Our Washington correspondent on this page makes some good suggestions about the CWA work. It is just as well that people now employed by the government works begin to look around for something else to do, for this huge fund cannot be expended indefinitely and those in authority should be impressing this fact upon those now employed. The spring will see the opening up of farm operations and those who cannot get other work had better get back on the farm where they can at least make their food. It might be well that this be instilled into the workers, by those higher up, for hundreds and thousands of those employed never read the newspapers and the only way to reach them is by word of mouth.

TRIBUTE TO CAMDEN MAN

The Savannah Morning News of January 16 carries a highly complimentary notice to the memory of Moses Smith, one of Savannah's leading merchants, who died in that city suddenly. Mr. Smith was the son of the late Benjamin Mendel Smith, of Smithville, S. C., and Bertha Fried Smith, a native of Germany. He was born in Camden, S. C., January 21, 1878. The News says:
"High ideals, sterling integrity and a love of the artistic in merchandising, coupled with a firm faith in Savannah and the South, characterized the career of Moses Mendel Smith, whose sudden death yesterday evening will cause sincere regret in the community where the greater part of his life was spent. As president of the Globe Shoe Company, and as a director of the Atlantic Savings and Trust Company he occupied a prominent place in the business activities of the city, but his influence extended beyond the realms of commercial life and he was rated as one of the most clear-thinking and foremost citizens of the entire section.
"it was these attributes which won for him the distinction of being elected president of the Southeastern Retail Shoe Dealers Association and later to the directorate of the national association. He was regarded as an exceptionally high authority on correct style in merchandising. Those intimately associated with him in business and social life will ever cherish the memory of "Mose" Smith.
Although a native of Camden, S. C., he had resided in Savannah since boyhood and his steady rise in the business world was the natural result of perseverance, keen judgment and straightforward methods. He was a leading figure in the Retail Merchants Association and one of the organizers of the Merchants' Council of the Chamber of Commerce. Much of his social diversion was derived from membership in the Harmonic Club and the Savannah Lodge of Elks and as a lover of outdoor life, with something of a record as an athlete in his earlier days."

TEETH ALL GONE

Those who will read with pleasure of the discoveries coming from experiments with diet as a preventative of disease of the teeth and gums will remember that we grow in Horry County the very articles of diet that are needed for these purposes.
It is nothing unusual to see men and women of not yet forty years of age, carrying storebought teeth in their mouths, while it has been proved that the right sort of diet of things grown right here in the county would have preserved their natural teeth in all of their hardness and whiteness, if they had not belonged to that class of people who will persist in eating habits that are destructive.
Safety lies in the use of the right quantity of fresh fruit and vegetables, juices from the berries, the apples, the grapes, the oranges, the lemons, the peaches, and the right amount of spring butter from grass fed cows, some lean meat and poultry and eggs.
The use of too much white bread, white cakes, molasses and strong coffee, will bring on many troubles as well as the diseased gums in which the best of good white teeth can never stand up under the pressure of work that is put on them.—Conway Herald.
The New York police department has put the ban on the use of streamlined taxis on its streets, if the cars are so stream lined that passengers cannot be seen from the street as they pass by. It is claimed that this type of cars lend themselves "to the commission of crime" and would be "a menace to public safety and morals of the street."

Seven persons were buried, two more were buried, when the tank of a truck exploded while it was being filled with gasoline.

Capital Observations
(Special Correspondence)

