

Killed by Live Wire
Abbeville, Oct. 25.—Ernest Shaw, young white man of this city, was instantly killed this morning when he caught a live wire hanging from a tree which had been blown down by the high wind that struck the town early in the morning. The young man, according to witnesses, caught the wire to throw it from the street and was dead before the wire could be removed.

According to the superintendent of the water and light plant, who was at the time tracing the trouble and arrived a few minutes after the accident, the wire carried a 2,400 voltage and was one of the circuits for street lighting.

Shaw was an employe of the Abbeville Cotton mills and came to Abbeville from Iva. He was nineteen years of age and had been here for about four years.

A pressure tester much like a tire gauge now tests the firmness of apples, doing away with the old-fashioned method of pressing the fruit with the thumb.

Near Serious Wreck

L. O. Montgomery with a party of young men friends from Lancaster had a narrow escape from death last Thursday afternoon while on their way in Mr. Montgomery's Ford sedan to the state fair at Columbia when the car in which they were traveling was struck by a Ford touring car and badly wrecked near Blaney, about ten or twelve miles below Camden on the Columbia road. A young man named Charlie Outen, driving the touring car, ran into the Montgomery car, turning Outen's car a somersault and badly cutting his face and head by broken glass. Another young man in the car with Outen was only slightly injured, those in the Montgomery car coming out of the wreck without a scratch, except one of the party who sustained a small abrasion of one leg. A physician happened along just after the wreck and dressed the wounds of young Outen, who with his friend was on his way, it was said, to see two young lady friends about two miles from the accident. Mr. Montgomery remained over at Blaney until Friday afternoon where he had repairs made to his car and drove it home. Young Outen, he said, was doing all right when he left that section.—Lancaster News.

Fires in Cante Hill Section

The Era has been informed that Frank Catoe, who lives in the Cante Hill section of Kershaw County, lost his barn and contents by fire Monday of last week. We were unable to learn the cause of the fire, the amount of the loss, and whether or not there was any insurance.

On Monday night the residence of R. M. Drakeford in the same section, and not far distant, caught fire and it took hard work to save the building from burning. We also failed to learn the full details in this case.—Kershaw Era.

Killed in Auto Wreck
Manning, Oct. 25.—The remains of J. M. Gamble were interred in the Manning cemetery Friday. Mr. Gamble was accidentally killed near midnight Thursday night while returning from Columbia and the automobile in which he was riding went over an embankment on the Wateree river road on the Sumter side of the river. His neck was broken.

Mr. Gamble was nearly 35 years old and had served as Clarendon County policeman for several years.

Aged Woman Killed by Car

Abbeville, Oct. 21.—Miss Mary Morrow, 70 years of age, of the Bellevue section of McCormick County formerly of Abbeville county, was instantly killed this afternoon when struck by a large roadster driven by Charles Janides, a Greek. A coroner's jury sitting at the inquest recommended that Janides be held for investigation by the McCormick county grand jury.

Card of Thanks

We, the wife, children and relatives, of the late T. J. Boykin, desire to extend our thanks and appreciation for the many favors shown and the sympathy expressed in the recent illness and death of our loved one.

Amelia Boykin and children.

DUKE'S FIRST WIFE DEAD

Had Earned Living in New York By Giving Music Lessons

New York, Oct. 24.—Mrs. Lillian N. Duke, who was divorced twenty years ago by the late tobacco magnate, James B. Duke, died tonight in her music studio on West Eighty-Eighth street. She had been unconscious since October 22 when she suffered two cerebral hemorrhages.

Since the death of her former husband on October 10, Mrs. Duke had been greatly depressed, according to her attorney, Miss Lillian Pugh, who said Mrs. Duke's condition was undoubtedly complicated by lack of food. She had refused to accept loans from friends, her attorney said.

The tobacco manufacturer's first wife died in penury, although for thirty years she was mistress of a fortune then estimated at $100,000,000, at the time Mrs. Duke presided over her husband's mansions in New York and Newport. In recent years she had been reduced to giving music lessons to a handful of pupils. She had studied at one time under Jean de Reszke.

Miss Pugh said Mr. Duke knew of his former wife's financial difficulties before his death. In his will, filed for probate on October 23 he made no provision for her, but he left the bulk of his estate now estimated at $150,000,000 to his second wife, Mrs. Hannaline S. Duke, and to their daughter, Doris.

Mrs. Lillian Duke stood on a knoll in Central Park with tears streaming down her cheeks and watched the funeral procession of her husband, on its way down Fifth avenue.

She had several fainting spells after returning to her music, but continued to give music lessons for several days without regard for her condition. One of her few remaining pupils found her after the first hemorrhage and called a physician and obtained some food. After the second hemorrhage Mrs. Duke became completely paralyzed on the left side and lapsed into a coma.

Before marrying Mr. Duke in Camden, N. J., in 1904 she was Mrs. William E. McCredy, wife of a New York broker, from whom she was divorced.

A year after their marriage, Mr. Duke brought suit for divorce, naming as co-respondent Major Frank T. Humpton, a former officer in the old guard and head of a mineral water concern.

It was said at the time the divorce was granted that Mr. Duke made a settlement on her of $500,000, but Miss Pugh recently denied that Mrs. Duke received any sum from the tobacco man after the divorce.

Three years ago, Alfred E. Lindsay, a broker, was sent to Sing Sing prison for swindling Mrs. Duke of $325,000 in cash and $50,000 in jewelry.

Mrs. Duke brought suit last May to have her former husband's divorce invalidated on the ground that at the time she had refused to recognize the New Jersey courts and had reserved all her rights. Her application was denied. Miss Pugh said Mrs. Duke was about to file an appeal.

To Florida in Ford: Walked Back.

Floyd Smythe of Fort Mill was in Lancaster a few days ago and while in a restaurant in that town eating dinner over and a conversation between the restaurant proprietor and two tourist Florida-bound which he repeated after returning home. One of the tourists said, addressing his remarks to the restaurant man, "I suppose you depend largely for your patronage on people going to Florida, and that, thinking they are all well fixed, you get pretty stiff prices." "Yep," replied the restaurant man, "charge all we can. But sometimes we don't charge anything at all. If you will walk around to the back door you can get a look at a pair of boobs who passed through here a few days ago going to Florida in a Ford. Now they are going back home afoot, and we have just given them a handout. What may we expect you or the rest of you?" Fort Mill Times.
