Control of Clemson College Rests in The Will of Its Founder.

Columbia, Nov. 23.—There will be no chance to change the method of control of Clemson college, and efforts to this end, if attempted, will hardly hold with the courts, according to W. D. Barnett, of Columbia, member of the board of trustees of the institution.

In speaking yesterday of the recent "situation" and the discussions that have followed the so-called "strike" of cadets some weeks ago, Mr. Barnett expressed the opinion that there would be no chance to change the system, whereby the college is now controlled by a board of 13 trustees, seven of whom are chosen for life and who have the authority to name a successor when any vacancy occurs in the ranks of the seven.

Mr. Barnett has looked up the law on the matter and he referred to the Dartmouth college case in which the New England institution's control, exactly the same as Clemson's, was attacked in the courts, but in which the courts, even to the United States Supreme court, held that the will of the institution's founder, in which the plan of control was established, could not be altered.

Mr. Barnett explained the establishment of the system, according to Clemson's history. The late Thos. G. Clemson, whose beneficence created Clemson college, went to France as a soldier, and while there took a course in a mechanical and agricultural school. He liked its organization and its methods and this inspired his bequest for the establishment in South Carolina of a similar agricultural and mechanical college.

Clemson was established in the days of "carpetbag" rule, and to guarantee white democratic control for the institution, he selected himself for the first seven life-membership trustees, and put the provision in his will that the life members would always be elected by the life-membership section of the board. There are many in the state who contend that this is a good provision, Mr. Barnett stated.

Mr. Barnett stated that under the law and its interpretation by the courts, it is his opinion that the state must continue with the present system of control of Clemson college, or else abandon use of the property. At the same time, he contends, the property could not be disposed of or used for any other purpose.

Mr. Barnett commented on the suggestion that has been made, that the name of the college be changed to "John C. Calhoun." He remarked that the name Clemson is the best name, as the school was given birth by the late Mr. Clemson. Mr. Clemson was related by marriage to John C. Calhoun and lived with him at his estate, now the seat of Clemson college. The property on which the school is located was given by Clemson.

The Clemson trustees have been giving careful consideration to the affairs of the college. They have made thorough investigations of every complaint. "The striking feature of most of the complaints," Mr. Barnett said, "is that they are largely intangible." At the same time he stated that the trustees are anxious to do the very best thing for the institution.

Stolen Safe Returned.
 Greenville, Nov. 18.—The iron safe stolen Saturday night from the depot at Calhoun has been found unopened and returned to the depot. The safe was found near Grant station and had thirty-five dollars in it.

An overheated hot air pipe caused a fire at the First Baptist Church in Greenwood Friday. A few weeks ago a similar fire entailed a loss amounting to $1,500.

BACK FROM GERMANY

Greenville Merchant Says No Evidence of Poverty There Now.

Greenville News, Nov. 14.

There is no tangible evidence of poverty in Germany now, according to L. Rothschild, prominent Greenville citizen, who has just returned from a four months' visit to Germany, England, France and Belgium.

"Of course," said Mr. Rothschild, "the German people are not as prosperous as the people in this country, but they are working hard and regaining their feet rapidly. They are well dressed and appear to be well fed, for the custom of eating five or six meals a day appears not to have been eliminated. The markets are glutted with choice food, the farmers are producing prodigious crops, the factories are working full time, the currency has been re-established and the masses have as much leisure as they do in this country."

One of the chief reasons Germany is doing so well in the face of reparations payments, thinks Mr. Rothschild, is the innate thrift of the people. "We actually waste more than they use," he declares.

"What is the opinion the German people have of the ex-kaiser?" Mr. Rothschild was asked.

"The same as you have," he replied. "There are some militarists who stick to the old regime, but all of the sensible people look on the ex-kaiser as a traitor who led them astray. They like their present form of government and look hopefully to the future. They would not go back to a monarchy for anything."

