County Agent Gives Timely Farm Advice

When the blight and anthracnose begin to ruin the crops of melons, cucumbers and cantaloupes, it will be too late to start control. Therefore, begin spraying now for the control of the diseases. It's just good insurance. If you do not, the chances are that they will die this year.

One hundred to one hundred fifty pounds of nitrate of soda applied about two weeks after chopping cotton will pay a large profit. Get soda ready to apply at proper time, because when applied late the best results are not gotten under boll weevil conditions.

Nitrate of soda is very profitable to apply as a side dresser to corn; use fifty to one hundred pounds per acre.

Save the pigs, and grow green feed for them, meat may be still higher in the fall; furthermore it should be grown on the farm for family use.

A large number of boll weevils are coming out this Spring. Are we preparing to fight them? Now is the time to make arrangements for the fight. Calcium arsenate is being sold at a reasonable price now. Let's get our machines and dust, ready for systematic action. Two or three applications of poison just before the squares begin to be large enough to be punctured, and then wait later for the regular dusting which will begin when weevils are accumulating and showing damage to fruiting cotton. When ten per cent. of the squares are punctured, do not wait until the cotton is eaten up before poisoning is started.—H. G. Boylston, County Agent.

Dunbarton News Items

The programs of the Radcliffe Chautauqua which were presented last Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday were enjoyed very much. The local people will be pleased to learn that it will return again next year.

Miss Belle Anderson spent a few days in Williston with her sister, Mrs. Kennedy and while there took in the Chautauqua.

Mr. T. W. Dicks is in Charleston this week attending Federal Court.

Several parties of fishermen went to the low country last week and returned with a good lot of fish. Another party left Monday to spend a few days. They claim that the water is low and in good condition for fishing.

The people of this community regret to see Mr. A. L. Lowman, of Donora leave. He has been manager of the Kendall Lumber Company for the past twelve years. This mill closed down recently and Mr. Lowman and family left this week for the North. Their two daughters, Naomi and Artie will stay with Supt. H. H. King until the close of the school.

B. Y. P. U. Association Rally.

A B. Y. P. U. Rally will be held at Williston on May 17th, at 3:00 p. m. The program is as follows:

- 4:40—The Challenge of a Great Work to a Whole Hearted Service—Mrs. H. N. Heckle, of Dunbarton.

Joseph Alton Huggins Gone.

The Death Angel visited our home on April 27th and took away our darling baby, Joseph Alton Huggins, age 18 months. He had been very ill for several days but still we had hope that he would soon be better. We can't see why he had to go when we tried so hard to keep him. He bore all his suffering without a murmur. He had such a sweet disposition that all who knew him couldn't help but love him. It's one more flower added to the long list in Heaven, where some day we expect to see his smiling face again, to part no more. His remains were laid to rest in the Friendship cemetery and the funeral services were conducted by the Rev. D. W. Heckle. Many beautiful flowers covered his last resting place, for which I thank many friends. We also want to thank Dr. C. B. Ray for the kindness and sincere interest shown us while attending my precious one during his illness. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Huggins, two sisters, Ophelia and Saleta, two brothers, Byrnes and Arnold Huggins.

We hear the low wind sweeping,
Through every bush and tree,
Where dear Alton is sleeping,
Away from home and me,
Tears from our eyes are flowing,
And sorrow shades our brow,
Cold in the grave he is sleeping,
We have no Alton now.
When this life is over,
And time shall be no more,
With loved ones and Alton,
We'll live for ever more.
Mother.

Too Many Have Wrong Theory of Happiness

Happiness was not the direct object of a stoic's life. There is no rule of life contained in the precept that a man should pursue his own happiness. Many men think that they are seeking happiness when they are only seeking the gratification of some particular passion, the strongest that they have, was the contention of Marcus Aurelius. The end of a man is, as already explained, to live conformably to nature, and he will thus obtain happiness, tranquillity of mind and contentment. As a means of living conformably to nature he must study the four chief virtues, each of which has its proper sphere: wisdom, or the knowledge of good and evil; justice, or the giving to every man his due; fortitude, or the enduring of labor and pain, and temperance, which is moderation in all things. By thus living conformably to nature the stoic obtained all that he wished or expected. His reward was in his virtuous life, and he was satisfied with that. Some Greek poet long ago wrote:
For virtue only of all human things
Takes her reward not from the rewards
Of others
Virtue herself rewards the toils of virtue.

Musician Makes Plea for Melodic Glossary

Reverting to the elementary aspect of the question, I believe that if one were to collect as many as possible of the melodies which have given the greatest happiness to the greatest numbers, it would be feasible to compile from them a glossary of melodic terms such as would insure a melodic result with the same audience under almost any conditions, writes Ewin Evans in the Margin of Music. Then one might take the melodies which have given as much happiness to a more restricted circle, and add a list of terms the use of which was to be recommended only when the presence of that audience could be counted upon.

The composer who travels beyond these accepted glossaries will always be pronounced unmelodious until the new aural habits have taken root. So far as the best "advanced" music is concerned, it is melodious to those who know it intimately, and whose ear is capable of acquiring new habits, and it is unmelodious to those who either do not know it or do not want their habits disturbed.

Aborigines' Tobacco

Australian bushmen show great discrimination in their smoking and are adept at "curing" wild tobacco. The leaves of this plant resemble those of tobacco plants, but are smaller. The leaf gives off a nicotine oil, is pleasant to the taste, and burns well. After the leaf is gathered it is allowed to wilt but not dry. In the fermentation process damp sacks are thrown over the leaves in a warm and shady place for about a week. Then follows the drying in some airy place until the leaf shows a leathery texture. The midribs and stalks are now removed and the leaf is arranged in layers and sprinkled with heated treacle, rum, and, if possible, a little saltpeper. The whole is then packed in a box and pressed until the curing is complete.

Gave Up Reform Idea

St. Michael is honored by various orders of chivalry, among them one founded by Louis XI. of France, which bore the name of the Order of the Cockle. It derived its name from the cockle shells which ornamented the robes of the knight. A partly religious institution, connected with the saint was the Society of Food, founded at Cleves in 1381. Its available object was to prevent the rising generation from adopting bad habits. Knights of the order wore on their mantles an emblem of a fool, his cap and bells. The title of the society suggests that members well realized that to attempt reforming boys and girls was a fool's errand.

Other Side of the Ledger

Jones was sent by his employer, a bookmaker, to collect a betting debt from Smith, who was notorious for his slackness in settling accounts.

After listening to several excuses Jones remarked, "Well, at least let me know on what date I may expect payment."

Smith replied: "Do you take me for a prophet?"

"No," responded Jones, "Up to the present I have always regarded you as a loss."

Where Days Are Short

North cape, at the extreme north of Norway, is within the Arctic circle, and at that point the sun does not rise for two months in midwinter—that is to say, there is continuous night from November 20 to January 23. On these two days the sun barely shows its upper edge above the horizon. Sunset almost immediately follows sunrise, and these therefore are the shortest days at North cape.
