THE NEW COUNTY OFFICERS

Short Sketches of Men Who Were Nominated in the Primaries.

B. E. Sparrow who upon every political stump in the county recently urged the voters to return the big bird of the race to his roost, won out by a decided majority in the recent elections, and will for another four years serve as auditor of Kershaw county. Mr. Sparrow first entered his official service in 1922 and since that time has completed a personal acquaintance with virtually every voter in Kershaw County. From the returns of the first primary it appears that his administration has been highly satisfactory and that as a greater compliment, perhaps, is the fact that he won over two other gentlemen whose ability was never challenged and whose campaigning methods are, in a large degree, the greatest hope for preserving our best Democratic traditions.

W. L. McDowell has also been re-nominated judge of the probate court and, when he receives his new commission next January, will enter upon his nineteenth year of service in this capacity. Judge McDowell founded The Camden Chronicle in 1889 and served as its editor and publisher until elected in 1908 to succeed the late beloved William D. Trantham as probate judge. Upon assuming his political duties Judge McDowell released his newspaper interests to the present owner and ever since has devoted his entire time to the office which he has again been elected to hold another four years.

S. Wylie Hogue, whose early boyhood life was spent in proud and worthy old York County, has lived in Camden and mingled with the people of this county first as salesman, then as public cotton weigher, and then as salesman and book-keeper again, and throughout the nearly twenty-five years spent here, Mr. Hogue's life has been displayed as an open book. Peculiarly straight-forward, with an abiding faith in his fellow man and more towards his God above, Wylie Hogue has been endorsed for one of the highest honors within the gift of his people and will next year enter upon his four year term as treasurer of Kershaw county.

The new high sheriff of the county is none other than big John Henry McLeod, whose genial nature and clear straight way of thinking were favorable characteristics which saliently presented themselves upon every political gathering. Mr. McLeod as deputy in this office for a number of years, has an enviable record in the apprehension of law breakers and this, together with the fact that he has never been forced to hurt a prisoner, helped largely to warrant the approving voice at the ballot box. He is a native of the Doby's Mill section of West Wateree and a son of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. McLeod.

Grover C. Welsh will head the county delegation in the general assembly next session and as state senator has many ideas upon which to build for the benefit of our whole people. Senator Welsh is the kind of man who fully appreciates the advantages of team work and his disposition is such as to almost compel the admiration and respect of all with whom he mingles. Mr. Welsh is a native of Kershaw, where, before his removal to Camden, he served as head of the governing board of that little city and that he has as well made many warm friends during his stay here is best attested by a comparison of his former political contests. When he first ran for sheriff Camden allowed him but six votes and in the recent senatorial race the same man got better than six hundred votes here.

In the house of representatives and completing the delegation is Mr. Newton Kelley, farmer of West Wateree, and a Christian, common-sense legislator, whose past experience will prove of real benefit, and Loring Davis of Bethune. Mr. Davis is a University graduate, a prominent young business man, and an all-round good fellow. If he does tremendous things in the solemn body of law-makers it will bring satisfaction, rather than surprise, to the people back home, because it was upon his first entrance into political life that he led the ticket and swept across Kershaw County, piling up far more votes than were necessary for a first ballot nomination.

The new superintendent of roads, whom the primaries named is Henry E. Munn, whose previous connection as foreman of the county chaingang will aid materially in maintaining the splendid cross-county system of roads which is now enjoyed. Mr. Munn for many years was actively employed in building roads, as well as bridges, for the county, and it is generally conceded that his administration, which continues during the next two years, will meet with much favor.

Henry G. Carrison, Jr., was nominated county director from DeKalb

Township and will shortly enter upon his new duties. Mr. Carrison is the well-known cashier of the Bank of Camden, and possibly his most favorable political work to this date was as the recent mayor of Camden. Under his administration the community experienced an almost unparalleled era of progress and prosperity and many there are who, through a calculation of either theory or condition or circumstance, are willing to give Mr. Carrison much of the credit.

W. L. DePass, Jr., whose romance in politics began before he finished school, has scored another victory at the ballot box. Mr. DePass declined to offer for re-election as a member of the house of representatives and instead offered as a candidate for the office of magistrate of DeKalb township. In this race he was again favorably voted upon and next January will enter the office to succeed Samuel N. Nicholson, for many years magistrate, who did not this time offer for re-election to this office.

Mr. James M. Spears Dead.

After a lingering illness of several months Mr. James M. Spears, a well known citizen of the county, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Bessie Watts, on West Chestnut street, Thursday, September 16. Mr. Spears was about seventy-five years of age, and spent his life in this county where he was highly respected. The funeral and burial followed the next day at DeKalb church.

On December 23, 1869, Mr. Spears was married to Miss Millie E. Young. She predeceased him on August 2, 1923. He had been for many years a member of the DeKalb Baptist church.

Mr. Spears is survived by the following sons and daughters: Mrs. Nannie Brown, of Fort Mill; T. W. Spears, of Charlotte; Mrs. Rebecca Horton, of Westville; L. S. Spears, Mrs. Mary Truesdell, J. A. Spears and Mrs. Bessie Watts, all of Camden.

The Japanese estimate that on a Japanese standard of living the world could support 2,500,000,000 people; while only 1,000,000,000 could live under American standards.

"The Monroe Doctrine, instead of bringing the Latin-American countries into closer contact with the United States, had eliminated from the minds of Latin-American peoples all fear of aggression from any portion of the world but the United States." Leo S. Rowe, director-general of the Pan-American Union.
