We hope our representatives in the general assembly will put a special tax of one mill on the Bamberg school disand want good roads, and we can't get them without paying for them.

A bill has been introduced in the legislature for the establishment of a Soldier's Home for Confederate Veterans. We are opposed to the idea. Instead of building such a home, the legislature should increase the pension for old soldiers.

In an editorial referring to the child labor question in the cotton mills of the State, now before the legislature, Editor Aver, of the Florence Times, makes the very remarkable statement that cotton mills make one hundred per cent profit. We presume that Mr. Ayer knows what he is talking about, and we would like for him to name a cotton mill in this State which has made one hundred per cent profit.

One of the most unfair things we have ever noticed in the newspaper world was the action of the Spartanburg Journal and Free Lance in publishing Senator Tillman's letter to Editor Appelt, of the Manning Times, and not printing one line of Mr. Appelt's reply. The letter and reply both appeared in the same issue of the Times, and common courtesy would demand that the most important points of the reply be republished along with the

While we heartily commend the scheme to erect a monument to Bamberg's honored dead who gave up their lives in defence of their liberties, we think the Association has made a mistake in not calling the ladies to their assistance. All benevolent and patirotic enterprises are more successful when the good women railroads. take up the work, and we are afraid this Association will come to grief unless our women share the labor of raising the necessary funds to erect the monument. If you want to make your work eminently successful, gentlemen, call on the ladies to assist you.

It is amusing to find our esteemed contemporary kicking itself over our shoulders. Since our good Sheriff did not insert the advertisement under consideration and had nothing to do with its insertion, it is patent that he therefore did not "see fit to insert his advertisements only in another paper." The Sheriff requested us to so state the matter, and as he had the right to do that, it was clearly "our business" to comply. Not having had anything to do with the insertion of the advertisement, the Sheriff had no communications or explanations to make to our offended brother, however often or much he may have seen him "during the past two weeks." Sheriff Hunter could have applied to the Herald for an explanation, if he had been so minded, surely, but not so wishing, he had still another "prerogative" of going to mill wherever he thought he would get the best grist. So the matter has been our business from the beginning and will continue so to the end. And just why the Herald rushes forth with its boomerang advice passes our understanding except on the ground that "it is more blessed to give than receive." The attitude of the Herald in this matter reminds us of that little tale about the fox and the grapes, which seems to fit into the creed of the Herald as nicely as it does into the lore of the fairies. We believe the more our estimable brother grinds this affair through the gray matter of his cranium, the more he will see a resemblance between the Herald and the "mole hill that laboured and brought forth a pismire."—Bamberg Times.

Granting that the statement of our officious contemporary, the Times, is true, that "the Sheriff requested us to so cinnati, St. Louis, Chicago, Cleveland, state the matter," it does not alter the case in the slightest. It is strange that there should be an explanation that the advertisements were inserted by one of the attorneys in this case, and yet immediately following such explanation the | Cleveland and Pittsburg to Jacksonville. statement that "it is his prerogative to put them in any paper he sees fit." If it is the Sheriff's "prerogative to put them in any paper he sees fit," why explain that flies to 'the land of the sky' like a that they were inserted in the Times "by cannon-ball from New York to Asheville, one of the attorneys in the case." If it was the idea to have the explanation reach the people who had read our original remarks, this paper was the one to have published it, and it was clearly a viola tion of journalistic ethics for the Times to have made the remarks it did, even if Southern Ry. If its editor had left New York in a snow bank at twentywanted to do the right thing, he should five minutes past four o'clock in the afterhave referred the Sheriff to this paper for hours, and in New Orleans in 39 hours." any explanation he desired to make. But the animus of the Times is quite plain As we remarked last week, it is an attempt on the part of that paper to make ville to New Orleans and Shreveport, La., capital out of the incident, and was done and he is President of both roads-about with malicious intent. It is perfectly 9,000 miles long.-Eli Perkins' Railroad welcome to all it can make out of it. We have no regrets over anything we have written. We characterize the action of the Times as impertinent and contemptible, and we have noticed it far more than we intended doing in the outset. We have no desire to enter into a discussion of journalistic ethics with either the advertised editor of the Times or the writer of its last article, for reasons which must be obvious to most people in this community.

A LESSON IN CHESS.

Why Willie's Papa Ended It Almost Before It Was Begun.

Paterfamilias, with a laudable desire to keep Willie at home at night, offered to teach him to play chess. The boy was delighted, and the game began. "Put the little ones, pawns, all along the front and the big ones behind, as I show you." "I think that is cowardly. The big ones ought to be in front. Ma says"-"Oh, but that is the rule. Now, seeno; put that rock in the corner." "Rook! What's a rook?"

"Well, that ain't a bird. It looks like a castle." "Call it a castle, then-and put the knight next"-"Why is that called a knight? It looks like a horse's head." "And then the bishop," went on paterfamilias, ignoring the question; "so, and then"--"Why is the bishop's head split in two, pop?"

"Oh, that is his hat-a cardinal's hat." "But I thought he was a bishop!" "A cardinal is also a bishop. Now don't talk so much, Willie. Then you put the king and queen"-

"The queen is bigger than the king, "Well, so she is. Who said she wasn't?" said paterfamilias, with a trace of impatience in his tone. "And then another bishop; so."

"Why are there two bishops, pop?" "Because the rules say so. Now, shall move first." "What, after all that trouble, are you going to move them again?" "Say, Willie, I believe my head is aching. I shall show you the rest some other time," said paterfamilias as he

How to Teach a Pet to Ride a Ball. Many readers have doubtless seen bears standing on a rolling ball and maintaining their balance perfectly while rolling it about the arena. I have a bear who delights to do the trick. He can scarcely wait for his time to come to perform. He was taught, as they are all taught, by joggling his pedestal while he tried to keep from being jostled off. Gradually the pedestal was substituted for a ball with many flat places on it, and this was followed by a perfect sphere. He has been performing two years now, and I have never known him to