Washington, Jan. 30.—The administration's measure for devaluing the dollar has become a law, the senate by a vote of sixty-six to twenty-three voting favorably with some amendments not very material upon the bill as passed by the house of representatives. The Treasury is given title to all the nation's monetary gold stocks, and the coinage of gold is declared at an end. The metal is to be held in bullion form as backing for paper currency. The President is authorized to revalue the dollar at fifty to sixty per cent of its present statutory gold equivalent, and it is considered that the reduction will be held at sixty cents worth of gold. A $2-999,000,000 stabilization fund is created and placed in charge of the Secretary of the Treasury for stabilizing the dollar abroad. The main result at present is that one cannot get more than sixty per cent worth of gold for a dollar, and in fact cannot get any gold at all, as the gold is to be held by the government, but at home and abroad the face value of a dollar will be only sixty cents in gold. Experts prophesy and high hopes are entertained that commodities will steadily increase in price as the result of the enactment of the law.
In the past few years there has been steadily growing a tendency toward the free and unlimited coinage of silver, as advocated by the immortal William J. Bryan, but in conservative circles it has been regarded as dangerous, and leading to unrestricted inflation. In the senate an amendment was offered to the money bill just passed providing for the purchase of 750,000,000 ounces of silver by the government, and was defeated by the narrow margin of forty-five to forty-three. Had the amendment become a part of the law the practical result would have been the free coinage of silver at the ratio of sixteen to one.
The president is understood to be opposed to free coinage, and he has escaped an embarrassing situation by the defeat of the amendment. It is thought probable that the agitation for free coinage may now subside, with the prospect of extensive expansion of the currency under provisions of law now in force.
Within the next six months it is incumbent upon the Federal government to float approximately ten billion dollars worth of securities, nearly half of which is to take up accru-ing liberty loans, renewing the same, and the remainder is to meet the enormous expenditures for relief purposes undertaken within the past few months. A start has been made within the past week by offering a billion of comparatively short-time securities, to run from nine to fourteen months. Such loans are more readily accepted, and much lower rates of interest can be provided, the rate being 11-2 per cent for the shorter period and 21-2 for the longer. The result of the offerings was very gratifying to the Treasury, the issues being over-subscribed several times.
This indicates clearly that the investing public has not become afraid or suspicious of the credit of the government, regardless of the action taken in the devaluation of the dollar.

It would be well for the recipients of government aid to realize that such help cannot continue indefinitely, and in fact cannot last much longer. As the Spring and work time approaches those who can get jobs had better do so without hesitation and without delay. President Roosevelt has asked Congress for $950,000,000 more to continue the emergency relief program, and it will doubtless be available, but the end of public help is bound to come, and before long. It has been the intention of the administration to cease civil works expenditures by May first, but a great deal has arisen for an extension. It is the wish and purpose of the President that suffering be relieved as far as possible, but the public debt is piling up enormously and such a condition cannot continue indefinitely.

In the "good old days" before the Civil War the governorship of the state of South Carolina was considered such a high honor that it is a matter of record that there was a resignation of a member of the United States Senate in order that the retiring senator might become governor. But times have changed, and not for the best, some may hold.
Hugh S. Thompson resigned as governor to accept the position of assistant secretary of the treasury in the first administration of Grover Cleveland, and it is only comparatively recent that Robert A. Cooper gave up the governorship to accept a Federal position in Washington.
Cooper was recently appointed as Federal judge of Puerto Rico, and departed to assume the duties of the position. His appointment is of course charged up to South Carolina.

PADDED RELIEF ROLLS

Undoubtedly great numbers of people are on the rolls of relief and are being made beneficiaries of the Federal government's generous hand who could not qualify as among those in extreme need and destitution.
Out of the very nature of the case it would be virtually impossible to have a maximum efficiency in this administration which would weed out all those who are slipping in and receiving the benefits of this saving service.
The fact that the relief rolls may be somewhat padded with such persons should not be considered a legiti-mate basis for indiscriminate criticism of the manner of administration.
It should, however, make those in charge of this work all the more faithful and diligent to see to it that the number of such as these is kept down as low as possible.
This fund is not intended for those who are able to go on their own momentum, neither is it aimed to be so attractive that workers will desert private employment on any kind of flimsy excuse and get themselves enrolled for available public work because of a more alluring situation.
Investigation ought to be made paramount and relentlessly pressed among all applicants for these funds.
It is the only way to keep the padding from becoming outrageously high.— Charlotte Observer.

DILLINGER'S GANG

Some of the statements made to police by Walter Detrich, one of the 10 convicts who escaped from the state prison in September, were borne out by the robbery of a bank at East Chicago, and the slaying of a policeman who attempted to capture the bandits. Detrich said the Dillinger gang was "murder crazy," and that every member of it was ready to shoot to kill if there was the slightest interference by officers of the law; that the gang was provided with bullet-proof vests and that this equipment, in addition to its arms and ammunition, gave it a sense of security. Dillinger, paroled by the governor last summer, was identified as the leader of the band that operated in East Chicago, and John Hamilton, one of the 10 escaped criminals as the man who killed the policeman.
Before he fell the officer pumped lead into the armored vests of Hamilton and Dillinger without effect. Four bullets are known to have bounced off Dillinger. The 10 men escaped from Michigan City Prison after a experienced warden had been replaced by one without institutional experience, and after many of the old guards had been discharged to make way for others. Had there been adequate discipline at the prison the escape probably could have been prevented.
Detrich said that an elephant could be smuggled into the prison if enclosed in a box. He may have been right.
He certainly was right about his description of the Dillinger gang and his warning of its lust for blood.—

Secretary of the Treasury Mergenthau has started the machinery for borrowing the $10,000,000 needed by the government this year. He is offering treasury notes, paying 21-2 per cent and due March 15, 1935, and $500,000,000 of certificates of indebtedness, bearing interest of 11-2 per cent and payable September 15 of this year.

