Forget-me-nots.
Dainty little blooms of blue,
Dear to lovers hearts are you,
For the very name you bear
Lips of love and breathes love's prayer.

May not friendship claim you too,
Dainty bloom of sky-vent hue?
May not dear old comradeship
Speak your name with fervent lip?

They stars of dainty blue,
May the months be swift and few
While my friend and I must say—
"We remember while away."

Purple petals, never dew,
More shall pearls it's beads on you;
But, as gentle remembrances,
You, though dead, shall speak of her.

In Memoriam.
Entered into Life Eternal in Camden S. C., just at the break of day Thursday September 23rd, 1920, Margaret Kennedy Thompson, beloved wife of R. Blair DeLoache. The beautiful dawn was fit for the passing of such a life, into Eternal day. Lovely in character and in appearance and of unusual charm she made many true friends, radiating brightness where ever she might be. Her devoted faithfulness to the members of her family and friends will be an incentive to them to fulfill courageously life's duties. For several years she had been very frail, but her brave fight to regain health, and her wonderful patience, and trust the last few months must be a lesson and an example to us all, who must each in turn travel the same road through the "Valley of the Shadow."

The funeral service was held in the little home she loved and had made so happy and bright for her husband and three young daughters. She lies now under a blanket of exquisite flowers in our quiet old Quaker cemetery awaiting the Resurrection morn.

"I do believe that just the same sweet face
But glorified, is waiting in the place
Where we shall meet, if only I
Am accounted worthy in that by and by.

I do believe that God will give a sweet surprise,
To tear stained saddened eyes.
When we awake I am quiet sure,
We shall be glad, that for a little while
We were so sad."
