

THE BARNWELL PEOPLE

Established in 1877.

"Just Like a Member of the Family"

Largest County Circulation.

VOLUME XLVI.

BARNWELL, SOUTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, APRIL 12TH, 1923.

NUMBER 32.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

NEWS FROM WILLISTON

The Misses Black Entertained at Cards in Honor of Visitors.

Williston, April 7.—Mrs. Chester Page, of Augusta spent a few days this week with Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Mixson.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Mitchell went to Columbia last Saturday and returned first part of this week and attended quite a number of the Sunday meetings.

Rev. and Mrs. M. W. Rankin have returned from a visit to their daughter, Mrs. Cook at Greeleyville.

Mrs. W. H. Manning has returned from a visit to her sister, Mrs. N. H. Sharrard, in Commerce, Ga. Mrs. Manning's children remained with Mrs. Sharrard for a visit of several weeks.

Miss Mary Harvey Newsom returned to Coker College at Hartsville last Tuesday after spending the Easter holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Newsom.

Miss Hattie Smith has returned to Converse College after spending the holidays with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Smith.

Mrs. W. C. Smith, Sr. has returned from Augusta hospital considerably improved.

Messrs. J. J. and W. C. Bell spent several days in Augusta last week with their sister, Mrs. Wm. D. Hair, who is ill.

Mrs. Sarah Merritt "Boone" and daughter, of Langley, were the guests of Mrs. F. T. Merritt last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Grandy were visitors in Williston Sunday.

Mrs. W. O. Sprawls has returned from a visit to her daughter, Mrs. E. C. O'Shields at Cross Anchor.

Elizabeth Fletcher is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Kitchings.

Mr. J. H. Shesley spent the weekend in Columbia.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul S. Green and Mrs. Marcella Cave were visitors in Augusta Monday.

Mrs. Ollie Ray was among those who heard Mr. Sunday in Columbia last Monday.

Murray Sprawls, of Lakeland, Fla. is visiting relatives in this section.

Jeese Bowman has returned to his home in Savannah after a visit in this section.

After a visit in this section Messrs. W. J. Walker and Jim Curry have returned to their homes in Columbia. Mrs. E. A. Walker accompanied them back and will take in the Sunday meetings while in the capital city.

Prof. G. F. Posey of the Blackville High School faculty, spent the Easter holidays with friends in Asheville, N. C.

Mrs. J. H. White, of Charlotte, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Mellichamp.

Mesdames C. F. Rizer, I. H. Hartzog, Homer Kearse, L. O. Brabham and Frank Starr, of Olar, were visitors in Williston Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Willis spent Tuesday in Augusta.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Willis, Jr., Mrs. Q. A. Kennedy, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Q. A. Kennedy, Jr., J. E. Kennedy, Mrs. W. C. Smith, Jr., Mrs. A. M. Kennedy and Dr. J. L. Smith attended "Gold Diggers" in Augusta Tuesday.

Mr. L. K. Bolen and family of New Forrest spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Boyleston.

Miss Alifair Porter is visiting the Misses Iva Mae and Coree Boyleston.

Mr. G. C. Boyleston, of Oswego, S. C., spent last week with Mr. J. L. Boyleston.

Miss Louise Black, accompanied by house guests, Misses Richardson, Johnson, Rose, have returned to converse after spending Easter with Miss Black's parents, Capt. and Mrs. W. D. Black.

Messrs. Wesley Stokes, of Eamberg and Red Cullum of Batesburg were guests at the home of Capt. W. D. Black last Saturday.

Mr. Peter Hope, of Rock Hill, spent Sunday with Capt. and Mrs. W. D. Black.

Mr. Harvey Black and Miss Louise Black, accompanied by their house guests, Misses Richardson, Johnson and Rose and Mr. Hope, made a trip by motor to Charleston Monday to visit Magnolia Gardens.

Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Green spent last Monday in Augusta.

In honor of her house guests, Misses Louise and Anna Baker Black entertained at cards last Sat-

Local and Personal News.

Mrs. V. P. Bonner spent the weekend in Charleston.