Admirals of the navies of Great Britain, Austria and New Zealand met at Singapore this week for their first conference in 13 years, to discuss naval policies in the Pacific.

when as a matter of fact he has not been an actual resident or actively connected with the state for quite a while. His case is in line with that of Daniel C. Roper, Secretary of Commerce, and James M. Baker, appointed as minister to Siam, neither of whom has been identified with the state for a long number of years. It would seem that there is here a clique of non-residents, who have to a large extent controlled the patronage of the state, grabbing all they can for themselves. R. S. Whaley, formerly a member of Congress from the Charleston district, is another instance.
He retired from Congress, took up his residence in Washington, and in due time was appointed a member of the Federal court of claims, as a South Carolinian, of course. He secured his position, however, under a past administration, and how he got it has never been made plain, as such appointments under Republican administrations were exceedingly rare.

The South Carolina legislature evidently intends to accept as a mandate for prohibition the vote of the state against the repeal of the eighteenth amendment to the Federal constitution, as shown by the decisive vote in the house of representatives on the question of permitting dispensaries in such counties as were favorable. It may be hoped that the time of the legislature may now be devoted to more urgent and more appropriate propositions.

Son is Arrested for Slaying His Mother

Rocky Mount, N. C., Jan. 29.—Clyde Smith, 26, young Nash county farmer, was being held in Nashville jail today charged with the fatal wounding of his mother, Mrs. W. T. Smith, 47, early today after an argument over the use of the family automobile.
According to Deputy Sheriff J. H.
Griffin, who arrested the boy, Smith seized a shotgun after he had been denied the right to use his father's automobile, and fired through the glass front door of his father's house, the lead taking effect in the face of his mother. She died within a few minutes.
Griffin said the boy was under the influence of liquor at the time. Young Smith is said to have fought with his father earlier in the day and showed signs of having been badly beaten, the deputy added. Griffin said that he was given to understand that the load of shot was intended for the boy's father instead of his mother.
Young Smith is married and the father of two children.

ONE KIND OF A SUBSCRIBER

One day last week while one of The Enquirer's subscribers was paying for another year, he related that a neighbor, who was over a year in arrears on his subscription, had said he did not propose to pay because he had not ordered the paper sent him after the subscription had expired.
Well, within the past year I've seen the delinquent on the streets a number of times. If he did not intend paying, the gentlemanly thing to have done, was to notify me to take his name off the mailing list.
However, I am happy to say the man in question is most unusual in his attitude. The past three or four years have been tough ones with most of us. I've had no desire to cut anyone of our subscribers from the mailing list. By not doing so they are paying up now when conditions are improving. Any man who will say he cannot pay for his paper because of financial reverses, we shall "remember it no more forever."

But a good citizen rarely goes about bragging that he will not pay an honest debt.—Monroe Enquirer.

ed 852, a gain of 176 over 1932. There were 102 road fatalities in December.

ed after they had stolen 400 pounds ing it at cut rates at a curb market.

SUNDAY DINNER
SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

If you like orange marmalade why not make it yourself of the fine cheap oranges or equally good grapefruit now in market? A favorite recipe uses one orange, one grapefruit and one lemon. Strawberries are also of good quality and moderately priced.
The vegetable stores are full of unusually fine vegetables, all reasonable or low in price. New cabbage, California Brussels sprouts, broccoli and cauliflower are all choice quality.
String beans and spinach are winter stand-bys whose price fluctuates more or less according to weather conditions. They are always reasonable and often cheap. Green peas and lima beans are more expensive but are still moderately priced. Tomatoes are increasingly plentiful and cheaper week by week. Many salad plants are available including lettuce, onion, watercress, cucumbers, radishes and shallots.

lowing Sunday dinners planned to fit different budgets.
