Women Use Long Distance

Many women who utilize the telephone in the home so efficiently for housekeeping and local social matters do not realize that it has the same long distance reach as the Bell telephone in the business office.

Friends and relatives in distant cities can be reached quickly at small cost by long distance telephone after 8:30 o'clock at night.

The station to station service saves you from 20 to 75 per cent on your calls.

Ask Long Distance for rates and try this service.

RECALLS OLD SIX-DAY RACES

Death of "Lepper" Hughes Brings Back Period of Sports That Once Held Full Sway.

The death a few days ago of "Lepper" Hughes, one of the old guard of the six-day go-as-you-please races which were conducted annually in the old Madison Square garden, recalls a period when that portion of the metropolitan public which hates to go to bed before daylight pursued one of its fads to the limit, remarks the New York Herald.

These six-day grinds drew great crowds. Many persons virtually lived the entire week in the foul atmosphere of the dingy old building and watched the men as they walked or trotted their way wearily round and round the area. Prize money was big and the contests had an international flavor, the English champion, Charlie Rowell, being a participant on more than one occasion, and the winner of one competition important from a prize money viewpoint.

"Lepper" Hughes and Paddy Fitzgerald of Long Island City were invariably on hand when these so-called endurance tests were decided, and each had a devoted following. Both were tall and slim in build, while Rowell was stocky, and had a short, quick stride which rolled the miles behind him in a way which made it difficult for his competitors to keep near him. England has long been famous for the quality of her distance runners, and Rowell was one of her very best.

The death of Hughes will also recall to many the New York of the days when there was not much life after dark north of Twenty-third street and the out-of-town visitor eager to see the sights had to content himself with what the Bowery and Sixth avenue afforded.

FURS NO MARK OF RICHES

Even the Poorest Farmers of Roumania Wear Collars and Hats of Finest Astrakan.

The poorest farmer in the Near East can afford astrakan collars and hats; and the man without a good piece of fur on his overcoat collar or a whole fur lining is almost always a beggar or a foreigner from America or western Europe, where these things cost money.

Nobody wears more fur lining or higher astrakan hats than the cab drivers.

These men comport themselves with a dignity equaled by no single other class of men in the world, unless it be by the priests of the Greek church.

A long black plush garment, tight at the collar and belted at the waist by a bath robe cord, envelopes them from head to foot. Because it is lined with fur, this garment makes a man look far bigger than he really is. And the high conical astrakan cap, like a curly dunce cap, adds to his stature.

Many of the drivers are said to belong to a curious religious sect originating in Russia, a sect involving celibacy. They spurn friendship with women as likely to decrease their love for their horses.

Whether this is true or not, it is certain that the cab drivers are the most picturesque figures in Bucharest, outshining even the corseted and rouged Roumanian army officers.

Long Pigeon Flight

One of the longest pigeon flights on record will be attempted from Edmonton, Alberta, to San Antonio, Tex. Arrangements for the flight have been made between the Edmonton Homing club and the San Antonio Homing club. The distance is 2,000 miles.

Between 40 and 50 homing pigeons will be shipped from San Antonio and liberated there by W. Lees, president of the Edmonton Homing club.

The longest flight on record, according to information, was from Rome to Liverpool, a distance of more than a thousand miles, over difficult country.—Brooklyn Eagle.

France Testing New Roads.

Contrary to past practice, composition road surfaces are being put down by the French highway authorities in the Rhone valley. At Givors a test is being made of two inches of an Indian composition. This has a cement basis and is guaranteed for 15 years. The road authorities have expressed their willingness to experiment with composition surfaces on roads that require repairs at the rate of the amount of $10,000 since they have been completely replaced. Paris War Library

Over 100,000 volumes and a host of maps, journals, books, and documents, collected by the French government, and a building of 1,200,000 cubic feet, five miles long, containing the complete historical and photographic records of the first world war, are being transferred to the United States as a gift of the French government. The gift is being made to the University of California, and the books are being stored in the new building at San Diego.

Decorum

At a dinner given at the New York Waldorf-Astoria hotel, the following incident occurred: A man named M. Meek, who was sitting next to the host, was talking a paper of fiction.
