COUNTY FAIR A SUCCESS

The annual Kershaw County Fair came to a close last Saturday with a mammoth parade by the colored school children of the county—all of the schools taking part in the parade. All traffic was stopped on Main street while they passed in review. It was a most creditable showing for these people and they highly appreciated the courtesies extended them by the city and the Fair Association.

The fair this year excelled any previous showing in number and quality of exhibits. It was also a success financially and is considered one of Kershaw county's growing institutions of learning.

The Chronicle deeply regrets that on account of lack of space and its inability to get all of the premium winners grouped that it will be impossible to carry a list of winners in this issue, but they will appear in a later issue of this paper.

All who took part in the putting on of this unusual show of farm progress deserve the highest praise for what was undoubtedly the best fair ever held in this county.

Unless the merchant who is catering to the public cultivates his field with advertising, he is just about in the same position as is the farmer who fails to fertilize his growing crops. It is not enough for the merchant to know he has the goods in his store. He must tell possible buyers about what he has to offer, the quality, styles and prices, says the Yorkville Enquirer.

James P. Jones, prominent business man, churchman and legislator, Friday was found guilty at Richmond, Va., of embezzling $4,944.50 from the Virginia Methodist Orphanage and sentenced to serve five years in the state penitentiary.

Five men and a woman were in the county jail at Sumter Friday charged with having taken part in the murder of Ezra Hodge, Sumter county farmer, early last summer. The sixth arrest was made late Thursday night when Remus Davis was taken into custody at his home eight miles from Sumter by Rural Officer Dillard. He is charged with being an accessory before the fact in the murder.

The body of Bertha Hood, 17, the daughter of William H. Hood, postmaster at Big Stone Gap, Va., was found near the Southern railway tracks on the outskirts of the town early Wednesday morning. She had been shot through the heart. Earl Rumion, 17, of Roanoke, Va., has been arrested and charged with having knowledge of the girls' slaying.

Norman Blakeley, 18-year-old negro, was convicted in court at Greenville last Monday afternoon of the murder of D. M. Garrett, Greenville county chancery guard, and was sentenced to die in the electric chair on December 19th. This was the second trial for Blakeley. The guard was killed over a year ago.

An election quarrel at Danville, Ky., Tuesday resulted in the fatal shooting of Ed Doneghy, negro, by Joe Hayden, 60, a white, democratic election challenger. Doneghy was killed when he visited the precinct to "straighten out" a trivial disagreement as to negro voting at the booth.

Former Lugoff Man Died From Injuries

Funeral services for Andrew Jackson Sloan, 36, who died in the Columbia hospital Saturday afternoon from a fatal injury he received when a flying piece of timber hurled by the whirling saws of an edging machine, was driven almost through his body, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the Broadway Baptist church, of which he was a member, conducted by Rev. Andrew Hartly, pastor. Interment will be in the Jackson Creek churchyard near Dentaville.

Mr. Sloan came to Cayce from Lugoff about three years ago. Since that time he has worked regularly in the mill of the Granville W. Taylor Lumber company of Cayce. He was held in high esteem by his employers and has made many friends who deplore his tragic and untimely death.

He leaves a widow and nine children who live in Cayce near the mill in which Mr. Sloan worked. Mrs. Sloan was before her marriage Miss Mamie Shannon of Kershaw. The children are, six daughters, Alice, Lottie, Rebecca, Gracie Lee, Ethel Mae and Mamie Blanche Sloan, three sons, Lester, Woodrow and Walter Sloan. Besides his immediate family he is survived by two sisters, Miss Dacie Brannon of Kershaw county and Mrs. Janie Corder who lives near Columbia; two half sisters, Mrs. Emma Hayes, and Mrs. Hunter Peterson, both of whom live in the state of Utah; and one brother, Charlie Sloan, who lives near Columbia.

Mr. Sloan was injured while standing by the machine into which he was feeding boards, at about 8 o'clock Saturday morning. The piece of timber was hurled with such momentum that it knocked Mr. Sloan to the ground several feet from the machine, breaking several ribs, going almost through his entire body and probably puncturing his right lung. Fellow workmen rushed to his aid but they could do nothing in response to the cries of agony from the sufferer.

An ambulance was immediately summoned and he was removed to the Columbia hospital. The 3-inch by 1-inch board about 4 feet long protruding from the gaping wound was removed and the hole it left, packed and dressed. He died shortly after 1 o'clock, after five hours of agonized suffering. His wife was at his bedside when the end came.

The wound was so serious that no hope was held for his life from the time of the accident.—Sunday's Columbia Record.

One Change For The Better

There are many who believe that any change in manners and customs must be a change for the worse. There are others, especially among the young folks, who eagerly welcome any change, regardless of its origin or its morals. Everybody realizes that social, economic and normal conditions have changed greatly all over the United States in the period dating from the beginning of the war. Doubtless some of the changes are improvements as certainly some of them seem to be thoughtful as recessions from older standards.

One change, however, seems to us definitely for the better. That is the change in the attitude to each other of the city people and the country people. Country folks no longer regard all city people as stuck-up snobs nor do city people think of the folks who live in small towns as uncouth pumpkins. The reason for this is that city and country people today dress alike, have the same standards of schooling, eat the same sort of things, ride in the same kind of cars over the same good roads, see the same movies, hear the same things over the radio, read the same magazines and books, and so are beginning to act alike, for the first time since rivalry between rural and urban points of view began.

We believe that is a good thing. We believe that we shall never become a completely unified nation until all sectional differences and prejudices have been wiped out. And, if that means modifying old standards, then let us modify them.—Aiken Standard.

Judge Ernest F. Cochran harked back to the days when men were hanged for stealing a horse in Federal Court at Columbia Friday afternoon when he sentenced young Charles C. Spires, of Orangeburg county, to four years in the Atlanta penitentiary for stealing automobiles. "When a man stole a horse he was hanged. I don't say to harken back as far as that, but I could give him 30 years," the judge remarked when Spires' counsel pleaded for clemency after the jury had brought in a guilty verdict.