Mrs. Virgia Morris spent a few days in Columbia last week.

Mr. E. F. Woodward went up to Columbia Friday on business.

Misses Lena Cave and Helen Calhoun spent Sunday in Columbia.

Dr. L. M. Mace went over to Augusta Monday morning on business.

J. Julien Bush, Esq., went up to Columbia Saturday on professional business.

Mrs. Carter Price has returned home after a pleasant visit to relatives in Laurens.

Mr. G. M. Neeley and Mr. Pearlstone, of Olar, were business visitors here Friday afternoon.

Mr. O. D. Moore, of Snelling, was the first subscriber to renew his subscription to The People this week.

Overcoats were again in evidence Monday morning, having been called into service by a belated cold snap.

Mrs. Solomon Blatt and little son returned home Sunday night after a ten-day visit to relatives in Sumter.

Mr. Will Greene came down from Swainsboro last week for a visit to his father, G. M. Green, Esq., of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Norman Anderson and little daughter visited Magnolia Gardens near Charleston Sunday.

Mr. LaGrone, of Johnston, field agent for the cotton marketing association, was a business visitor here Saturday.

Mr. Brown Calhoun, Mrs. L. M. Calhoun and little son spent the week-end with relatives in Columbia, returning to Barnwell Sunday evening.

Attention is called to the Remodeling Sale advertisement of Mazurky's Department Store, which appears on the eighth page of this issue.

The People has been requested to announce that the Barnwell Baptist Sunday School will meet at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, the change of hour being necessary on account of baptism that morning.

Strawberries from fields adjacent to Barnwell are being enjoyed by local consumers. It is expected that quantity shipments to the North will begin shortly.

Mr. Shellie Black, Mrs. Virgia Morris and little daughter, Mrs. J. D. Garrison and Mr. and Mrs. Horace Williams went up to Columbia Sunday to hear "Billy" Sunday.

The friends of Mr. W. H. Duncan will learn with pleasure that he is recovering from an operation for appendicitis performed at a Columbia hospital Wednesday afternoon of last week.

Thos. M. Boulware, Esq., went up to Columbia Sunday morning to appear before the Supreme Court Monday in the Bradley-Calhoun land case, which has played such a prominent part in the Circuit and Supreme Courts in the past few years.

Attention is called to the advertisement of Smith and Walker, of this city. This progressive insurance firm has succeeded in getting one of the best companies in the country to write hail insurance on cantaloupes and watermelons in addition to cotton and other staple crops. Truck growers should get in touch with them and protect themselves from loss by hail.

Mrs. Charlie Brown, Sr., Mrs. B. P. Davies, Mrs. C. F. Molair and Miss Ella Louise Molair went down to Charleston Saturday morning. They were joined the next day by Messrs. Charlie Brown, Sr., C. F. Molair and Leroy Molair, who made the trip by auto, the entire party returning home Sunday night after visiting Magnolia Gardens and other points of interest in and around Charleston.

Joe Green, of Greenwood, has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Green, in Elko.

Mrs. Mary E. Stansell, of Orlando, Fla., is visiting relatives in this section.

Messrs. G. E. Crouch, A. F. Weismuth, A. T. Still and A. E. Elko returned to Columbia last week for the Sunday services.

PRESIDENT HARDING

PASSES THROUGH CITY

Distinguished Visitor and Wife Were En Route to Washington.

Barnwell was host to a distinguished visitor Saturday night, although it is possible that the distinguished visitor did not know it, and it is certain that only a very few Barnwell people were aware of the fact. It is quite true, however, that from about 9:45 to 9:47 o'clock Saturday night—President Warren G. Harding and the "First Lady of the Land" were within the city limits of Barnwell—that is, it should have taken their special train just about that long to make the run unless the engineer was greatly exceeding the speed limit.

President and Mrs. Harding were en route on their special train of several Pullman cars from Augusta to Washington, the route being over the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad from the Georgia city, through Barnwell to the National Capital. It is understood that all freight trains have orders to clear the main line one hour before the scheduled arrival of the special, which was preceded by a pilot train traveling three minutes ahead of the special.

