CAN BE QUICKLY AND EASILY DONE WITH A LIGHT
SWIFT, FAST CUTTING, MOLINE VERTICAL LIFT MOWER.

BECAUSE

- 1.—One-piece frame, bearing always on line.
- 2.—Roller bearing on main axle.
- 3.—Large, slow-moving bevel gears on axle, spur gears on crank shaft—no end thrust, lost power or binding. 58 years of successful performance.
- 4.—No lost motion in starting to cut—sickle moves at once.
- 5.—Patented hinge bar keeps pitman and knife always in line—no binding, no matter what the tilt.
- 6.—Adjustable, hard steel wearing plates for knife head.
- 7.—Large, heavy guards, sections and ledger plates.
- 8.—Simple adjustments to line up cutter bar.
- 9.—Cutter bar floats on ground through carrying spring—most of its weight on wheels, adding to traction.
- 10.—Spring draft takes pull direct to doubletrees when striking an obstruction.
- 11.—Cutter bar easily raised from horizontal to vertical without driver leaving seat. Automatic gear throwout.
- 12.—Foot pedal pushes forward the natural way—all levers handy and easy to operate.

LEAVE THEIR ANCIENT HOMES

Ancestral Mansions of France Are Passing Out of the Possession of Proud Families.

The old families of France are feeling the pinch of adversity and, as in London, Devonshire house and other ancestral homes are being turned to baser uses, so in Paris the famous mansions of the country's great families are finding new owners. The residence of the princess of Wagram is now the Spanish embassy, the wonderful hotel in which Princess Jacques de Broglie once gave her "ball of precious stones" is now the United States embassy; the new Czechoslovakian representative lives in the mansion of the ancient de Ligne family, while the residence of the late duc de Pomar, which was inspired by Mary Stuart's Edinburgh home, Holyrood manor, now shelters the Bulgarian ambassador. The Galliard mansion, Place Majeshherbes, a copy of one of the wings of the castle of Blois, is to become a branch office of the Bank of France, while the ancestral home of the Bourg de Bozas, in the Rue Pierre ler de Serbie, is now to be hired for dances or entertainments. Other ancestral homes, a Figaro writer points out, have been taken by antiquaries, notably the Sagan mansion and the Morny mansion— And the list could be continued.—From the Continental Edition of the London Mail.

NOVELTY WOULD WEAR OFF

Boss Had Right Idea as to How to Do
Away With Excitement
In Office.

He had been getting to work late with such regularity that the boss' ire was aroused and so he resolved to begin arriving at the office more punctually. Anyhow, all the standard alibis, such as the alarm clock failing to ring, the crowded street cars passing him up at his corner, were about worn out in his case.

And so one morning all week he drifted with attempted nonchalance into the office among the early arrivals. The others of the office staff at once set up a clamor.

"What's the matter, couldn't you sleep last night?" some asked.

"He probably was out all night and hasn't gone home yet," others remarked.

"The clock at his house must have been an hour fast this morning," said another of the gang.

Then the target of all these remarks became indignant. Going to the boss' desk, he made his complaint. "If it is going to cause so much excitement for me to get down on time, I guess I had better be late every day," he said.

"None," said the boss, without looking up from his work. "Get down on time every morning and you won't cause any excitement."

Fan Saves Coal.

Long Island commuters, who are among those hardest hit by the coal shortage, have adopted jenny expedients toeke out their supplies and to make the most of what fuel they have.

One of them tested an idea with so much success that many other users of hot-air furnaces are following his example. He closed the damper of his intake pipe, shutting off all air from the outside, and placed a small electric fan in the cabinet duct between the outer wall of the cellar and the furnace.

The fan drives the hot air into his room, heated to a much higher temperature than it formerly was when drawn from outdoors.

He says the cost of running the fan is of no account compared with the improvement in the heating of the house.—New York Sun.

Facing the Fact.

My employer, who most strenuously objects to smoking, comes to the office every morning and invariably leaves at noon for the balance of the day. Immediately upon his departure I draw my pipe from my pocket and enjoy it to the fullest extent.

One afternoon he gave us a surprise by walking in. I hastily put my pipe in my pocket, not knowing what else to do with it. While bending over my books he kept remarking about smelling something burning.

Finally the stenographer procured a glass of water, and as she dashed it on my burning coat I will confess it was the most embarrassing moment of my life.—Exchange.

Owned Houses; Lived in Cowshed.

An almost unbelievable case of a woman with six children living in a cowshed has come to light in Leicestershire, Eng., when the husband, who has been nine weeks in a sanatorium, and is shortly returning to the cowshed, appealed to the council to get them rooms in the workhouse. They have lived in the cowshed for 18 months. "It snowed on us as we lay in bed last winter," the man said. "We cannot stand another winter there." One girl of seven had died from the cold. The curious part of the matter is that the man owned four houses, but could not get possession of them, owing to governmental leasing regulations.

Noisless Riveters.

Noisless riveters operating on a rotary vibratory system are now offered, of bench or pedestal type, which it is claimed will rivet the most intricate job in sixteens, at a speed limited only by the operator's ability to feed the work.—Scientific American.

The Inhospitable Merchant.

A citizen who was carrying an express package from a city mail order house, was accosted by a local merchant. "Why didn't you buy that bill of goods from me?" he asked. "I could have saved you the express, and besides you would have been patronizing a home store, which helps pay the taxes and builds up this locality." With characteristic frankness, the citizen replied: "Why don't you patronize your home paper and advertise? I read it and didn't know you had the goods I have here, nor do I ever see your name in the paper inviting me to come to your store."—The Lake Worth (Fla.) Leader.
