

THE CAMDEN CHRONICLE

H. D. Niles, Editor and Publisher

Published every Friday at No. 1109 Broad Street and entered at the Camden, South Carolina, postoffice as second class mail matter. Price per annum $2.00.

Camden, S. C., Friday, Oct. 2, 1925.

Lieutenant Dudley Haselden, one of the officers reported lost on the sunken submarine S-51 off Block Island, R. I., last Friday night, was from Dillon, S. C.

The friends of Judge M. L. Bonham of Anderson have offered his name for one of the vacancies on the supreme bench. He has the endorsement of the Anderson bar. It will be recalled that Judge Bonham was defeated by Judge Marion for the supreme bench by a small lead a few years ago.

Fletcher C. Newman, a farmer living three miles southwest of Society Hill, was shot to death while sitting in his tobacco barn last Wednesday. Two loads from a shot gun were fired, the first taking effect in the back of Newman's head, and the second in his face and chest. Tabe Weatherford and a man named Turnage were held for the killing.

After very few minutes of deliberation by the jury Wednesday afternoon, Henry Gatlin, prominent Lee County farmer, was declared not guilty upon the charge of murder. Gatlin shot and killed Tillman Fields, son of another substantial Lee County farmer. The shooting occurred in front of Mr. Gatlin's home in the Ashland section on July 8, this year, and the coroner's jury held Gatlin for the crime.

Killing The Farmers' Friend

When an Iowa farmer complained that the pheasants were eating his corn, the game department killed two of the birds, examined their crops and found 200 cutworms—and no corn. Almost without exception, when the scientists investigate such cases they find the same results. The farmer owes his crop to the feathered police that keep down the bugs, insects and worms. With continuing slaughter of every form of bird life, the insect loss will be heavier and farm work harder. The nation could train an army of rifle men in a comparatively short time but it couldn't in a century restore the bird armies that are the farmers' allies in raising food to feed the country.

Insisted on Discount

A train in Arizona was boarded by robbers, who went through the pockets of the luckless passengers. One of them happened to be a traveling salesman from New York, who, when his turn came, fished out $2,000, but rapidly took four dollars from the pile and placed it in his vest pocket. "What do you mean by that?" asked the robber, as he toyed with his revolver. Hurriedly came the answer: "Mine friend, you surely would not refuse me two per cent discount on a strictly cash transaction like this?"

Stung, But Didn't Know It

One of the wealthiest men in Union county tendered me $1.50 for a year's subscription to The Chronicle. I told him his neighbors and everybody else were paying me $2.00, and why should I make him an exception? "It's all I can pay you," said the man. So we lost a subscriber, but still maintained our self-respect in not allowing any person to receive the paper at a less price than others.

Funny thing about these hard-to-trade-with men and women here in Union county. There are a few persons when they enter a store that the clerks would avoid waiting on them. Often the man or woman who "jews" actually pays more than the person who is willing to pay reasonable price for an article.

And this reminds me of an occurrence here in Monroe years ago.

It was in the old days when "pan's cloth" was sold by the yard, a hard customer asked a clerk the price of a certain piece of goods.

"Twenty-two cents a yard," said the salesman, knowing if he sold the man he'd have to take less.

"The goods you twenty cents and not another cent," said the customer. "Well, I reckon I'll have to let you have it at that. How many yards?"

"I'll take the whole lot," said the customer. "You said twenty cents a yard."

"But I thought you only wanted two or three yards," protested the clerk. "Well, I'm afraid to let you have the whole lot at that price?"

And they bargained and bargained. At last the clerk said, "Oh, well, take it along, but be sure never to let any one buy cheap you got it."

But the joke was that the cloth had never sold for more than fifteen cents retail to regular customers.

Darlington Man Paroled

Columbia, Sept. 28.—W. E. Miller, convicted in Darlington county on a charge of assault with intent to ravish and sentenced to serve five years, was today paroled by Governor McLeod.

Miller was convicted in June 1914. After serving about three years of his sentence he escaped, being recaptured several years later in Pennsylvania. Clemency was recommended by the trial judge, the solicitor and others.

Meet Tragic Deaths

Horton Hill, Sept. 28.—Two of the men indicted for participating in the Hiram mine killing during the strike of 1922 died tragic deaths here within twelve hours.

James Galligan, indicted but never tried was killed in a mine explosion at seven mine shaft Saturday.

The body of Otis Clark was found with three bullet wounds in the abdomen yesterday in front of his home near here.

THIS WEEK

By Arthur Brisbane

Mr. Brisbane's editorials are published as expressions of opinions of the world's highest-salaried editor and The Chronicle does not necessarily endorse all of his views and conclusions.

What does the world need? Thousands of preachers, standing on the shore of time and peering into eternity with the strong authority that their vocation gives them try to answer the question.

Here are a few answers made in the pulpits last Sunday:

The Rev. Henry Howard: The Bible is now on the shelf, not enough family prayers. Not enough religion in schools—time proves it.

Rev. C. Everett Wagner, Methodist Episcopal: Too much preaching of hell fire. Too much parading of wickedness instead of talking about goodness. Too much tempting listeners by describing in detail the things that the wicked do.

Rev. Dr. Sookman: Too much shifting about from place to place. Too much roaming. The people becoming nomadic can't settle down.

Rev. Dr. S. E. Young, says voters neglect their duty. They could make this Republic anything that they chose to make it if they would take the trouble to do it. Perhaps that is solemn truth.

Rev. John Roach Straton, who would willingly help lynch our modernists if his conscience would let him, says we need more revivals. That's proved by the fact that there were ten thousand murders and only a few hangings and electrocutions in this country last year. He saw two holdups in Chicago in one short visit.

Rev. Paul C. Warren: We need modern prophets to interpret the old truths in the pew and in the pulpit. More purity of heart and strength of conviction will bring the millennium.

But Rev. Charles Francis Potter, prominent Unitarian, says we need a brand new religion, and he proves his sincerity by resigning from his job. It is very enlightening to read twenty or thirty sermons a week.

If you would like a pet bison you can get one from the Government. Too many of the big animals are in Yellowstone Park, so 100 of them are offered free to citizens that will pay the cost of catching and expressing. The Government has proved that the "dying bison" can be brought back to life. Perhaps the Government will do as much for the dying and vanishing forests, much more important than the picturesque bison.

Miss Fay Lanphier, young California girl, who "easily and naturally" won the beauty crown of "Miss America" says, "Marriage won't interfere with my career." Of course not. The real business of human beings on this earth is to make it a little better while they are here, and hand on what ability they have to future generations, that they also may work.

Good qualities, as heredity proves, are handed on by women. And the woman whose program does not include marriage can't possibly have a complete career, no matter what the feminists may say. In a chain, the link that breaks is not the successful link.

It has been suggested here occasionally, during the past ten years, that architects should have their minds on landing roofs for flying machines. Now Chicago, about to build a $15,000,000 post office, will ask Congress to approve a building, two city blocks long with a landing roof for the flying mail. That would cut an hour off the mail flight from Chicago to New York.

Not far in the future will come the new city, one building devoted to one single business, with a landing roof for buyers and sellers, and employees flying to work in the morning and flying back at night.

The great "congested traffic problem" may be solved from the roof before it is solved in the streets. However, don't let that discourage you about good real estate.

The great stock ranches of the Parhandle district are being cut up into cotton farms. Stock land that sold from 50 cents to $2 an acre now brings from $20 to $40 as cotton land.

The college man of today is reading three times as many books as did his father when he attended college 25 years ago, says Asa Den Dickinson, librarian of the University of Pennsylvania Library.
