HERE AND HEREBABOUTS.

All roads in three or four counties will lead toward Rivers' Bridges or Meyer's Mill tomorrow.

Fall sown not crops are reported to be quite good. The Spring rains have been sufficient for them.

Probate Judge G. Duncan Bellinger of Columbia spent Saturday and Sunday in his old home town.

A good many men, candidates especially, would like to be in the two wide apart places today—at Rivers' Bridges and Meyer's Mill.

Col. Butler Hagood has sold out the surplus Jersey advertised in The Progress, and quit bothering him with applications for premier cows until next Spring.

Confederate veterans of the county are preparing to attend the reunion in Mason, Ga., week after next. Mason is also preparing for their great good treatment.

Rev. W. J. Snyder, who has been threatened with appendicitis, went to Columbia on Monday for treatment. His many friends wish him a complete recovery and early home coming.

Remember that Saturday next will be club meeting day and don't wait for anybody to invite or urge you to be on time and get there. Every man has the right to attend and the duty is on every man.

Tomorrow, Friday, will be observed as Confederate Memorial Day at Barnwell. After placing flowers at the monument and in the church yards by the people of this county, the highest type of Christian gentleman. He always had a kind word for the lowest of mankind as well as the highest, irrespective of race or color. He was one of the first of my friends to leave his home and stand by me in expressions of sympathy in the greatest bereavement of my life, the irreparable loss of my devoted wife and to witness the last farewell rites at the face of a most noble woman. Judge Robert Aldrich was a man second to none in point of ability, as a jurist, fair and honest in all of his opinions and rulings on the bench unbiassed by favoritism or preference in every sense of the word. But a few weeks before his death he had the pleasure of meeting him at my daughter's home in the city of Florence; he was then still on his bench and there for treatment at the McLeod infirmary. He was quite cheerful and thought of the approaching end of his life with a serene and calm acceptance of the inevitable. A good man is gone and to await the great day of the dead resurrection.

Prof. Horace J. Crouch is in Charleston for the remainder of the week, attending the meeting of the State Teachers Association. His office will therefore, be closed until next week. The county is handsomely represented in Charleston. The faculties of the Healing Springs and Altitude schools, seven from Williston, &c., are there.

CAUSE AND CURE.

Mrs. J. W. C. Reed, who has had year after year splendid success in raising poultry, had the opinion that the trouble in feeding of corn in a case of chicken cholera. As a preventive she gives Japanese oil and carbolic acid in dough and has done so for years. This year she neglected the use of preventive treatment and the disease appeared in her handsome flock, causing several deaths. She first used the oil and acid in dough, then the poke root were put in the drinking vessel and no more died. The oil and acid combined make a fine tonic for fowls, promoting their health and industry.

A HELPFUL LETTER.

Dear Editor,
You ask for more information on hog cholera and now I am going to tell you my experience.

I had cholera among my hogs twice in fifteen years and each time it killed nearly all of them, but it has been about fifteen years since I have lost any hogs with cholera.

Now, when one of my hogs gets sick I give it about ten drops of carbolic acid in about two quarts of thick slop once every day or once every two days, owing to the case. If the hog be too sick to eat I dress it with the acid, making a weak solution of it by putting it in sweet milk.

To keep my hogs in a healthy condition I give them spirits of turpentine or kerosene oil all along in their slop. Copperas is also good to give them to keep them healthy.

When my hogs get full of lice I spray them with kerosene about once a week until the lice is destroyed. I also keep the buzzards from sitting on trees in pasture by shooting at them. I think probably the hogs might contract the cholera from the buzzards.

Yours very truly,
Jno. M. Brant.

ANOTHER CYCLONE.

But fortunately not very violent blew in Georges Creek town on Monday. The stoutly built framed dining room of Mr. John Tucker was blown down, his barn unroofed, a near by unoccupied log house wrecked and numerous trees twisted off. Mr. and Mrs. Tucker, with their many children were about to begin eating dinner when, alarmed by the angry cloud appearance, they ran out into the yard, leaving the house just in time to escape any injury. This small cyclone was about a hundred yards wide. Its path was less than a mile from the track of the tornado of April 23rd, 1866, which did great damage and traces of which are yet seen.

LONG BRANCH PHILOSOPHY.

M-quitos, houseflies, bed bugs, hound puppies and candidates are all pests that are left for the poor bucca and people who are not up to date to contend with, then because he can't afford the screens and don't realize the material danger; second, he don't believe that the housefly contains a billion typhoid germs apiece; third, he don't know how to get rid of them but he mark upon his forehead upon a hot night; fourth, he loves to have his feet too wet to plow; fifth, he is easier bored and is more ready to promise what he is going to do in the primary (except he die) and all the promises and affirmative epistles, he is like pie crust, especially when made so easily. Besides he must drive on trying to turn as many furrows as possible after the round of jokes and his reasons for wanting it has been told. So we here give notice that ourself and any willing help which may have been employed can be hindered only by paying back the work, no matter whether any promises are made or not.

A HEART TRIBUTE TO A FRIEND.

