CHURCH COUNTY CIRCULATION

THURSDAY, JUNE 13, 1912.

SEIGLER'S SENTENCE.

That was a pathetic hour in Aiken Court on Saturday morning when Judge Hayne F. Rice imposed the sentence of seven years service in the penitentiary on the public works of the county upon his townsman, James E. Seigler, the rich farmer who had been found guilty of manslaughter in having shot to death on November 17th of last year policeman Wade Patterson.

In passing sentence Judge Rice expressed a touching sympathy for the wife and child, the dear gray haired mother and honored father in law of the surviving actor in the tragedy.

Judge Rice said, in part:

"Jim, I trust that I shall never again, so long as I sit upon the Bench, face a duty so pitiful to me—the duty of passing sentence upon you. You must know this, and it is useless, needless for me to mention it. I hope that there will nev r arise such another occasion.

"I have done my best to give you a fair and impartial trial, and I believe you have had it, Jim Seigler, if any man ever has. Of course, Wade Patterson's life cannot be given back God gave him life, as he gives it to you and to me; you took it away.

"The theory of the law is not only to punish, but to reform a man when he has gone wrong. This theory is too often, too often, forgotten. Oftentimes a man is sent to the penitentiary for a long term of years for something he has done in the heat of passion. He comes out wrecked, broken, ruined, to take up again the last thread of his battle with the cold, harsh world. How much more merciful would be execution! How much better for him that he had been hanged! Yet, when a man breaks the law, the law says that he must suffer, and it is right that he should. My advice to you, Jim, is to serve your sentence faithfully; you have done wrong; now take your punishment like a man. And, when you have returned home to your family, to your wife and child, take an oath right then and there that you will never put another drop of whisky to your mouth as long as you live, and stick to that oath, Jim. If you will do that, I am satisfied that you can be the man you ought to be and become a more useful citizen when you come back. Of that I have no doubt.

"Having all these matters in my mind and in my heart I have endeavored to fix a sentence that will serve the purposes of the law and, at the same time, show mercy to you; a sentence that will serve the purposes of the law, but will, at the same time, send you back in the very prime of life to your people—send you back a redeemed man."

UNFIT FOR FREEDOM?

If reports of conditions in Cuba are half true the last estate of the people of that new republic is far worse than under Spanish rule from which they were liberated by the so-called war for humanity.

War between equal peoples is all that Sherman term d it, but between races it would be far more horrible.

The relations between the whites and blacks of Cuba seem to be strained to the point of breaking into a race war. Large numbers of negroes have taken up arms in Oriente, the eastern province of the island, a mountainous country from whose safe fastnesses they may commit all manner of depredations on the plantations of the country and the smaller towns and cities. The property of foreign citizens is endangered and as sponsor for the baby government the United States government seems to feel itself responsible for the restoration and maintenance of peace. It has agreed to supply the Cuban government with 10 000 army rifles and ammunition and has sent battleships to the threatened cities. At danger points marines have been landed for the protection of property, and preparations are completed for throwing 5,000 American soldiers in quick time on the island.

The West India negro is a much more desperate and dangerous person than the American. He is far behind the race in the United States in civilization and Christianity and is little less savage than his ancestors were when brought from darkest Africa.

When Grover Cleveland was Governor of New York he said that Theodore Roosevelt, then a member of the Legislature, was the most adroit politician he had ever known.

Col. Roosevelt's opponents in the Republican camp have been trying for years to get rid of him, but Teddy's luck has held good, The Vice-Presidency, previously a sort of grave yard position for ambitious men, was forced on him, but the assassin's bullet laid low President McKinley and put T. R. in the White House. And no one need be surprised if he should capture the third term nomination at Chicago next week, beating Taft to a frazzle. His spectacular past seems to have captured the popular heart and to have dulled the thought that every dance must end in fatigue and that its fiddlers must be paid.

MAKING HISTORY.

On next Tuesday the national Republican convention will meet in Chicago to nominate candidates for President and Vice-President. By the end of the week the names of its standard bearers will be known.

The convention will be composed of 1,078 delegates, white men, black men, &c. The rights to seats and votes of nearly one fourth of those chosen as delegates have been contested and the national committee has been for a week passing on their credentials and is still busy. At this writing, Monday, the signs indicate the renomination of President Taft and a sorehead bolt by Col. Roosevelt.
