning gowns and pleased us.

"The dancing contingent was 100 per cent A-1 first grade. Lamb and Goodrich staged a dance that embraced everything except evitation, and, even so, the little girl was off the ground about half the time. Musically, the play is well scored with catchy tunes, lustily sung. The melody of "Honeysuckle Inn" is inclined to linger in the memory and is the favorite without a doubt. The scenic investiture of "Blue Eyes" is artistic, the second act, showing the 'Inn' a striking fine set.

"The chorus attractive, costumed exceptionally well, and singing vociferously, if not too well, was always in the picture. Let us say whatever they lacked in numbers they made up in other respects. They certainly looked innocent and harmless enough."

"Miss Blue Eyes" comes to the Camden Opera House next Saturday evening, December 6th. Seats on sale Thursday morning at W. Robin Zemp's Drug Store.

"THE KISS BURGLAR"

To Be Seen At Camden Opera House Thursday December 11th.

No more pleasurable anticipation has been afforded local theatre-goers in several seasons than the announcement that Coutts and Tennis' original Cohan Theatre production "The Kiss Burglar", the most brilliant and fascinating of recent musical successes is to be presented at the Camden Opera House Thursday, Dec. 11th. It comes here direct from a six month's run at the George M. Cohan Theatre, the birthplace of many of the most popular musical entertainments of the last quarter of a century. Not in years have the exacting theatre-going public found a musical offering so completely to their liking as this latest musical craze, which early bookings, made previous to its opening on Broadway, prevented it running for another solid year in New York, and the genuine enthusiasm which crowded houses have accorded this irresistible musical comedy so far on its tour indicates that its popularity throughout the country will prove not one degree less phenomenal than its record making vogue with all classes of pleasure seekers in New York.

Much of the success of "The Kiss Burglar" is credited to its fresh and timely appealing story and effective manner in which mirth, melody, pathos, and originality has been harmoniously combined, while the tuneful songs with which its brilliant score abounds will become popular in every nook and corner of the land. The book and lyrics are from the pen of Glen MacDonough and the music from the pen of that popular American writer, Raymond Hubbell. An enormous company is carried which includes the famous "Peacock Alley" chorus, and the original Cohan Theatre production will make this the season's greatest musical comedy event. Sale of seats opens Wednesday morning at W. Robin Zemp's Drug Store.

New Auto Agency.

Mr. Charles L. Watkins, of the Haynes Motor Car Co., was in Camden this week and made a deal with Messrs. E. L. Moseley and Clyburn Taylor to take over the agency of the Haynes car in this territory. The firm will go under the name of the Moseley-Taylor Motor Co., and the young men expect to open a garage and show room as soon as they can get a suitable building.

MRS. TOM THUMB IS DEAD.

Was One of World's Most Famous Lilliputians.

Countess Primo Magri, known to the public as Mrs. Tom Thumb, one of the best known Lilliputians in the world, died yesterday in her home in Middleboro, Mass., at the age of 77 years, says the New York Evening Post. She had traveled around the world several times and for many years, with her first husband under the management of P. T. Barnum. Count Magri survives her.

Born in Middleboro, Mass., the Countess Magri outlived all of her professional associates. Her parents were of large stature and, with two exceptions, their children were of normal size. These two children were Lavinia Warren (her right name) and her sister Minnie, who was even smaller than Lavinia and died 35 years ago. At her birth she was of average size, weighing six pounds. She grew very slowly until she was nine years old and was 32 inches high and weighed 29 pounds when she stopped growing altogether. Her first appearance in public was at the age of seventeen years under the management of a cousin who operated a "floating palace of curiosities" on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers before the war.

In 1862 she met P. T. Barnum and her long public career began, which occupied over fifty years, her last appearance having been at Luna Park, Coney Island, the Lilliputian Village, a few years back, where she lived one summer with her husband, Count Magri. A grey-haired, lovable old lady who charmed the younger generation with her pleasant manners and her soft, sweet voice, brought back memories of their youth to the older generation who attended her receptions and listened to her tales of travel.

While Lavinia and her sister Minnie were traveling with Barnum she met Gen. Tom Thumb and they were married and lived many years together. He died thirty years ago, and a number of years ago she married Count Magri of Italy, also a dwarf, who became a naturalized American citizen before his marriage. She amassed a considerable fortune and had lived a retired life recently in the city of her birth.

During her career she traveled over the civilized world and had been introduced to nearly every crowned head and eminent person in every country she visited. "It has been asserted," said this remarkable little woman, "that General Tom Thumb had kissed more women than any living man. I can with equal assurance assert that I have shaken hands with more human beings in all stations of life than any other woman in existence. My travels have embraced Europe, Asia, Australia, Africa and America."
