too few "fighting" corpuscles. It's the work of these same red corpuscles to keep you free from fatigue. Being constantly tired out—depressed in body and mind—is almost a sure sign that your blood needs help for a time.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan is a standard remedy in cases of anemia (or bloodlessness). It supplies the iron and other properties your blood needs to catch up with its task of keeping you fresh and alert in every fibre.

Pepto-Mangan has the hearty endorsement of physicians; is an agreeable tonic to take, and may be had at any drug store in either liquid or tablet form. Both have same medicinal value.

Be sure to ask for Gude's. There is only one genuine Pepto-Mangan, and the name "Gude's" should be on the package.—Advertisement.

MRS. LEEDS NOT ROYAL PRINCESS

Recent Marriage to Christopher of Greece Did Not Give Her That Status.

PRINCE RENOUNCES HIS RANK

American Woman's Only Title Now Is Countess Gluecksburg, Official Athens Gazette Says—Similar Cases Recalled.

New York.—Cable dispatches from Athens effectively contradict the assumption that Mrs. William B. Leeds, through her recent marriage to Prince Christopher, youngest brother of former King Constantine of Greece, acquired the status of a princess of the blood and the title of "Royal Highness." The latest issues of the Official Gazette of Athens publish an announcement, by the Hellenic government, in the name of the crown, that Prince Christopher, before he married Mrs. Leeds, was obliged to renounce his rank as a prince of the sovereign house of Greece and his place in the line of succession to the throne. The renunciation automatically erased his name from the official roster of the princes and princesses of the royal house.

Renounces Danish Rank.
Nor was this the only renunciation that the prince was compelled to make in order to obtain the consent of his brother, the present King Alexander, and the consent of the Hellenic government. He was a royal prince of Denmark, and he was obliged to renounce his Danish royal rank and his place in the line of Danish succession.

His father, the late King George, assassinated at Salonika in 1913, was a prince of the reigning house of Denmark prior to his election to the throne of Greece. He was so apprehensive as to the tenure of his kingship in Greece that he required the protecting powers, Great Britain, France and Russia, to guarantee him an income of $80,000 a year as long as he lived, and to permit him to retain his royal rank and status in the house of Denmark. All of his sons and grandsons continue, therefore, to rank as princes of Denmark, all except Christopher. The king and government of Denmark agreed to give their consent to the marriage only after this further renunciation.

According to the Official Gazette, the former Prince Christopher was rewarded for the various surrenders of royal rank with the consent of the kings and governments of Greece and Denmark to the union with Mrs. Leeds and with the rank of count in the Danish nobility. His title is now Count Gluecksburg, and that is the only title that the former Mrs. Leeds may lay claim to. She is not a princess of either Greece or Denmark, and on her appearance at any monarchical court would have to be content with the title of Countess Gluecksburg.

A Similar Case.
A former instance of similar renunciation occurred when Prince Aage of Denmark, eldest son of Prince Waldemar and of Princess Marie of France, married the daughter of Count Calvi di Bergolo, minister plenipotentiary of Italy at Copenhagen. He was not permitted to marry the girl he loved until he surrendered his royal rank and right of succession and had accepted the rank of ordinary noble with the title of Count Rosenberg.

Still another case was that of Prince Frederick of Schleswig-Holstein, who fell in love with Miss Mary Esther Lee of New York and was not permitted to marry her, as he did in 1864, until he had definitely renounced his status and prerogatives as a prince of the blood. Still another instance was that of Duke Henry Borwin of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, who married the former Miss Elizabeth Pratt of Kingston, N. Y., at Dover, England, in 1911. The marriage was declared invalid in 1913 by the Supreme Court of the Grand Duchy because it was held that the duke had evaded and violated the laws of his country by marrying without official sanction.

In all the long list of American women that have married foreigners of rank and title, only one, Miss Alice Heine of New Orleans, ever entered the royal circle. Her first husband was Armand, Duc de Richelieu, and after his death she became the consort of Albert, prince of Monaco, a ruling sovereign in his own right.

Bulgaria Leads Profiteers in Chains Through Streets

Usurers, blackmailers and profiteers are being placarded and marched in chains through the streets and market places of Bulgarian cities, according to advices received from Berne, Switzerland. This public exposure, which recalls the medieval pillory, is said to be producing good results.

"Excuse me!"
"I beg your pardon!"
"Be sure to come and see us!"
"I've had a lovely time."
"We've never had a cross word since we've been married!"
"I'll pay you this to-morrow, sure."
"I'd rather have my Ford than your big car."
"I'd trust my husband anywhere."
"Oh, it's no trouble at all!"
"It isn't the money, it's the principle of the thing."

Some Facts Worth Knowing
The white people of Florida are the richest of any of the Southern States, with a per capita wealth of $2,200. Texas is next with $2,140, and South Carolina is third with $1,900. The number of live stock in South Carolina has increased nearly 200 per cent in the past five years, or to be exact from 17,000,000 in January, 1913 to 47,000,000 in 1919. South Carolina has the least number of dairy cattle of any Southern State, except Florida. Dairying in nearly all other states is very profitable and could be made so in South Carolina. South Carolina produces less wool than any state in the Union, and it is an extremely profitable business. South Carolina had in 1910 the least number of hogs, (4-legged variety), of any Southern state, and there is nothing more profitable for the farmer. South Carolina has the least number of cattle of any Southern state. Taking all crops combined raised in Southern states, South Carolina farms are the most productive per acre. When hogs and cattle are more generally raised in South Carolina it will become the richest section of similar area in the world. The future of South Carolina depends not so much on its agricultural products, as it does upon the extent to which our farmers take up stock raising and dairying, not to mention sheep and wool, as a means of offsetting the ravages of the boll weevil.
