Thayer Relates His Own Experiences Here As A Winter Visitor

Camden: Fashionable Blue Ridge Resort for Jumpers, the way the bold-lettered title reads that introduces a lengthy description of this nationally famous center of equestrian activity in the recently published "Steeplechase" by Bert Clark Thayer, author-photographer Thayer, a special nod of approval to the way he goes off the record and tells his readers of his experiences here as a guest in the winter colonies. Camden will always be remembered by me with not a little fond sentiment, for I was thoroughly exposed to its charms during a few days visit in winter of 1935," Thayer writes. "Peter Vischer, editor of the magazine, had seen some foal photos I'd done for my own commercial studio and he if I wouldn't like to do a few days vacation in a full town in South Carolina magazine's expense and back a few pictures. The Southern hospitality and full days of being a part horse activity there did this brief visit and subsequent winters there will always ease turn to page eight)

Parallel Parking On DeKalb Street May Be Instituted

The State Highway Department has written the city a letter in which it very strongly urges that parallel parking be instituted in the business sections of DeKalb and Broad streets.

City Council will take up the matter at its meeting on Friday afternoon. It is said that Council members may be disposed to adopt the suggestion for DeKalb street but it is not thought that they will look favorably upon the suggestion for Broad street.

The highway department has vetoed the "no left turn" restrictions at the intersection of Broad and DeKalb streets and the city has abandoned them.

The "no left turn" restrictions were put on by the city in an effort to speed up traffic in the afternoons when the Du Pont workers are turned loose. There has been a heavy congestion of traffic in the afternoons when the flow of traffic from the plant hits the city and it was felt that the "no left turn" restrictions were aiding in the solution of the problem. But the highway department disapproved.

LION GOVERNOR HERE

Camden Lions looked forward to hearing Dr. J. Harold Wolfe, of Rock Hill, their district governor, at their meeting on Thursday night.

Ground Broken For New Sunday School Building

First Baptist Church Is To Have New $100,000 Educational Plant

Standing in the center of a tight semi-circle of officials of the First Baptist church, J. D. Crawford, chairman of the building committee, formally turned the first earth Tuesday, Jan. 10, in beginning the construction of the Church's new $100,000 Educational Building.

The brief, simple ceremony, attended principally by deacons and committeemen, consisted of a short scripture reading and prayer by the pastor, Rev. O. Floyd Montgomery.

Announcement of definite plans for the construction of the Educational Building came at the close of the recent three-week revival staged at the church. Estimates were made on plans drawn by Architect Ralph Little, and the construction contract was awarded the Atlantic Building Corporation of Columbia for their low bid of $92,993.

The forced hot water heating system to be used in the new building will be installed by W. B. Guimarin and Co., of Columbia for an estimated $6,886.

The large, two-story building, which will be located in the rear of the church will extend from Lafayette almost to Walnut street. It is to be constructed of brick and structural tile, and will include steel bar joists and concrete floors.

Six assembly rooms, one large recreation room, a kitchen and 20 classrooms will be contained in the new building. Architect Little's proposed plans included a wing to be built on the north side of the building, but present building plans do not include it. The additional wing will be added, however, at a later date, church officials say.

The members of the building committee present at the ceremony were: J. D. Crawford, chairman; John Laney, A. W. West, DaCosta Brown and M. E. Fort.

Members of the board of deacons who attended the groundbreaking ceremonies were: T. C. Gladden, J. E. Ross, Sidney West and Alvin Christmas.

The other high school districts will be made up by grouping the present districts with the high school that is now serving them. The only major change proposed by the committee in this respect is the amalgamation of the Antioch school district 6 with Midway.

The groupings recommended are as follows:

Kershaw district will contain school districts 40, 47, 46 and 10.
Mt. Pisgah district is to contain districts 2, 31 and 7.
Bethune district will include districts 20, 22, 23 and 5.
Midway High School district is to include 4, 6, 25, 42 and 15.
Camden district includes 1, 2, 43, 29, 16, with the latter two being Lugoff and Pine Grove.
Baron DeKalb district includes 13, 27, 8, 9, 41, 19, 33, 28, 37, 30.
For Blaney, the grouping will include districts 11, 12, 39 and 38.
The committee directs attention to the fact that it has no authority to locate schools or to promote schools in any area, and that the trustees of any district may make arrangements to send children in their districts to neighborhood districts if the situation warrants.
The reorganization committee is proposing that county-wide taxes be distributed in all districts asked that the county board of education supervise the educational functions of the county with the county superintendent of education acting as executive officer. The board would be composed of the chairmen of the high school districts boards of trustees while the high school districts boards of trustees would be composed of the local school district boards. The committee is said to have felt that such a plan would give a grass-roots foundation to the educational functions of the county.

Austin Sheheen New President Of Supreco

New Directors Added To Board And Plans Made For Increased Trade

Austin Sheheen, well known young business man of the city, has been elected president of the Supreme Products Company of Camden, several new directors have been added to the board and plans are being made for a vigorous campaign to popularize the products of the company.

H. A. Rabon has been named as vice president of the company, and George W. Haiglar, who recently assumed the position of general manager, will continue in that part.

Directors of the corporation are the three above named officers and Henry Savage, Jr., J. C. Gillis, E. T. Bowen, Lathan Gettys, Joe M. Upchurch and R. M. Kennedy, III.

In preparation for the increased business, the company has finished installation of a rendering plant which will enable it to slaughter as frequently as the occasion demands and has installed a new electric meat saw.

The company is offering to the livestock growers of the Camden area a daily livestock market, five days a week. Growers can bring their livestock to the company at any time and sell at market prices, thus eliminating the necessity of carrying same elsewhere and paying commission prices.

An effort is to be made to popularize the products of the company locally. The company insists that its products will compare most favorably with those of any other company and local people will be urged to use them because in doing so they will be assisting a home industry.

Officers and directors of the company are greatly encouraged over the outlook and believe that the company is bound to grow and become one of Camden's important industries.

Mr. Haiglar, the new general manager, has had many years experience in the packing business.
