HERE AND HEREBABOUTS

The days gain 11 minutes in sunshine this week.

Mr. M. S. Hair, of the Rosemary section, was a visitor here salesday.

You are going to subscribe to The People "eventually—why not now?"

Monday was salesday, but the attendance was the smallest in several months.

Mrs. Lizzie M. Cave has returned from an extended visit to Miami, Fla., and Havana, Cuba.

Major J. Anselm Meyer and Mr. J. E. Kirkland, of Meyer's Mill, were among the visitors here Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Knepton and two children, of Charlotte, N. C., returned home Monday morning after a visit of several days to friends and relatives in Barnwell County. Mr. Knepton is a son of Mr. John F. Knepton, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Col. Hary D. Calhoun has been appointed county chairman to receive donations to further the nomination and election of the Hon. William G. McDoo as the next President of the United States. Everybody may now step forward and make their donations without further solicitation.

Mr. Bronson Announces.

Mr. R. L. Bronson, of Barnwell, announces this week as a candidate to succeed himself as Clerk of Court. He was elected to this office four years ago after a spirited campaign and has made a very efficient officer. He pledges himself to render the same service in the future should he be re-elected.

Death of Little James Collins

Blackville, April 7.—On Thursday evening, March 27, the Death Angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Collins and bore away their dear little boy, James William, aged seven months, after an illness of only two weeks. God knew best and took him to that precious home beyond, where no death nor tears shall ever come. All that loving hands and tender nursing could do was done, but of no avail. James was laid to rest in the Double Pond cemetery Friday afternoon, March 28th, the Rev. J. F. Davis conducting the funeral services.

Dear little hands, we miss thee so,
All through the day, where'er we go;
All through the night, how lonely it seems
For no little hands to wake me from my dreams.
We miss thee all through the weary hours,
We miss thee as others do sunshine and flowers;
Daytime and night time, where'er we go,
Dear little hands, we miss thee so.
Not now, but in the coming years,
It may be in a better land,
We'll read the meaning of our tears
And there, sometime, we'll understand.

Scene From D.W. GRIFFITH'S "THE WHITE ROSE"

FROM "AD" MODEL

TO GRIFFITH STAR

Such is the Stride Taken by Neil Hamilton Seen in "The White Rose."

Neil Hamilton, practically unknown to motion picture patrons, has just signed a contract with D. W. Griffith whereby he is assured work at a good salary with the noted producer's organization for a term of three and a half years. Hamilton appears in Mr. Griffith's new production, "The White Rose," a United Artists release booked for Thursday, and Friday, April 10th and 11th at the Vamp theatre. His work in this piece so pleased Mr. Griffith that the long-term contract resulted.

A typical American youth is Hamilton. He has tried his hand at all trades and has one thing he is proud of—he never allowed himself to be out of work more than two days since he left school and started out to make a living.

The young man has been an actor oftentimes; has played only "extra" parts in pictures before securing his Griffith engagement in "The White Rose," but if experience is a good teacher he has had lots of it.

Mr. Griffith, who wanders about in quest of players and ideas, happened to drop in on a stock company performance in Brooklyn one day and observed Hamilton playing a small part in support of Cecil Spooner. The appearance and work of the youth appealed to the motion picture producer.