This is not the first time that a President of the United States has passed through this city, the late Col. Roosevelt having made a trip through here over the Southern Railway during his term of office. At that time the special train passed this point during the day time and quite a large crowd of Barnwell people were at the depot to get a glimpse of the great man.

The days gain 12 minutes in sunshine this week.

The Williston high school team defeated the local Friday afternoon, 3 to 2.

Eleventh hour advertisements made it necessary to hold over several articles until next week.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Langley and Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Lemon went up to Columbia Sunday to attend the Billy Sunday revival.

Mr. J. D. Garrison, of Barnwell route 2, gave a busy week a pleasant ending when he renewed his subscription to The People Saturday.

The friends of Mr. T. E. Cummings sympathize with him in the death of his mother, who passed away Wednesday of last week at her home in Orangeburg.

The Court of Common Pleas convened here Monday with Judge R. W. Memminger, of Charleston, presiding. Fair progress is being made in the trial of cases. The third week jury list will be published next week.

Mr. Horace J. Crouch, County Superintendent of Education, is attending the meeting of the State Teachers' Association in Columbia this week and his office will be closed today and tomorrow (Thursday and Friday).

Dr. W. M. Jones announces that the candidates for baptism received during the recent revival meeting at the Barnwell Baptist Church will be baptised Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in the Blackville Baptist Church. So far this year, 42 new members have been added to the local church.

Attention is called to the advertisement of Smith and Walker, of this city. This progressive insurance firm has succeeded in getting one of the best companies in the country to write hail insurance on cantaloupes and watermelons in addition to cotton and other staple crops. Truck growers should get in touch with them and protect themselves from loss by hail.

Mrs. Charlie Brown, Sr., Mrs. B. P. Davies, Mrs. C. F. Molair and Miss Ella Louise Molair went down to Charleston Saturday morning. They were joined the next day by Messrs. Charlie Brown, Sr., C. F. Molair and Leroy Molair, who made the trip by auto, the entire party returning home Sunday night after visiting Magnolia Gardens and other points of interest in and around Charleston.

CENTRAL UNION MEETING,

BARNWELL BAPTIST ASSN.

To Be Held With George's Creek Church April 27, 28, and 29.

The following is the program of the Central Union Meeting, Barnwell Baptist Association, which will be held with George's Creek Church April 27, 28 and 29:

Friday A. M., April 27th.
10:00 to 10:30—Song and Devotional Service, led by J. W. Sanders, Organization.

10:30 to 11:00—"How may we make these Union Meetings beneficial to the entire Association?" Led by Prof. J. H. A. Carter.

11:00 to 11:15—Song Service, led by C. W. Rentz, Jr.

11:15 to 12:00—Colportage, led by W. M. Jones, D. D.

12:00 to 1:00—Sermon by C. F. Pittman.

1:00 to 2:30—Dinner.

Friday P. M., April 27th.
2:30 to 2:45—Song Service, led by C. W. Rentz, Jr.

2:45 to close—Discussion of the Church Covenant, by O. B. Falls, D. D., followed by a round table discussion of same.

Saturday A. M., April 28th.
10:00 to 10:30—Song and Devotional Service, led by C. W. Rentz, Jr.

10:30 to 11:00—Expressions from delegates as to spiritual condition of their churches.

11:00 to 11:15—Song Service, led by C. W. Rentz, Jr.

11:15 to 12:00—The Christian Citizen's Place in the Social and Political Life of His Community, led by Hon. J. F. Carter.

12:00 to 1:00—Sermon by L. H. Miller.

1:00 to 2:30—Dinner.

Saturday P. M., April 28th.
2:30 to 2:45—Song Service, led by C. W. Rentz, Jr.

2:45 to 3:15—Evangelism, led by O. J. Frier.

3:15 to 4:15—Sermon by A. J. Foster.

Sunday A. M., April 29th.
9:45 to 10:30—Sunday School Classes.

10:30 to 11:15—Sunday School Address, by Hon. R. B. Fickling.