EDITOR OF THE BARNWELL PEOPLE:—
For the reason of indisposition for some months past I have been forced to put off from time to time the writing of this short tribute to the memory of my life long and devoted friend, Judge Robert Aldrich, and even now I am totally deficient in language to convey to the world the love and admiration that I have felt for him. Yes, truly I can say I was a friend to me and to my people to which his own words will testify. And it is, furthermore, due to his memory that I should of my own knowledge give notice to the world of his self and to my people but to all good men, women and orphans. He never turned a deaf ear to the cries of suffering humanity. So great was his kindness to me that he was heard to say on many occasions that he never had charged nor ever would charge me or any of my people one cent for any professional service rendered or that he could render in the future.

Judge Robert Aldrich was a man with the size of his body the very highest type of Christian gentleman. He always had a kind word for the lowest of mankind as well as the highest, irrespective of race or color. He was one of the first of my friends to leave his home and stand by me in expressions of sympathy in the greatest bereavement of my life, the irreparable loss of my devoted wife and to witness the last farewell rites at the face of a most noble woman. Judge Robert Aldrich was a man second to none in point of ability, as a jurist, fair and honest in all of his opinions and rulings on the bench unbiassed by favoritism or preference in every sense of the word. WINTHROP NEWS.

Extensive preparations are being made for the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Winthrop Training School for Teachers. This will be held in the old High School. The school day will be on Monday, April 22nd, at 10 o'clock the possession of invited guests, trustees, teachers, alumnae, former students and present students will march to the new Training School where the corner stone will be laid with Masonic ceremonies. After this, all will go to the auditorium where two addresses will be delivered—one by Mr. Lawton B. Evans, of the city schools of Augusta, and another by Dr. E. S. Johnson, who will give a history of the institution. This will be followed by a luncheon, during which guests will be called on for impromptu toasts. A reception at night will close the exercises of the day. This is an important event in the life of the college and every effort will be made to make the celebration worthy of the occasion. It is particularly desired that every former student of the college shall be present. Many of these cannot be now reached by invitation but each one is invited to come. Accommodation will be provided for any of those who will inform Dr. Johnson for purpose to attend.

We spend a very pleasant day in Columbia on April 11, when about six hundred of the girls went down for the unveiling of the monument to the Women of the Confederacy. The day seemed all too short and almost before we knew it we were back at Winthrop home.

We are looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to the coming of the State Oratorical Contest which will be held in the Winthrop Auditorium April 28th.

Senator and Mrs. B. R. Tillman are visiting at Winthrop. Mr. Tillman gave us a very short talk which was deeply appreciated and enjoyed by all.

The meeting of the schools of York county at Winthrop was largely attended. In the morning there was an inspection of the exhibits from the different schools, recitations by representatives of the different schools and a picnic lunch served on the campus. The exhibits from the schools were excellent and showed splendid work, by teacher and pupil.

NEWS AND OPINIONS.

Governor Blease has paroled until October J. Stobo Young, secretary of the failed Seminole Securities Company who was serving his year's sentence in the penitentiary.

Major Archie Butt, of Augusta, Ga., was one of the bravest heroes that met death unafraid in the Franco-Prussian war. He had been military aide to President Roosevelt and continued in that capacity with President Taft. He had been on a sea trip to Europe for his health and was homeward bound on the ill fated steamer.

DEATHS.

DR. J. H. E. MILHOUSE.
Born March 4th, 1855.
Died April 18th, 1912.

There was very little difference in our ages. He was one of my earliest friends, the first to question me with me at my home, as was the custom of the countryside in the old days. We began our school life at the same time and attended Furman University together. Since then I have known him intimately and in all those years I have never heard man or woman or child say an unkind word of him.

Such was the touching tribute paid by a life long friend to the memory of Dr. J. H. E. Milhouse, words as sweet and true and fraught of love as the flowers that loving hands had placed with tender touch on the new made grave.

The Father above spared him long suffering and when the sudden summons came and the green turf he failed and the gentle eyes closed in the last sleep he was ready for the transition. For he had been as a crystal from the cradle to the final moment. All his years were eloquent with his devotion to the right. A consistent member of the Baptist Church he lived the religion that he professed. A citizen of the purest unselfishness his head and hand gave their best thought and help to every wise plan and endeavor for the betterment of humanity. This high esteem in which he was held by his professional brethren was shown by them in their choice of him as the President of their State Association. The love of the community of his home, for the betterment of humanity, was honored in his noble character will keep his memory in fresh remembrance until they shall follow and find him again and there shall be no more partings.

His body was laid to rest in the Blackville cemetery on Friday, his pastor, Rev. J. P. Pickett, conducting the funeral services, a large attendance of sorrowing ones joining in the last tribute to one by all beloved. He rests in peace and though he is gone his example will not be forgotten.

A GOOD MAN GONE.

The largest congregation that the writer has ever seen at Double Ponds Baptist Church assembled on Tuesday afternoon, April 16, to pay the last respect to the memory of Isaac H. Hutcheson, who died the day previous of double pneumonia. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Paul Holm, assisted by Rev. W. G. Banton, The Blackville and Hills lodges of Woodmen of the World conducted their impressive services at the grave. As deacon, Sunday school worker and Christian citizen Bro. Hutcheson will be missed by those who knew him. Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to the widow, daughters, mother and bereaved family and friends.
