By Miss Louise Nettles

John D. Kennedy, Chapter Met.

The March meeting of the above chapter was held at the home of Mrs. W. J. Dunn, Monday afternoon with Mesdames Eugene Brown, Scott Dunn and Hughie Tindal as assistant hostesses. Miss Louise Nettles presided and in the absence of Mrs. N. C. Arnett the chapter secretary, Mrs. S. C. Zemp discharged the duties of that office. Mrs. W. J. Dunn acted as treasurer.

The committee of which Mrs. F. Leslie Zemp is chairman was authorized to buy a State Flag, five by eight feet, as Mr. Richards, the superintendent thought that the most desirable size. The chapter also decided to have the flag of the Kirkwood Rangers framed and hung in the Camden library and the members agreed to pay 25 cents each to defray the expense of $25 or $30. This is the flag presented the chapter by Mr. John Boykin, and is the original banner under which the Kirkwood Rangers went out commanded by Col. William H. Shannon in 1861. It was made by the nuns in Columbia, the material used from a blue silk dress of the wife of Governor Pickens and the medallions in the center was blessed by the Pope. It is a beautiful and valuable souvenir of the Confederacy and the local U. D. C. chapter is the proud possessor of it. The chapter has willed to keep it in Camden to be seen by and to inspire the descendants of the men who fought so gallantly to defend it. It will also be an historical and decorative way an addition to our public library. Any one desiring to contribute to the framing of this beautiful relic of an unforgetting past will please leave the contribution at the Camden Library with the chapter president.

After business the historian, Miss Léila Shannon read, "Old Times at Mulberry Plantation," written by the graceful and fluent pen of Mrs. Esther Davis, a pen now stilled by death. This paper so beautifully read by our chapter historian brought back in fancy its charming naturalness to the writer, once a beloved and faithful member of the chapter and whose memory is still loved and honored.

We were glad to have with us Mrs. S. K. Winkler, who has never removed her membership from the chapter named in honor of her father. The president invited Mrs. Winkler to say a few words to the chapter which she did in her usual graceful and gracious manner.

After the adjournment the hostess served a salad course with coffee.

Fur and Long.

A stranger strolled up to a colored prisoner, who was taking a long interval of rest between two heaves of a pick. "Well, Sam, what crime did you commit to be put in overalls and under guard?" "Ah went on a furlong, suh." "You mean you went on a furlough." "No, boss, it was a sho-nuff furlong. Ah went too fur, and Ah stayed too long."—Infantry Journal.

Three hundred thousand troops, prisoners of war and all the criminals in China labored 15 years to build the Great Wall of China. It is 2,000 miles in length, and was built to keep back the Tartar hordes, which for 2,000 years devastated Asia and even Europe from time to time.

Death of Miss Charlotte Kershaw.
With the passing of Miss Charlotte Kershaw, which occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Bratton deLoach, at 1 p. m. Wednesday, March 7th, passes from Camden, the last of a name, the most prominent in the history of the town. She was the daughter of the late Colonel Joseph Bravard Kershaw, and his wife Lucretia Douglas Kershaw and spent her life in the old town that her forebears had been such generous benefactors of. If he lives most who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best, then she lived a life much longer than that counted by years, for her life was filled with all the dignity, grace and virtue that could be crowded into it. She was a true southern woman, to the manner born, and loyal to every southern instinct of her life. In her vision of life there was no place for artificiality, affectation or pretense. Prominent position meant to her not an exaltation of self, but an opportunity to be more useful and to help the greatest number. She had a heart for humanity in which dwelt all that was genuine, pure and holy. She walked at all times with her hand in that of the Master and the path she trod was one His feet had made.

"And friends, dear friends, Although we meet around her bier to weep, Let one, most-loving of you all, say Not a tear must o'er her fall, He giveth His beloved sleep."

The funeral services were solemnized Thursday afternoon from Grace Episcopal church, the church that has claimed her life-long devotion and all that was mortal was carried to the old Quaker cemetery, where her forebears for many generations sleep, where the myrtle and ivy is ever green, and the mocking bird pours forth his songs in the night. There to peacefully rest until God's finger touches her and she awakes in the bright sunlight of a glorious resurrection.

"Oh Death, where is thy sting? Oh Grave, where is thy victory?"

"For when her gentle spirit fled, To realms above the azure dome, With out-stretched arms God's angel said, Welcome to heaven's home, sweet home."

Potatoes are to be raised on the Tempalhofer Fields on the outskirts of Berlin. These fields were once the largest of the German military training camps and since the Armistice they have been used as public playgrounds.

The county commissioners of El Paso county, Colorado, have ordered signboards on public highways of the county removed within 90 days. The signboards obstruct highway, deface the scenery and are dangerous to travelers, the commissioners' resolution says.

