Cotton is said to have reached the high est point this week that it has in thirty years. The future market has been especially strong, July futures going as high as 12.27. We trust the spot market will be something like these figures this fall.

In the selection of a site for the new school building, the committee has no doubt done the best it could, and while from a personal standpoint, the site is not satisfactory to us, we have no criticism to offer. The building should have been more centrally located, but this possibly could not be accomplished.

Charitably disposed persons in all sections should remember in a substantial way the pitiable plight of these ago an old negro who was noted for his people.

The bonds for the erection of the new graded school building will soon be put on the market, and we trust the highest possible price will be obtained for them. The bonds should certainly sell enough above par to bring the interest down to four or 42 per cent. School bonds in other parts of the State have sold this well, and there is no earthly reason why ours should not sell fully as high or higher.

Landlord Cleveland.

Ex-President Cleveland, who is living at Princeton, owns a house in the neighborhood which he leases to a university professor, a friend of his, for a very moderate rental. The spring rains have been unusually heavy of late, and the proessor's cellar is frequently inundated, greatly to his annoyance. Having found, upon investigation, that a defect in the construction of the wall was responsible for the trouble, he called upon his eminent landlord to register a protest.

"Mr. Cleveland," he complained, "my cellar is full of water." "Well," rejoined the ex-president, "what do you expect for the rent you pay —champagne?"

A Strong Resemblance.

There was in Washington a few years recollections of all the famous statesmen of ante-bellum days. To him one day came a rather pompous member of a comparatively recent Congress, who resembled some of the famous forensic giants only in his capacity for ardent spirits. He inclined to be colloquial, so he adddressed the old negro patronizingly:

"Uncle Daniel, I understand that you used to know Webster, Clay and all the celebrated statesmen of before the war

"Oh, yes, sir; I 'members dem all," re sponded the old negro.
"Well, Daniel, I have been told that I look like Daniel Webster. Can you notice any resemblance?"

Well, yes, suh; you does mind me pow'ful of Mars Webstah in some 'specks." "Indeed! In what particular do I remind you of Daniel Webster?" inquired the now thoroughly flattered statesman. "Mos'ly in de bref, suh," responded

BEET SUGAR.

It Was Born of France's Isolation During the Napoleonic Wars.

Sugar as an article of food was not known to the ancients. Mankind has always exhibited the greatest fondness for sweets, and from the earliest times the demand was supplied by honey. The royal psalmist sets up honey and the honeycomb as the highest standard of material sweetness. A land flowing with milk and honey was the picture drawn by the most ancient poets to describe an earthly paradise. Romans of the last days of the republic, and subsequently of the time of the empire, who were at the same time the most luxurious epicures and the grossest feeders the world ever knew and spared neither money nor exertion to secure every delicacy possible for their tables, had no knowledge of sugar, but robbed the bees to obtain sweets for their famous honey cakes and other confectionery. Sugar was made in India and Arabia in the earliest times, but it was not brought into Europe until the invasions of the Mohammedans into the countries around the Mediterranean sea, in the seventeenth century. The Moors cultivated the cane in the countries of north Africa, and they introduced it into Spain. The Spaniards, about 1510, planted sugar canes in their West Indian possessions, whence it spread through Spanish America and into the French province of Louisiana. The cane was the original source of sugar, and so remained up to the time of the Napoleonic wars in Europe. The ports of France were so closely blockaded by the British fleets that it was impossible to secure sugar from any tropical countries, and Napoleon assembled the chemists in France and commissioned them to discover some means of making sugar out of material found in the country, at the same time offering a large reward. This proceed-

The Great Actor's Art and His Wife's Ruffled Feelings.

Mrs. Garrick's admiration of her husband's dramatic talents was intense, had his customary cargo aboard and was and on his great nights she would hang over her box, next the stage, in rapturous delight. The one flaw in her idol, she claimed, was a taste for low life, for which she blamed him greatly, insisting that he loved better to play Scrub to a low lived audience than one of his superior characters before an audience of taste.

On one particular occasion she was in her box in the theater when Garrick's impersonation of Richard III. was applauded to the echo. In that day a farce followed the tragedy of the evening, and as Mrs. Garrick rose to leave before it her husband came to Che Industrial Cimes the greenroom which would detain him, so most unwillingly the lady was obliged to acquiesce and remain through the closing entertainment. This proved to be a comical series of blundering adventures which had befallen a countryman who had left his farm to see London and on his return gave his neighbors an account of the wonders he had met. This characterization was received with such peals of applause that Mrs. Garrick, ever zealous of her husband's fame, began to think it rivaled those lately lavished on Richard III. Her feelings were nearly worked up to fever heat when she was attracted by Address the frantic efforts of her little spaniel and within an hour the patient was taking | dog to overleap the balcony that separated him from the stage, when she immediately became aware of the truth that the actor was Garrick and exclaimed, "Strange that a dog should know his master when the woman who loved him best in the world could not pierce his disguise."

> Wealth In Lapland. What the buffalo was to the Indian the reindeer is to the Lapps. At the present day the wealth of a Lapp is calculated in reindeer. Thus, when the people speak of a man's estate they say, "He is worth so many deer." Those who have only fifty, or sixty head are poor servants, and their deer are put with those of their "betters." To have any kind of social standing in Lapland one should possess at least 500 of these animals. A Lapp is considered well off when he is the happy owner of not less than 1,000 reindeer.

"If women would pay more attention to their health we would have more happy wives, mothers and daughters, and if they would observe results they would find that the doctors' prescriptions do not perform the many cures they are given credit for.

"In consulting with my druggist he advised McElree's Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught, and so I took it and have every reason to thank him for a new life opened up to me with restored health, and it only took three months to cure me."

Wine of Cardui is a regulator of the menstrual functions and is a most astonishing tonic for women. It cures scanty, suppressed, too frequent, irreg-ular and painful menstruation, falling of the womb, whites and flooding. It is helpful when approaching woman-hood, during pregnancy, after child-birth and in change of life. It fre-quently brings a dear baby to homes that have been barren for years. All druggists have $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.
