very hard to express it file of the people of this country great service. It is hard to speak a these things without seeming to go of into campaign eloquence, but that is not my feeling. It is one of profound gratitude, that working with the splendid men who have carried this thing through with studious at tention and doing justice all round I should have had part in serving the people of this country as we have been striving to serve them ever since I can remember

"I have had the accomplishment of something like this at heart ever was a boy, and know min around me who can say the same thing who have been waiting to see the things done which it was might be justice in the United States, and so it is a solemn moment that brings such a business to a conclusion

demanding too much of myself or of my colleagues when I say that th's great as it is, is the accomplishment of only half the journey. We have set the business of this country free from those conditions which have made monopoly not only possible but there is no use taking away the conditions of monopoly if we do not also take away the power to create monopoly, and it is financial rather than a merely circumstantial and economic power

"The power to control and guide and direct the credits of the country is the power to say who shall and who shall not build up the industries of the country, in which direction they shall be built, and in which di rection they shall not be built. We are now about to take the second step, which will be the final step in setting the business of this country free. That is what we shall do in the currency bill, which the House has already passed and which I have the country 'for what do we wait?'
