

CAMDEN HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL TEAM HAS FINE RECORD

The Camden High School Football Team has had a bright and most successful season, the only dark spot being the Columbia game, the details of which are known by all who are interested in the team, and will not be repeated here. The schedule which follows shows that they have scored 88 points to 22 by their opponents.

Schedule:

Summer 0	Camden 6
Summer 7	Camden 7
Wilmington Tr. School 0	Camden 34
Darlington 7	Camden 21
Wilmington Tr. School 0	Camden 7
Orangeburg 7	Camden 12
Ratesburg-Leesville 0	Camden 65
Mullins 0	Camden 84
Columbia 1	Camden 0

The numerous factors which contributed to the team's success will be mentioned, but first comes the team itself. Not merely to the regular players, but to the entire squad as a whole that worked constantly to put the best eleven possible on the field, and the greatest glory go. A football team can not be made from eleven good players, and the faithful subs who had to watch the games from the sidelines or wait anxiously at home for the returns, have every right to swell their chests with pride in the realization that they did their valuable part in making the C. H. S. football team of 1920 a remarkable machine, and those of them who actually got into the fray showed the same qualities as the regulars.

Though heavily out-weighted by every opponent the "Bull Dogs" fought their way to victory after victory by speed, determination and team-work and showed a remarkable ability to come back in every game in which they did not get a comfortable lead on their opponents at the start.

It is impossible to give space to each individual, but the regulars who stood the strain of battle game after game should be mentioned separately.

First, Captain Hay sometimes known as "Son" who was given his title and position by the team of 1919 after he had shown marked ability as a quarter-back during last season. Hay played quarter-back and full-back this season, and was always a thoroughly dependable and determined man on both of the offensive and defensive play. He was one of the most consistently good players on the team.

Then, Bennie Smith, of "Gus" if you wish, who played full-back usually, but who also showed class as a quarter-back. Bennie is a great foot ball player and has ability in every department of the game. Though not in the best condition at the last of the season, it is realized by all who saw the games that Bennie was a powerful asset to the squad.

Richard Kirkland, The Speed Demon, was one of the regular halfbacks, but also did well when called upon to pilot the team from the quarter-back's station. Give Richard a little interference and he will hand back a substantial gain. Give him fairly good interference and he will turn in 6 points without even breathing hard. Richard is also a hard and clean-tackler.

Charlie Kirkland, second only to his brother in speed, also was one of the regular halfbacks, but was called upon to play nearly every position in the line-up, and played them all exceedingly well. A man who can play any position fairly well is a valuable man to any team. The value of a man that can play any position like Charlie does, can not be estimated.

The other half-back was Haines, "Hoodie" or the "Duo-Driver" who won his nick-name by his ability to hit the line hard and often. This was "Hoodie's" first year on the squad, but it is suspected that he had seen a football somewhere before, for it was in his opening game of the season that he first nobly displayed the powers of a battering ram. Haines has several more years of High School football coming to him and if he keeps the stride he has started, he will soon be second to none.

Left End, Evans. Take your choice between "Red" and "Fire," but never mind what you call him. Albert was the very best left end Camden had this season. Incidentally Camden had a better left end this season than any other High School in the State. More could easily be said of "Red," but it seems this is enough.

Right End, Boykin. "Jo" seemed to always be right there when anything started his way, and unless he was actually held by two or three opponents he usually "messed 'em up." "Vardie" ruined more fake plays attempted by opponents than any other man on the team, and throwing a forward pass into his territory was like dropping a grain of corn in a bucket of tar.

Left Tackle, Arthur Smith. Arthur had less practice than any other member of the squad as he lives in the country and could not attend practice regularly. However, he seemed to be a natural football player, and what he lacked in training he made up for in determination. When called upon to carry the ball Arthur seldom failed to gain the required distance.

Right Tackle, Watts. "Lank" is in the same from the first whistle until the last with everything that he has, and being big and strong has a great deal to give. His "never give up" spirit did much to keep up confidence of the team at critical times. "Lank" was a mighty valuable man and will certainly be missed next year.

Left Guard, Wallace. That elusive little player that was so often seen cavorting around among the opponents backfield before their plays ever got under way. How he got there remains a mystery, but the facts are unaltered. Wallace was not tried at guard until the second game of the season, but once tried he got the job for keeps.

Right Guard, Rush, who hardly knew what a football was when the season began developed so rapidly that by the middle of the season he was demonstrating to his more experienced team-mates the fine art of defeending the strip of territory allotted to him. Though light and without previous experience his aggressiveness made him one of the mainstays of the line.

Last (I will leave it to anyone whether it is "least" or not) comes the Center, old "Bear" Bursett. The Center starts every offensive play, and if a play isn't started right it has little chance of success. Bursett's record for starting plays is due to his remarkably accurate passing. The "Bear" is aggressive and powerful, and valiantly defended the center of the line when on the defensive.

The team played remarkably well as a unit. The one idea in the mind of each player being to win, regardless of who might get the greatest credit for the unselfish spirit of the quarterback in seeing that the other players did the scoring was noticeable throughout the season.

Great credit must go to the faculty and student body of the Schools who did everything in their power to encourage the team and keep up their enthusiasm and determination to win. Before the game in Orangeburg the team received no less than 15 telegrams of encouragement from their faculty and friends. Is it any wonder that they won?

Then the splendid moral support and most liberal financial aid from the townspeople. The team cannot express its gratitude for this valuable assistance which was most generously rendered throughout the season, and not merely at the last when they were apparent contenders for State honors, and feels badly for their supporters sake as well as for their own that they were not allowed to compete for Sectional and State honors.

Finally, the power behind the throne, Mr. Richards, the coach. No credit can be taken from a team to be given to a coach, but the coach can do much toward bringing out the abilities of a player which are very often buried far below the surface. Being quick to perceive a weakness, and untiring in his efforts to correct it, he has built up a team with a remarkable varied attack and a splendid defense for every style of play. It has been said that he was never satisfied however well the boys did; probably an exaggeration, but suppose at some point during the season he had become thoroughly satisfied with his aim. You can imagine the results. The season of 1919 was not half over before he was aiming at the 1920 championship, and the team record proves that he was not shooting at the moon with the hopes of hitting the tree tops. He is a most generous coach; every working for the interests of the team and not for the glory that might reflect on him. When Mr. T. L. Alexander who has had considerable experience in football offered assistance he was given free rein with the team whenever he could attend practice and is gladly given credit for his success.

Summed up: a remarkable coach, a superb team, and unfilled support.
