Following up a recommendation of the grand jury and a ruling by Judge Sease, Sheriff Hunt of Sumter county, has notified the filling stations beyond city limits that they must cease Sunday sales of gasoline. The sheriff promises that he will see that the town filling stations are also shut up tight on Sundays.

Mayor S. C. Carter wrote Mr. H. L. Schlosburg at Camden this week thanking him for the confidence he has displayed in Chester by erecting such a handsome and costly building here; and has had a reply from Mr. Schlosburg, who deeply appreciated the words of the Mayor and said it will be the ambition of his life to run a business that will be in keeping in every way with his new building. Chester Reporter.

We are not inclined to believe that the attempts to secure clemency for Frank Harrell, one of the two men under conviction for the slaying of Major McLeary, will get very far. Harrell may not have had as much to do with the actual slaying of the army officer as King; but he was no doubt fully in sympathy with all that was done, and his behavior following the foul crime was much more like that of a thoroughly guilty man, bent on escaping the consequences of his deed, than that of a man who had been forced into the crime against his wishes, and wanted to make amends. Chester Reporter.

Retention of Caesar's Head as a summer assembly ground for the Baptist denomination of the state appears probable, as a result of a meeting of the Baptist General Board of South Carolina, held in Columbia last Friday. The board voted to ask Furman university to postpone sale of the mountain property until after the meeting of the Baptist state convention in Spartanburg in December when a special committee on the Baptist Summer Assembly will report recommendations regarding the possible retention of the mountain resort, and developing it for assembly purposes. The board also approved the allocation, made by the "Committee of 35," at a recent meeting here, of funds to be raised by the Baptists of the state next year, the goal of which is $1,100,000. The meeting of the board was held in the Sunday school building of the First Baptist church here, Rev. J. Dean Crain, of Columbia, president, a native of Greenville county, presiding. The sale of the Caesar's Head property has already been negotiated, a Greenville company to pay $550,000 for it, the trustees of Furman having arranged this. The sale, now, however, it is said, will be held up, pending action by the state convention in December.

As is already well known to all reading people, that in addition to serious constitutional amendments voted upon in the November election, the ten-million dollar bond issue for education, is the most important of all. Some of the state educational institutions are presuming it will carry, but as for that it is hard to say at this time. Winthrop is asking for a million and a half of the proposed ten millions in order to enlarge the plant so as to accommodate 1,700 girls. It would seem common justice that the state provide a college education for all who ask for it or none. The voters of the state should know just exactly what they are doing when they vote this bond issue. It must be remembered that it costs the state from $200 to $500 a year for each student in the state colleges, and with the increased attendance provided for, it will necessarily take hundreds of thousands more annually to provide for the maintenance of these institutions. It is safe to estimate that the annual increase in appropriations for state colleges will increase away above the million mark, and with the interest on the bonds, the state will have to raise something like a million and a half to two millions more annually for education. If these figures are incorrect, we would like to have a correction. South Carolina is in need of more education, but at the same time the ability of the people to stand additional taxation should be given careful consideration. We are told every now and then by some officer, who draws a fair salary and possibly pays a poll tax, that South Carolina does not know what paying taxes really is, but ask the fellow who has property worth from two to four dollars what happens to

Makes War on Vagrants.
Judge DeVore, presiding at Spartanburg court last week, in addressing the grand jury laid great stress on the laws as to vagrancy, and read the following, Section 712, Code of South Carolina, to the jurors:
"All persons wandering from place to place, without any known residence or residing in any city, county or town who have no visible means of gaining an honest and reputable means of livelihood, all suspicious persons going about the country, swapping and bartering horses (without a certificate of his or her good character signed by the magistrate of the county from which the said person last came; likewise all persons that acquire a livelihood by gambling or horse racing, without any other visible means of gaining a livelihood; all keepers of game tables, faro banks, or other banks whatsoever, used for gambling known under any other denomination; also all persons who lead idle or disorderly lives; all who knowingly harbor horse thieves, and felons and those that are known to be of that character and description; likewise all persons not following some handicraft, trade or profession or not having some visible means of livelihood, who shall be able to work, and occupying or being in possession of some piece of land, shall not cultivate such a quantity of it, as shall be deemed by the magistrate to be necessary for the maintenance of himself and his family; also, all persons representing publicly for gain or reward without being fully licensed and play, comedy or tragedy, interlude or farce or other entertainment of the stage or any part thereof; all fortune tellers for fee or reward and all sturdy beggars shall be deemed vagrants and upon conviction before a magistrate shall be fined in a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars or thirty days imprisonment."

There is a Wide Difference.
"The country editor who would brazenly print all that happens about him would not last a week," sagely comments the Marion Star on the subject of printing the news, contrasting the big city paper with the country paper. There is a great deal of truth in this statement. Many a small town editor lives, moves and has his being solely because he knows what to keep out of the paper. The difference between the metropolitan paper and the country paper is that the former is purely "mechanics," while the latter is, or ought to be, just human, possessing both heart and soul. As The Star further puts it:
"A small town editor has more 'neighbors' than the editor of the daily paper, and the conduct of his business is more nearly a personal matter. A man must live with his neighbors, and to be truly neighborly one must be charitable and kindly. Therefore, the country editor is not permitted to print all that happens about him—his neighborly duty to his neighbor causes him to put aside the pen and close his eyes."

The will of the late Dr. E. R. Wilson of Sumter county, deceased, was admitted to probate on October 14th. Besides providing well for the members of his family, he donated twenty-five thousand dollars to the Tuomey Hospital corporation, and provided also for additional sums for that institution and other home charities, in case of lapsed legacies.—Sumter Item
