"The first time I took Cardui I was in an awful bad way," says Mrs. Ora Carline, R. F. D. 5, Troup, Texas. "I went fishing one day. A heavy storm came up and I got soaking wet in the rain. I was afflicted with awful smothering spells. I could not get my breath. My mother had some in the house that she was taking, so she immediately began giving it to me. In a few days I got all right. "Last fall I got run-down in health. I was weak and puny and I began to suffer. I would get so I could hardly walk. Having taken Cardui before, I sent to the store for a bottle of it. Almost from the first dose I could feel an improvement.

"Cardui has helped me a lot and I am glad to recommend it. I don't feel like the same woman I was last fall. My appetite is good now, and I'm sure it's Cardui that's made it pick up."

Charleston Quake 39 Years Ago

Exactly 39 years ago Monday the Charleston earthquake destroyed a large portion of the city and killed several people. The first shock was felt August 31, 1886, and not only shocked Charleston but was also felt over a wide area throughout the state. The following day, September 1, another quake came.

The city of Charleston has long recovered from the quake, but citizens of the city who were living at the time of the disaster will always remember the sudden destruction and calamity that swept over the city by the sea, now 39 years ago.—Hartsville Messenger.

Indian Legends Good for Bedtime Stories

One of the charms of Indian myths about animals is that they explain the unexplainable so plausibly. How did the flying squirrel get its flying apparatus? Instead of going into lengthy explanations the Senecas relate that there was a time long ago when animals and birds were very large and trees more lofty and rivers broader than nowadays. On one occasion a squirrel, which had been hoarding nuts against the winter, found his store being steadily robbed. For a long time he could not discover the culprit, but finally found that a woodchuck and a giant bullfrog with teeth had been stealing his nuts.

The culprits were hated before the great chief of all the squirrels and brought to judgment. By way of sentence the woodchuck was ordered to have his tail removed in order to humble his pride, and the bullfrog to have his teeth taken out so that he would no longer be tempted to steal another's store. But the squirrel was also blamed for carelessness in building his nest so low that other animals might reach it. He was therefore ordered to nest in the high trees and by way of compensation was given a blanket to stretch between his legs so that he might sail through the air like a leaf.

A wolf snapped off the woodchuck's tail and a heron picked out the bullfrog's teeth, and thenceforth all woodchucks were tailless and bullfrogs toothless, and the former feared the wolf mightily and the latter hid at the sight of the heron. The squirrel's descendants, however, had blankets, and that is why they sail around from limb to limb so readily.

Of such stuff are many Indian tales made. Here are bedtime stories of infinitely greater worth than many of the modern children's yarns. There is room for a volume of real American fairy tales.—New York Times.

Penalty of Penury

"It doesn't pay" to be close-fisted when you're running for office," says a prominent middle-western politician. "One time a tightwad down in our county decided to run for the legislature. His friends urged him to spend a little money, but he consistently refused up to the night before election. When he gave in to the extent of buying and distributing a bale or so of the cheapest cigars he could find—poisonous ropes, all of them. Election morning he sauntered down to the polls to see how things were going. He was met by a group of his workers. "Well, boys," said he, "am I winnin' or losin'?"

"Your gone," replied one of the workers mournfully. "What's the matter?" asked the candidate.

"All your friends who took your cigars last night are sick in bed today!"

School Aids Job Holders

Vocational guidance, vocational training, and education for citizenship are the aims of the part-time school. New York's most recent experiment in the field of vocational education, says School Life. Minors between fourteen and eighteen, not high school graduates and not in attendance upon the regular full-time schools, must attend such schools for not less than four days between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. When the child is placed in some selected occupation the school keeps in touch with its progress. If the employer does not himself provide it, the school gives instruction related to the occupation. Many employers are now maintaining part-time or apprentice schools.

Founding of Rome

Legend, accepted as authentic in later Roman times, made Romulus the founder of the city of Rome and the Palatine, one of the seven hills that rise on the left bank of the Tiber, the site of the first settlement. The entire period from the date of the foundation of the city, 753 B. C., to the establishment of the republic, 509 B. C., is in its detailed history unknown, and from the mass of myth and legend it is possible to derive only the very broadest conceptions of the beginnings of the Roman state. This is due to the fact that the authentic records of Rome date only from 390 B. C., the year of the destruction of the city by the Gauls.

The Reason

Sallie, buxom and dark, was enjoying the lunch provided by her employer, except the bread, and that remained untouched.

When questioned why she did not eat the bread, she replied that she did not eat gunpowder.

"Gunpowder?" exclaimed her astonished employer. "Why, Sallie, that is poppyseed on the bread. What ever made you think it was gunpowder?"

"Well," explained Sallie, with characteristic drawl, "you know they used to feed gunpowder to the soldiers down South to make 'em fight, and I thought you was feedin' me gunpowder to make me work."—Indianapolis News.

MAN IS FREED.

Rev. Walters Not Guilty on Charge of Whipping Boy.

York, Sept. 3.—It took a jury in Magistrate Smith's court at Hickory Grove this morning less than five minutes to find the Rev. E. E. Walters, superintendent of Economy Home at King's Creek, not guilty of cruelty in whipping Clyde Lane, an inmate of the home, several weeks ago.

The Lane boy testified he received only an ordinary whipping and did not deny that he deserved what he got.

The warrant for Mr. Walters was sworn out by Rural Policeman John A. Jackson, who examined Lane shortly after he was whipped, and who declared the lad was beaten blue-black.

Mrs. T. C. Wooten, child-placing agent of the State Board of Public Welfare, who is now at Economy Home making arrangements for the care of the children since the home is to be discontinued, appeared as a witness for Mr. Walters today. She said she had examined a number of children and all had told her they had received kind treatment during the few weeks the Rev. Walters had had charge of the home.

Man Minus Soul Worth 98 Cents

"Marked down to 98 cents," would be a queer and insulting tag to put on a man. Yet that is what a man amounts to, considered in terms of his chemical analysis, says the North and South Carolina Public Utility Information Bureau, has been made by some technical sharp, and this is the astounding report:

The ingredients of a man plus water are as follows:

- Fat enough for seven bars of soap.
  - Iron enough for a medium-sized nail.
  - Sugar enough to fill a shaker.
  - Lime enough to whitewash a chicken coop.
  - Phosphorus enough to make 2,200 match pits.
  - Magnesium enough to make a dose of magnesia.
  - Potassium enough to explode a toy cannon.
  - Sulphur enough to rid a dog of fleas.
- This whole collection is worth 98 cents, and that when things are three times as high as they used to be.

When the United States steamship Leviathan docks at New York, passengers in their state rooms can call up any one of 16,000,000 telephones on the North American continent. When the same steamer reaches England, at the other end of her voyage, passengers cannot telephone ashore even for a cent.

Department of Commerce figures give the gross income of farmers during the year ending June 30, as $12,136,000,000, or $848,000,000 more than for the previous year.

THE SOUTHERN SERVES THE SOUTH

A buyer as well as a carrier of Southern products

The industrial resources of the South are so diversified that the Southern Railway System is fortunately able to purchase a large part of its supplies along its own rails.

While we are carrying the products of our shippers to the markets of the country, we are also buying from them for our own use coal, iron, lumber, cross-ties, equipment, rails—the thousand and one things that are needed to operate and maintain a railroad system of the magnitude of the Southern.

The Southern is a buyer as well as a carrier of Southern products.