The Germans hate England worse than France, Mr. Rothschild discovered, for they believe the commercial rivalry of England was at the bottom of the World war. They have no great grudge against the United States, although they believe they would have won the war if it hadn't been for this country.

"Everywhere I went I found respect for Americans," Mr. Rothschild says. He visited several cemeteries and noted thousands of graves of German soldiers. In a Jewish cemetery in a very small town there were at least one thousand graves of soldiers.

France does not seem to be so industrious as Germany and is groaning under high taxes, Mr. Rothschild says. England still has a gigantic unemployment problem, but is working out an economic solution rapidly. All three countries seem to be making a definite come-back. "People who want to work can make a living in any of them," observes Mr. Rothschild.

Traveling is not much cheaper on the continent now than in the United States, the cost of first-class accommodations being about $15 to $18 a day. One can get out cheaper or spend more, Mr. Rothschild says, but this is the average. Wine and taxis are very cheap. One can get good wine for about $1.25 a quart and ride a taxi all day for $12, including chauffeur services. This is in Germany. The cost in France is greater. Mr. Rothschild visited very few of the battlefields in France because of excessive rains when he was there. But those he saw he pronounced highly interesting.

Leaving Greenville July 3, Mr. Rothschild sailed from New York July 12 and arrived in Hamburg July 24. He returned via Halifax, arriving in New York November 5. The trip seemed to agree with him for he looked hardly upon his return to Greenville. He was accompanied by Mr. Levy of Seidenberg and Company of this city.

As a matter of public protection, in view of increasing crime throughout the country, and especially in Chicago Julius Rosenwald, chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck and company, Chicago, announced that the mail order house had discontinued the sale of all forms of fire arms. For many years newspapers and police officials have advocated discontinuance of the sale of firearms and as far back as 1916 his company had begun to limit such sales, Rosenwald said, and in cataloging such weapons for sale, published a notice that "intending purchasers shall furnish us with evidence that they are legally entitled to the possession of such firearms."

The company then had sought to limit such sales to police and military officers and members of police and military organizations and others such as bank and express messengers. Our action in limiting the sale of firearms to officers of the law and finally discontinuing the sale of them altogether," said Mr. Rosenwald, "is based on our desire to protect our good name and maintain the public good will. We feel that the moral side of all public questions is the right side, not only because we want to be right, but because it is good business."

Pedestrians walking through the State House grounds a day or two ago noticed the phenomenon of particles of water falling from the hackberry trees, although the day was clear and the spray from the fountain could not have been carried so far on a windless day. The phenomenon was explained by a naturalist of the city as being caused by small borers which penetrated the bark of the tree, causing the sap to exude and fall to the ground. A wag pointed out that the trees of long standing on the grounds were not without reason to weep, adding that the only tree that does not is the iron Palm tree near the governor's office.

Railroad freight records were smashed in October. In one day during the month 1,030,211 freight cars, loaded and empty, were moved, constituting the "greatest car movement for any day on record." In one week in October 1,112,345 cars were loaded with revenue freight, exceeding all previous records for a week by 14,522 cars.

Judge DeVore Injured.

Gaffney Correspondence Columbia Record, Sunday: Judge J. W. DeVore, who included an exhorting denunciation of reckless and careless automobile drivers in his charge to the grand jury at the opening of circuit court here this week, was knocked down Thursday afternoon on Limestone street by a car reported to have been driven by an unknown woman. He escaped serious injury and was able to continue presiding over court. The woman stopped her car a short distance from where the accident occurred. She looked back and saw the judge get up, after which she "put on the gas" and continued on her way.

Duckett Gets Six Months.

Greenwood, Nov. 22.—O. D. Duckett, former cashier of the now defunct People's Bank, was sentenced to serve six months on the county chain gang by Judge Henry C. Tillman in county court this morning following his conviction Wednesday on a charge of violating state banking laws. Notice of an appeal to the Supreme court was served on the court and Judge Tillman fixed bond at $500, pending the appeal.

Judge H. A. M. Smith Dead.