11:15 to 12:15—Sermon by Will O. Gordon.

There will be no dinner on the ground on Sunday, but the B. Y. P. U. Rally will be held here at 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon. A good program is being arranged. Watch for it in the papers.

Committee.

Address of Miss C. Alva Baxley at Meyer's Mill March 30.

(Continued from last week.)

You were only privates, and 'twas yours to obey,

Not yours to command, or lead the fray;

But yours to endure and follow and fight,

And to know that the cause you loved was right,

Hungry and thirsty, and footsore and lame,

You fought for your country and thought not of fame,

And so to the end you followed and fought

Interesting News from Double Pond.

Double Pond, April 9.—There was preaching at Double Pond Church Sunday morning; the services being conducted by the pastor, the Rev. J. F. Davis. A large crowd was present.

Mr. Charlie Hutto and family, of Vance, were visitors among the Double Pond people Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. J. B. Weeks and family spent Easter Sunday with relatives in Orangeburg.

Mrs. Bessie Jones and children spent Friday night with Mr. H. W. Jones, Sr., of this community.

Miss Julia Mae Warren spent Easter Sunday with Miss Ruby Lee Warren near Hilda.

The Rev. Paul A. Bolen, of Orangeburg, spent the day at the home of Mrs. H. W. Jones last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Lancaster and children, of Fairfax, were visitors here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Jones, Jr., and little son, Harvey, Mrs. Ellen Jones and Miss Ollie Lee Jones were visitors to the Eubanks home in the Govan section Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ethrage Taut and little daughter, of Denmark, were in this vicinity Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ethrage and little daughter, Julia, of Cape, visited the home of Mr. Henry Hair last week-end.

blazoned in letters of glory, the dazzling record of the superb effort made by you and your comrades in arms to hold inviolate the sacred rights of our Southern States.

Such is the immortality of our Confederate Heroes and the Heroines of the Confederacy are no less immortal. The priceless jewels for whom you and your comrades fought were the women of the South. 'Twas the women of the South with their constant love and devotion who made the Confederate Soldier what he was. 'Twas their patriotism, faithfulness and fortitude that aroused the enthusiasm of the valiant soldiery of Dixieland, and followed them through the fearful contest that was waged on Southern soil for four long years. Human language is inadequate to express the sublimity of the Girls of the Sixties. They were the women who passed from a life of luxury and ease to one of servile drudgery without a murmur for the sake of the boys who answered the call of their cherished Southland. Ah, yes, the women of the South gave their all to their country! They gave their fathers and brothers, their husbands and lovers, and sent them away to battle with a smile, knowing that in this life perhaps their eyes would behold them nevermore. Their silk dresses, they gladly converted into banners; their woollen dresses and shawls were made into shirts for the boys; their carpets, from mansion and cottage alike, became blankets; their sheets, curtains and other linens were made into lints and bandages for the wounded and dying. All day long they knit socks and gloves that the boys in the trenches might not be cold. Hands that had never before known an hour's labor, then knew daily and nightly toil. In the hospitals they were in charge, caring for the sick and wounded, untiringly. The last words of the dying boy were gently breathed to these ministering angels and the dying words with perhaps a lock of hair were sent back home by them to the loved ones. And when the flag was furled, and the terrible days of reconstruction and Negro rule were the lot of the South, these sublime women stood the test without flinching. On the topmost pinnacle of fame we place the women of the Confederacy; their memory will ever be held most sacred; and the halo of glory encircling them shall gleam the brighter with the passing of time.

Yes, we had the leaders on the field of battle, unrivalled in their loyalty to country and in generalship; we had the privates in the rank and file, unmatched in patriotism and fortitude; and we had the women back home who stood by them in a way unparalleled in the annals of history,—but alas, Johnston and Jackson, Hill and Stuart, with hundreds and thousands of the flower of our land were slain, and Grant with his hordes of foreigners and negroes came swooping down upon our peaceful Lee, charging him "See to it! Can we wonder that Lee was forced to surrender?" We blazoned in letters of glory, the dazzling record of the superb effort made by you and your comrades in arms to hold inviolate the sacred rights of our Southern States.