From 12 to 14 years have been added to the average human life in the last half century due to the progress of medical science. But 600,000 persons still die in the United States annually from preventable diseases.

MEMORIAL BRIDGE

To Mark Crossing of Delaware River by General Washington.

One hundred and forty-six years ago stirring events were tearing the swaddling clothes from a new-born nation giving it, instead, a raiment of power and life. Men and women, filled with divine fire of patriotism, fought and died that this might be. Hill and vale was made sacred by their sacrifice.

Today, these sites where the gain farmer crushed and pushed back the Redcoat and hired Hessian, are preserved in history, says the New York Evening Telegram. But it is done, in many cases, by only a rough-hewn stone or a bronze tablet.

Where Washington crossed the Delaware, on the New Jersey side of the stream, a simple monument commemorates that spectacular trip of Christmas night, 1776.

This, it has been agreed by two great states, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, is not fitting and a joint resolution has been introduced in the house of representatives providing for the construction of a memorial bridge at the point where the first president of the United States, at the head of his nondescript army, braved the crashing ice and the bitter cold to attack the enemies of freedom.

The scene of that daring race with the elements has fired the imaginations of generations, yet all these years it has practically gone unmarked. Now, suitable parks are to be established at the approaches to the bridge, which will be located between the Pennsylvania Railroad and Reading Railroad bridges, about seven miles from Trenton.

These parks will each take in many acres of ground, fronting on the river and an effort will be made to make them appeal and be available as recreation centres. Proper landings will be made for boats and the railroads will open stations conveniently near.

The bridge, it is estimated, will cost $800,000, New Jersey and Pennsylvania to each contribute one-quarter of the sum, the balance to be taken care of by the National Treasury.

It will be composed of thirteen sections or arches, and each of the thirteen original states will have an arch dedicated to it for its share in the struggle for independence.

Plans are under way to have the thirteen states make arrangements to place their coats of arms on the arches assigned to them and short accounts of their part in the war that made for Right and Justice.

December 25, 1926, will be the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Trenton, which won success for the American army after its general led it across the Delaware, and it is hoped the bridge and parks will be completed and the dedication made the centre of the celebration which will take place.

A National Washington Crossing Commission has been authorized. It will consist of fifteen members, five to be appointed by the president of the United States, and five each by the governors of New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

The historic spot, in Revolutionary days used as a ferry, was the connecting link between Trenton and Philadelphia. The Trenton chamber of commerce is giving the plan for the bridge its heartiest support and it is making a leading part in bringing it to the attention of the people.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE

XLIV.—UTAH

THE first white excursion into Utah dates back to 1540 when a party of Spaniards sent out by Coronado succeeded in penetrating to the Colorado river. There is no authentic record of further explorations until over 200 years had elapsed. In 1776 two Franciscan friars, in their attempt to find the shortest way to the Pacific, went from Santa Fe to Utah Lake. The Great Salt Lake, however, was not discovered until 1824, when James Bridges, a trapper, in wandering through this region came upon this huge, inland, salt sea.

But the real history of Utah begins with the rise of Mormon power there. Discouraged by the agitation in Illinois and Missouri, the Mormons decided to emigrate to the great West. In large caravans they traveled across the plains and in 1847 came to Salt Lake City where they settled. Here they flourished, increasing their numbers and by 1852 they reached a total in this vicinity of over 15,000. Meanwhile, in 1843, by the terms of the treaty of peace with Mexico, a huge western tract, of which Utah was a part, was ceded to the United States. As no definite government was arranged for, the control of affairs locally was for a number of years entirely in the hands of the officers of the Mormon church. They, accordingly, made up a constitution and organized under the name of the State of Deseret. This is a word taken from the Book of Mormon, and signifies, "Industry." Application was made for admission to the Union, but this was refused and the federal government instead organized the Territory of Utah in 1850. The first governor was Brigham Young, the successor of Joseph Smith and president of the Mormon church.

The attempt to do away with polygamy met with little success until in 1890 the Mormon church finally agreed not to countenance it. Meanwhile, growing antagonism between the Mormons and non-Mormons verged nearly on civil war. Finally a general amnesty was declared and after many requests Utah was accepted as the forty-fifth state of the Union in 1896.

Cotton Seed

Seeing the need in this County of a better short staple cotton and a cotton that will mature earlier than the varieties now planted I've purchased 1,000 bushels of the Salsbury planting seed for distribution. These seed were grown on the largest cotton farm in the world—a 41,000 acre farm where the seasons are about two weeks later than our own. Therefore, cotton grown from these seed will mature earlier than if seed were grown in a warmer climate. This cotton is extra prolific and grows staple one and one-sixteenth inches in length which always brings a good premium over the shorter lengths. As a money crop this cotton led all others on tests at the Mississippi Agricultural College.