Charleston, Nov. 23.—Former United States District Judge Henry A. M. Smith died at his residence here this afternoon after a brief illness. Judge Smith was in his 72nd year, having been born in Charleston April 30, 1853. He succeeded William H. Brawley as district judge June 14, 1911, on appointment by President William H. Taft, and retired November 24, 1923, being succeeded by Ernest F. Cochran of Anderson. Judge Smith was for many years an outstanding member of the bar in South Carolina and was also widely known for his deep knowledge of historical matters affecting this section. He was formerly vice chairman of the South Carolina historical commission. His service on the city board of school commissioners of Charleston, on the board of trustees of the Charleston high school and on the board of trustees of the College of Charleston reflected his interest in education.

Weds Man With Eight Children.

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 24.—Miss Azalea Rector, 15-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Rector, of Marshall, eloped with James Rector, prominent resident of Madison county seat, and the couple were married in Greenville, Tenn., several days ago, it was learned here yesterday. The groom is 45 years of age, and is the father of eight children. His first wife died four months ago. He also has several grand children.

Catholic Church Services.

First Sunday of Advent, November 30th, Sunday school at 10 a.m.; mass at 11 o'clock, sermon on "The Terrors of the Last and General Judgment." All are cordially invited to these services.

Little Girl Buried Here.

Kershaw, Nov. 22.—A distressing accident occurred here Thursday evening when little Vance, two and a half year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Vance Hough, while seated at the evening meal, overturned a pot of boiling tea on her little body and was so severely scalded that, in spite of all that loving hands and physicians' skill could do, the little sufferer died Friday evening. The death of this bright and lovable little child has caused deep sorrow and sympathy of the entire town for the bereaved parents. The body of the little girl was brought to Camden Sunday and interred in the Hough family plot in the Camden cemetery after funeral services by Rev. M. J. Reddin of the Catholic church. Four Knights of Columbus from Sumter were also attendants at the burial.

New Pastor at Wateree Mill.

Rev. J. B. Shiver, who has been the pastor of several churches in and near Blaney, has accepted the pastorate of the Wateree Baptist Church at Camden and will enter upon his new duties at once. Rev. Shiver is a native of this city and for many years was engaged in railroad work at Blacksburg. Rev. W. E. Furcron, the former pastor, has gone to Newberry.

Card of Thanks.

I wish to thank all those who sent flowers to me during my recent sickness and to all friends for their many acts of kindness.

Miss Mary Hirschman.
 Camden, Nov. 26.

F. G. Wood, textile worker of Greer, is under arrest in Pensacola, Fla., charged with abducting Agatha Plumley, aged 10, daughter of W. D. Plumley of Greer Mill. Wood is quoted as saying he intended keeping the child until she was old enough to marry him.

The recent general election in South Carolina cost $30,000, it is estimated by Comptroller General Duncan.

Ku Klux Klan at the Economy Home.
 Rev. J. H. Spaulding, superintendent of the Economy Home, reports that the Ku Klux Klan visited the home on Monday night, Nov. 24.

Mr. Spaulding says he was in the office dictating some letters about eight o'clock when a big automobile rolled up. He went out to meet the people. Two gentlemen got out and unloaded five nice, fat turkeys and handed him a note saying: "This will explain." They got in the car and left without telling their names. We publish the note in full, as follows:

"November 24th.
 "Dear Mr Spaulding:—As we were thinking we thought of you and your wonderful work in which you are engaged, and we feel that you and your children and work deserve a warm place in the heart of every Christian body, fraternal order, secret society or organization or right thinking individual anywhere. So we donate these turkeys to you and yours to enjoy Thanksgiving as a token of our appreciation of what you are doing in the uplift of humanity. And to assure you that you have our whole-hearted co-operation and brotherly support at any and all times.

With these greetings we invoke God's richest blessing upon you and your children continually.

(Signed) "Gaffney Klan, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan." Economy Home, Kings Creek, S. C., November 26th.