Such is the immortality of our Confederate Heroes and the Heroines of the Confederacy are no less immortal. The priceless jewels for whom you and your comrades fought were the women of the South. 'Twas the women of the South with their constant love and devotion who made the Confederate Soldier what he was. 'Twas their patriotism, faithfulness and fortitude that aroused the enthusiasm of the valiant soldiery of Dixieland, and followed them through the fearful contest that was waged on Southern soil for four long years. Human language is inadequate to express the sublimity of the Girls of the Sixties. They were the women who passed from a life of luxury and ease to one of servile drudgery without a murmur for the sake of the boys who answered the call of their cherished Southland. Ah, yes, the women of the South gave their all to their country! They gave their fathers and brothers, their husbands and lovers, and sent them away to battle with a smile, knowing that in this life perhaps their eyes would behold them nevermore. Their silk dresses, they gladly converted into banners; their woollen dresses and shawls were made into shirts for the boys; their carpets, from mansion and cottage alike, became blankets; their sheets, curtains and other linens were made into lints and bandages for the wounded and dying. All day long they knit socks and gloves that the boys in the trenches might not be cold. Hands that had never before known an hour's labor, then knew daily and nightly toil. In the hospitals they were in charge, caring for the sick and wounded, untiringly. The last words of the dying boy were gently breathed to these ministering angels and the dying words with perhaps a lock of hair were sent back home by them to the loved ones. And when the flag was furled, and the terrible days of reconstruction and Negro rule were the lot of the South, these sublime women stood the test without flinching. On the topmost pinnacle of fame we place the women of the Confederacy; their memory will ever be held most sacred; and the halo of glory encircling them shall gleam the brighter with the passing of time.

Yes, we had the leaders on the field of battle, unrivalled in their loyalty to country and in generalship; we had the privates in the rank and file, unmatched in patriotism and fortitude; and we had the women back home who stood by them in a way unparalleled in the annals of history,—but alas, Johnston and Jackson, Hill and Stuart, with hundreds and thousands of the flower of our land were slain, and Grant with his hordes of foreigners and negroes came swooping down upon our peaceful Lee, charging him "See to it! Can we wonder that Lee was forced to surrender?" We blazoned in letters of glory, the dazzling record of the superb effort made by you and your comrades in arms to hold inviolate the sacred rights of our Southern States.

Such is the immortality of our Confederate Heroes and the Heroines of the Confederacy are no less immortal. The priceless jewels for whom you and your comrades fought were the women of the South. 'Twas the women of the South with their constant love and devotion who made the Confederate Soldier what he was. 'Twas their patriotism, faithfulness and fortitude that aroused the enthusiasm of the valiant soldiery of Dixieland, and followed them through the fearful contest that was waged on Southern soil for four long years. Human language is inadequate to express the sublimity of the Girls of the Sixties. They were the women who passed from a life of luxury and ease to one of servile drudgery without a murmur for the sake of the boys who answered the call of their cherished Southland. Ah, yes, the women of the South gave their all to their country! They gave their fathers and brothers, their husbands and lovers, and sent them away to battle with a smile, knowing that in this life perhaps their eyes would behold them nevermore. Their silk dresses, they gladly converted into banners; their woollen dresses and shawls were made into shirts for the boys; their carpets, from mansion and cottage alike, became blankets; their sheets, curtains and other linens were made into lints and bandages for the wounded and dying. All day long they knit socks and gloves that the boys in the trenches might not be cold. Hands that had never before known an hour's labor, then knew daily and nightly toil. In the hospitals they were in charge, caring for the sick and wounded, untiringly. The last words of the dying boy were gently breathed to these ministering angels and the dying words with perhaps a lock of hair were sent back home by them to the loved ones. And when the flag was furled, and the terrible days of reconstruction and Negro rule were the lot of the South, these sublime women stood the test without flinching. On the topmost pinnacle of fame we place the women of the Confederacy; their memory will ever be held most sacred; and the halo of glory encircling them shall gleam the brighter with the passing of time.

