Woman's Influence in the Life of the Nation. Every Woman Should Read It.

President Roosevelt delivered an address before the Congress of Mothers in Washington last week, which every woman should read. We give the entire speech below:

In our modern industrial civilization there are many and grave dangers to conterbalance the splendors and the triumphs It is not a good thing to see cities grow at a disproportionate speed little homes, and therefore to a very large extent the men who till farms, the man of the soil, having hitherto made the foundation of lasting national life in every State; and, if the foundation becomes either too weak danger of falling.

izens is the question of how their famliy life is conducted. No matter what that, occupation may be, as long as those who make up that home do their every upright soul. duty to one another, to their neighbors and to the State, it is of minor consequence whether the man's trade is plied in the country or in the city, whether it calls for the work of the and indeed a little more; and I regard hands or for the work of the head.

VALUE OF THE FAMILY HOME. But the nation is in a bad way it there is no real home, if the family is not of the right kind; if the man is not a good husband and father, if he is brutally or cowardly or selfish, if the woman has lost her sense of duty, if she is sunk in vapid self indulgence or has let her nature be twisted so that she prefers a sterile pseudo-intellectuality to that great and beautiful development of character which comes only to those whose lives know the fullness of duty done, of effort made and self-sacrifice undergone.

In the last analysis the welfare of the State depends absolutely upon whether or not the average family, the to come after us. #### MAN THE BREADWINNER.

There are certain old truths that will be true as long as this world endures, and which no amount of progress can alter. One of these is the truth that the primary duty of the husband is to be home maker, the bread winner for his wife and childdren and that the primary duty of the woman is to be the helpmeet, the house wife and mother. The woman should have ample educational advantages; but save in exceptional cases the man must be and she need not be, and generally ought not to be, trainbreadwinner; and, therefore, after a daughters is thrice fortunate among certain point the training of the two must normally be different because the duties of the two are normally different. This daes not mean inequality of function, but it does mean that normally there must be dissimilarity of children, and for these we have the function. On the whole, I think the duty of the woman the more impor those who, from no fault of their own, to Lake Village and placed in the tant, the more difficult and the more are denied any of the other great more than I respect the man who does work, but I am not speaking of exceptions: I am speaking of the primary any save a very rich man should be to duties, I am speaking of the average rear two children, only, so as to give who make up the nation.

Inasmuch as I am speaking to au as-semblage of mothers I shall have nothing whatever to say in praise of an easy life. Yours is the work which is never ended. No mother has an easy time, and most mothers have very hard times; and yet what true mother would barter for experience of joy and sorrow in exchange for a life of cold selfishness, which insists upon prepetual amusement and the avoidance of care, and which often finds its fit dweiling place in some flat designed to furnish with the least possible expenditure of effort the maximum of comfort and of luxury, but in which there is literally no place for children.

NO GRISELDA TYPE The woman who is a good wife, a good mother, is entitled to our respect as is no one else; but she is entitled to it only because, and so long as, she is worthy of it. Effort and self sacrifice are the law of worthy life for the man as for the woman; though neither the relatively to the country; for the small effort nor the self sacrifice may be the land owners, the men who own their same for the one as for the other. I do not in the least believe in the patient Griselda type of woman, in the woman who submits to gross and long continued ill treatment, any more than I believe in a man who tamely submits to wrongful aggression. No or too narrow, the superstructure, no wrong-doing is so abhorrent as wrong matter how attractive, is in eminent doing by a man towards the wife and the children who should arouse every But far more important than the tender feeling in his nature. I believe in the woman's keeping her self-respect just as I believe in the man's doing so. I believe in her rights just as much as I believe in the man's marriage as a partnership, in which think of the rights of the other as well such a result be in any way regreteach partner is in honor bound to as of his or her own. But I think that the duties are even more important than the rights; and in the long run I think that the reward is ampler and greater for duty well done, than for the insistence upon individual rights necessary though this, too, must often be.
