

Mrs. Byrd Has Used Teethina For Ten Years

"I have used Teethina with my babies for the last ten years; I just wouldn't be without it and keep it on hand all the time," writes Mrs. H. A. Byrd, Route A, Box 106, Atmore, Ala.

"As soon as my babies began to cut their teeth I started giving them Teethina and they never had a bit of trouble like many babies have. I gave it for colic, diarrhoea and summer complaint, and it always relieved them and kept them healthy and good-tempered."

Careful Mothers should keep Teethina handy, as it is most helpful in allaying the pain and distress of teething as well as colic and other infantile troubles.

Teethina is sold by all druggists, or send 30c to the Moffett Laboratories, Columbus, Ga., for a package and a free booklet about babies.

General News Notes

Advices from Berlin are to the effect that Grover Bergdoll, draft dodger and escaped prisoner, will probably soon return to America. Germany, it is understood, is growing tired of the "irritations" growing out of the presence of Bergdoll on German soil.

Captain John J. Deeming, U. S. army quartermaster, was found shot to death in his office in Boston Monday morning. Large sums of money were known to be in his possession. The police express the belief that he committed suicide. During the war Captain Deeming had charge of the loading of overseas vessels at Hoboken, N. J.

Carlisle, Pa., was visited by a disastrous fire Monday morning, the loss totaling $250,000.

A man was arrested at Camden, N. J., Monday on a charge of stealing $2,500 worth of talking machine records from a Camden manufacturing plant.

George Horace Lorimer on Monday celebrated his twenty-fifth anniversary as editor of the Saturday Evening Post.

Rebecca J. Mason, 94, negro woman of Philadelphia, was burned to death Saturday, her clothes having been set on fire, supposedly by her corn cob pipe after she had fallen asleep.

General Richard Henry Pratt, for many years superintendent of the Indian school at Carlisle, Pa., died Sunday at San Francisco, aged 84 years.

An unidentified man leaped from the lower steel arch bridge into the whirlpool rapids below Niagara falls Monday at midnight. The jump is of 200 feet.

Thirty-six former ministers of the Persian government have pledged themselves to the abolishment of the present form of government and the establishment of a republic.

The body of Henrietta Coffin, 65, spinster and recluse, was found dead in a dingy tenement in New York, Tuesday. She was known as the "silent woman." She had jewelry, bonds and cash to the value of $100,000.

John Vetoski, a farm hand has made an alleged confession to the police of Batavia, N. Y., in which he tells of the murder on March 11 of three persons, two women and one man, in Genesee county. He shot Thomas Whaley and his wife and beat Mrs. George W. Morse to death with an ax handle.

Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany, has set himself up as a business man in Berlin. He is selling farm implements to German farmers.

Anthony Vanilla, second offender, was sentenced to Sing Sing for forty years for the theft of $448,000 by a judge in Brooklyn, N. Y., Tuesday.

Van Gordon, prominent investment broker of Casper, was shot to death by a sheriff at Douglas, Wyoming, Monday night. Gordon was accused of murdering his wife and son, 12, on Sunday.

Rev. William Neihoff, assistant at a Wilmington, Del., Catholic church, eloped with an 18-year-old girl to Elkton, Md., last Friday night, where the couple were married. The priest automatically is unfrocked.

McAdoo has defeated Underwood overwhelmingly in the Georgia preferential primaries—more than four to one.

Coolidge has large plurality in the preferential primaries of North Dakota and Hiram Johnson and LaFollette are nip and tuck for second place.

Mrs. Essie Gross, 25, is on trial in New York on the charge of killing her husband. She has been careful to pick a jury of young men, all of them being men who look good humored, all of them stout and all but two married. Her defense is that she killed her husband in a struggle over a gun following a quarrel over the baby she wanted but did not have.

Miss Mabel Bennett was killed and two men with her were injured when an airplane in which they were traveling, fell near Dermott, Arkansas, Wednesday.

Three bandits held up a jewelry manufacturing concern in Detroit, Mich., Wednesday and got away with $100,000 worth of loot.

Dr. Zoe Wilkins, wealthy osteopath, and adventuress in matrimony, was found dead in her home in Kansas City, Mo., Tuesday. The woman was last seen alive the previous Saturday night. She had had four husbands. Her body was badly mutilated when found.