Yes, we had the leaders on the field of battle, unrivalled in their loyalty to country and in generalship; we had the privates in the rank and file, unmatched in patriotism and fortitude; and we had the women back home who stood by them in a way unparalleled in the annals of history,—but alas, Johnston and Jackson, Hill and Stuart, with hundreds and thousands of the flower of our land were slain, and Grant with his hordes of foreigners and negroes came swooping down upon our peaceful Lee, charging him "See to it! Can we wonder that Lee was forced to surrender?" We blazoned in letters of glory, the dazzling record of the superb effort made by you and your comrades in arms to hold inviolate the sacred rights of our Southern States.

Such is the immortality of our Confederate Heroes and the Heroines of the Confederacy are no less immortal. The priceless jewels for whom you and your comrades fought were the women of the South. 'Twas the women of the South with their constant love and devotion who made the Confederate Soldier what he was. 'Twas their patriotism, faithfulness and fortitude that aroused the enthusiasm of the valiant soldiery of Dixieland, and followed them through the fearful contest that was waged on Southern soil for four long years. Human language is inadequate to express the sublimity of the Girls of the Sixties. They were the women who passed from a life of luxury and ease to one of servile drudgery without a murmur for the sake of the boys who answered the call of their cherished Southland. Ah, yes, the women of the South gave their all to their country! They gave their fathers and brothers, their husbands and lovers, and sent them away to battle with a smile, knowing that in this life perhaps their eyes would behold them nevermore. Their silk dresses, they gladly converted into banners; their woollen dresses and shawls were made into shirts for the boys; their carpets, from mansion and cottage alike, became blankets; their sheets, curtains and other linens were made into lints and bandages for the wounded and dying. All day long they knit socks and gloves that the boys in the trenches might not be cold. Hands that had never before known an hour's labor, then knew daily and nightly toil. In the hospitals they were in charge, caring for the sick and wounded, untiringly. The last words of the dying boy were gently breathed to these ministering angels and the dying words with perhaps a lock of hair were sent back home by them to the loved ones. And when the flag was furled, and the terrible days of reconstruction and Negro rule were the lot of the South, these sublime women stood the test without flinching. On the topmost pinnacle of fame we place the women of the Confederacy; their memory will ever be held most sacred; and the halo of glory encircling them shall gleam the brighter with the passing of time.

Yes, we had the leaders on the field of battle, unrivalled in their loyalty to country and in generalship; we had the privates in the rank and file, unmatched in patriotism and fortitude; and we had the women back home who stood by them in a way unparalleled in the annals of history,—but alas, Johnston and Jackson, Hill and Stuart, with hundreds and thousands of the flower of our land were slain, and Grant with his hordes of foreigners and negroes came swooping down upon our peaceful Lee, charging him "See to it! Can we wonder that Lee was forced to surrender?" We blazoned in letters of glory, the dazzling record of the superb effort made by you and your comrades in arms to hold inviolate the sacred rights of our Southern States.

Such is the immortality of our Confederate Heroes and the Heroines of the Confederacy are no less immortal. The priceless jewels for whom you and your comrades fought were the women of the South. 'Twas the women of the South with their constant love and devotion who made the Confederate Soldier what he was. 'Twas their patriotism, faithfulness and fortitude that aroused the enthusiasm of the valiant soldiery of Dixieland, and followed them through the fearful contest that was waged on Southern soil for four long years. Human language is inadequate to express the sublimity of the Girls of the Sixties. They were the women who passed from a life of luxury and ease to one of servile drudgery without a murmur for the sake of the boys who answered the call of their cherished Southland. Ah, yes, the women of the South gave their all to their country! They gave their fathers and brothers, their husbands and lovers, and sent them away to battle with a smile, knowing that in this life perhaps their eyes would behold them nevermore. Their silk dresses, they gladly converted into banners; their woollen dresses and shawls were made into shirts for the boys; their carpets, from mansion and cottage alike, became blankets; their sheets, curtains and other linens were made into lints and bandages for the wounded and dying. All day long they knit socks and gloves that the boys in the trenches might not be cold. Hands that had never before known an hour's labor, then knew daily and nightly toil. In the hospitals they were in charge, caring for the sick and wounded, untiringly. The last words of the dying boy were gently breathed to these ministering angels and the dying words with perhaps a lock of hair were sent back home by them to the loved ones. And when the flag was furled, and the terrible days of reconstruction and Negro rule were the lot of the South, these sublime women stood the test without flinching. On the topmost pinnacle of fame we place the women of the Confederacy; their memory will ever be held most sacred; and the halo of glory encircling them shall gleam the brighter with the passing of time.

