THIEF STOLE MILLIONS

Now Facing Eighty Years in Prison For Crimes

New York, July 25.—James F. Monahan, alias "Boston" Billy Williams," pleaded guilty today in Nassau county Court to indictments for grand larceny and burglary as a second offender in connection with the robbery of the Long Island home of Jesse L. Livermore, in which he and his former pal, Arthur Barry, got away with some $90,000 worth of jewels after amazing their victims by their display of good manners coupled with fine criminal technique.

He may be sentenced to as much as eighty years in Sing Sing, but it is possible he may manage to have a few slivers of freedom in his old age if he tells what has become of the huge fortune in jewels which he and Barry stole around Long Island, Connecticut and New Jersey during their three-year partnership. The loot is estimated as something over $1,000,000, and the police are certain the two effected at least 150 successful robberies.

After accepting the plea, and announcing he would pronounce sentence Thursday, Judge Smith turned to the prisoner and said: "I am ready to receive any information you wish to give me between now and Thursday."

Monahan, a quiet-mannered and clever criminal in his palmy days, who has resorted to frenzies of cursing, and two wild attempts to escape from jail since he began to realize his plight, stood sullen and did not answer the court. He was taken back to his cell, where he has been in solitary confinement since his attempts to escape.

Barry, who took his arrest and his sentence to twenty-five years in Sing Sing without a trace of animosity, will be taken back to Sing Sing probably tomorrow. He was brought to Mineola to testify against Monahan in case the latter chose to plead not guilty. Mr. and Mrs. Livermore also were in court ready to take the stand when Monahan entered his plea.

A bitter enmity has arisen between the former partners in crime since their arrest. When Barry was taken he immediately told everything he knew, incriminating Monahan and aiding in the latter's capture. This he did, he said, to save Mrs. Annie Blake, his middle-aged sweetheart.

Now in New Quarters

The Clyburn Drug Company, formerly located in the Crocker-Savage Building on Broad Street, has moved to the American Legion building on East DeKalb Street, where they have fitted up an exceptionally attractive drug store, with soda fount in connection.

They were planning an opening for last evening if the furniture and equipment could be installed in time. They have secured the services of Mr. Elmore Murdock, of Charleston, an experienced sodadispenner, who will have charge of the fountain.

Mr. W. V. Brown, of Hamlet, N. C., association with the Butter Cup ice cream company has been here for the past two days installing the new and up-to-date White-Knight fountain, which is an innovation so far as this city is concerned. It is Frigidaire driven, completely, and there will be no occasion to use ice unless the customer calls for same.

Mr. L. A. Sowell, manager, is planning a complete drug store and accessories of all kinds, and will have a neat and attractive place.

Dr. Clyburn, who has been associated with this drug store for many years, will continue to have his office with this firm.

Witnessed Dempsey-Sharkey Fight

Former Judge Mendel L. Smith was one of the 82,000 interested spectators at the Dempsey-Sharkey fight in New York City last Thursday night.

Judge Smith had a ring-side seat and got a close-up view of the whole proceedings—preliminaries and all. When asked what he thought of Sharkey's claim of a foul punch he said that the only man who knew whether it was a foul or not was Sharkey himself. That the blow took place so quick that no one could tell whether it was foul or not. Not even the movie cameras trained on the fighters from an improvised tower a few feet away were able to prove a foul. Taken all in all he says that scientific fighting as it is done today proves not to be so brutal after all. Strict rules and strict referees have minimized the former brutal parts of the fighting game says the Judge. His son, Mendel L. Smith, Jr., was also a spectator at the fight.

Mr. Hay Secures Agency

Mr. W. O. Hay of this city has secured the agency for the General Electric company's new refrigerator, recently put on the market. This new method of refrigeration is a product of the world's leading engineers and is the last word in electric refrigeration. No pipes, no drains, no attachments, portable and can be installed to the nearest electric connection. Can hardly be heard three feet away. No servicing, never needs oiling, sealed at the factory, uses very little current, automatic air circulation drives dust away from the refrigerator. It is the product of fifteen years research. The co-operation of sixty-four engineers. Four thousand refrigerators were made and field tested before production was authorized. See W. O. Hay before you buy.—Adv.

Entertains With Party

Charming in every detail was the party given by Miss Ruth Christmas on Tuesday evening, complimenting Howard Marshall of Indiantown, Fla. Orange and green were the colors used in decorating the rooms. Among the guests were Misses Maud Dabney, Masie Evans, Annie Mae McKain, Louise Smith, Eleanor Brown, Lela Bell Gladden, Annabelle Watts, Miriam Hill, Messrs. Paul Thomas, James Langley, S. D. Massabeau, Clyde Baker, E. P. Shedd, Harvin Smith, Elmo Brown, Clinton Massabeau, Howard Marshall and Edwin Schneider. The hostess served punch and cake.

A TRIBUTE OF RESPECT

At the meeting of the third quarterly conference held Wednesday evening, for the Camden charge, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted by a rising vote:

Whereas, in the Providence of God, since last we met, our friend and brother, George A. Rhame, has been removed from us by death. As officials of the Lyttleton Street Methodist Church, we are conscious of our loss, therefore, be it resolved,

First, That a suitable record of his death be made upon the Church register to the memory of our departed co-worker.

Second, That in the death of Brother Rhame we feel a deep sense of personal loss. In life we valued his friendship, for he was always ready to cooperate with us in the furtherance of his Master's kingdom. He was always ready to share his time and means in every worthy cause connected with his church. In the great drama of life he acted well his part. His virtues were far greater than his faults. His good deeds are milestones that mark the pathway of life. The good deeds of Brother Rhame were plainly visible to us while he walked and worked with us.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his bereaved family, with the assurance of our profound sympathy, and that a copy be sent to the Southern Christian Advocate for publication, and also to the local papers of our city.

"It's hard to part with friends so dear;

"Twill cause a sigh, a tear.

Then steal away, give little warning; Say not good night, but in some brighter clime, good morning."

Seattle, July 26.—J. Creigh Nelson, wealthy Seattle clubman, and two other men last night were branded by a corner's jury as cowards and held mortally but not criminally responsible for the death of Miss Violet Maude Payne, music and dancing teacher who presumably was drowned when she fell from Nelson's yacht here after a liquor party early last Wednesday.

Although Prosecutor Ewing D. Colvin announced there would be no further investigation of the tragedy unless additional evidence is uncovered, Nelson was held under a $20,000 bond. The other two men were freed.

Evidence was submitted indicating that three men and Mrs. Winona Gorman, fifth member of the party stood by without making any real effort to rescue Miss Payne.

The coroner's jury found that Miss Payne met death when she accidentally slipped and fell into Lake Union while stepping from the boat to the Seattle Yacht club dock, after what was termed a "wild party" aboard the vessel.