It is an excellent plan before washing new flannels to soak them for a quarter of an hour in cold water with a handful of salt. Then wash them in the ordinary way. This makes the washing much easier and the articles look beautiful when dry. If new colored goods are allowed to stand in salt water and rinsed in the same water, there is no chance of the color running.

First Umbrella Shocked Residents of Windsor

When we trip forth on a rainy day with a wide-spread umbrella, secure in the feeling that our best interests will not be ruined by errant raindrops, we do not think we are doing anything eccentric or modern. To be sure, an umbrella is neither modern nor eccentric, so far as the present-day meanings of the words are concerned. But the umbrella is, nevertheless, comparatively modern, when we consider that it is less than 200 years old.

Among old Colonial records in New England there is an indignant account of the atrocious actions of a society of the bells of Windsor, Conn. It seems that the fair dame walked forth upon a rainy day, bearing above her haughty head an umbrella that had been brought to her from the West Indies. The good townspeople, shocked and dismayed at such frivolity, thronged about her, open-mouthed, and to show their disapproval, hoisted their large sleeves on long spoon handles, and followed her with ridiculous, miming steps.

In 1797 there was but one umbrella in Cambridge, Mass., and the owner of it made many a good penny renting it out by the hour to cautious persons who happened to be caught out in the rain. The reason why umbrellas were so slow to become generally adopted probably was because people of means did not travel on foot, so had not great need of umbrellas, and those without means did not possess clothing so fine that it must be protected from the rain.

Women carried umbrellas long before men could deign to adopt them. It was considered effeminate and rather below the dignity of the hardy man to go about under the shelter of a flimsy umbrella.

Stone Rots When Sick

Sound through the years in their own country air, many different kinds of freestones soon suffer if removed to another climate or to cities. Palmswick stone, for instance, beautiful and durable on the Cotswolds of England, became sick and sorry looking when introduced into the fabric of Westminster Abbey.

Other varieties of stone are sensitive to change, also. Bath stone has been used for centuries for building in England, but Bath stone is delicate, and falls a victim to disease in bad air. It is obtained more or less like coal from underground galleries rather than from quarries, and it must not be brought to the surface in winter or it will not weather hard. It must be nursed and matured before it is used, and unless it is set the right way of the grain it will not wear.

Got His Dates Mixed

A friend from out of town called at my office and invited me to lunch. The conversation led to subjects of family, health and so on. My friend asked how old I was. I said I was forty-two, though I am sixty-two.

"Well," he replied, "you look about forty-two."

Each of us knew the other was lying, but, of course, there were no accusations.

About two weeks later we met again, and lunched together.

My friend wanted to know how old my son was, and accidentally I told him the truth.

He studied for a moment, and then said: "You're a cheerful liar, John, and the youngest father I've ever known. You must have been about three when your son was born."

Sir John Mandeville's Story

Sir John Mandeville, whose adventurous career came to an end at Liege over 650 years ago, was the first Englishman to visit the Far East and write an account of his travels in the English language.

Sir John's account of his journey into unknown lands sounds very much like Baron Munchausen, for he apparently accepted as sober-truth all the legends and wonders which were poured into his credulous ear.

For two centuries after his death Mandeville's work was recognized as an authority on all questions of Oriental geography.—Detroit News.

Relics in Old House

Workmen in tearing down the Seth Gay house which was built at Gardner, Me., 140 years ago, found boards 26 inches to 3 feet in width, hand-forged nails, lock-jointed timbers, door frames and door casings with moldings each made from one piece of lumber, says the New York World.

Walls were planked, lathed and plastered, and in the bottom story they were brick lined and plastered and each room contained its fireplace. An old newspaper dated 101 years ago was found in a portion of the wall.

Experienced

A victim of chronic bronchitis called on a doctor to be examined. The doctor, after careful questioning, assured the patient that the ailment would respond readily to treatment. "I suppose you must have had a great deal of experience with this disease?" said the sufferer.

The doctor smiled wisely, and replied: "Why, my dear sir, I've had bronchitis myself for over fifteen years."—St. Louis Christian Evangelist.