Yes, we had the leaders on the field of battle, unrivalled in their loyalty to country and in generalship; we had the privates in the rank and file, unmatched in patriotism and fortitude; and we had the women back home who stood by them in a way unparalleled in the annals of history,—but alas, Johnston and Jackson, Hill and Stuart, with hundreds and thousands of the flower of our land were slain, and Grant with his hordes of foreigners and negroes came swooping down upon our peaceful Lee, charging him "See to it! Can we wonder that Lee was forced to surrender?" We blazoned in letters of glory, the dazzling record of the superb effort made by you and your comrades in arms to hold inviolate the sacred rights of our Southern States.

Such is the immortality of our Confederate Heroes and the Heroines of the Confederacy are no less immortal. The priceless jewels for whom you and your comrades fought were the women of the South. 'Twas the women of the South with their constant love and devotion who made the Confederate Soldier what he was. 'Twas their patriotism, faithfulness and fortitude that aroused the enthusiasm of the valiant soldiery of Dixieland, and followed them through the fearful contest that was waged on Southern soil for four long years. Human language is inadequate to express the sublimity of the Girls of the Sixties. They were the women who passed from a life of luxury and ease to one of servile drudgery without a murmur for the sake of the boys who answered the call of their cherished Southland. Ah, yes, the women of the South gave their all to their country! They gave their fathers and brothers, their husbands and lovers, and sent them away to battle with a smile, knowing that in this life perhaps their eyes would behold them nevermore. Their silk dresses, they gladly converted into banners; their woollen dresses and shawls were made into shirts for the boys; their carpets, from mansion and cottage alike, became blankets; their sheets, curtains and other linens were made into lints and bandages for the wounded and dying. All day long they knit socks and gloves that the boys in the trenches might not be cold. Hands that had never before known an hour's labor, then knew daily and nightly toil. In the hospitals they were in charge, caring for the sick and wounded, untiringly. The last words of the dying boy were gently breathed to these ministering angels and the dying words with perhaps a lock of hair were sent back home by them to the loved ones. And when the flag was furled, and the terrible days of reconstruction and Negro rule were the lot of the South, these sublime women stood the test without flinching. On the topmost pinnacle of fame we place the women of the Confederacy; their memory will ever be held most sacred; and the halo of glory encircling them shall gleam the brighter with the passing of time.

Yes, we had the leaders on the field of battle, unrivalled in their loyalty to country and in generalship; we had the privates in the rank and file, unmatched in patriotism and fortitude; and we had the women back home who stood by them in a way unparalleled in the annals of history,—but alas, Johnston and Jackson, Hill and Stuart, with hundreds and thousands of the flower of our land were slain, and Grant with his hordes of foreigners and negroes came swooping down upon our peaceful Lee, charging him "See to it! Can we wonder that Lee was forced to surrender?" We blazoned in letters of glory, the dazzling record of the superb effort made by you and your comrades in arms to hold inviolate the sacred rights of our Southern States.

Such is the immortality of our Confederate Heroes and the Heroines of the Confederacy are no less immortal. The priceless jewels for whom you and your comrades fought were the women of the South. 'Twas the women of the South with their constant love and devotion who made the Confederate Soldier what he was. 'Twas their patriotism, faithfulness and fortitude that aroused the enthusiasm of the valiant soldiery of Dixieland, and followed them through the fearful contest that was waged on Southern soil for four long years. Human language is inadequate to express the sublimity of the