Communications—We are always glad to publish news letters of those pertaining to matters of public interest. We require the name and address of the writer in every case. No article which is defamatory or offensively personal can find place in our columns at any price, and we are not responsible for the opinions expressed in any communication.

Thursday, October 20, 1910.

We might as well be plain about it. Bamberg's business men must wake up. We are not doing what we should in this town, and we must get to work if we are to hold our own in the matter of progress and prosperity. Other communities are not waiting on us.

At last the newspapers of the second district are waking up on the subject of that scurrilous circular letter issued during the congressional campaign. All efforts to find out the author have apparently been dropped since the primaries, and it begins to look mighty suspicious to a great many people. We trust that the newspapers of the district will keep up the agitation until they force action in the matter.

We are always willing to boom the town along all lines. This newspaper is pledged to the growth of Bamberg, and our best personal efforts as well as our newspaper can always be counted on, but there must be co-operation and the spirit of enterprise among our business men. The town generally is not making the most of its opportunities. We are called a progressive community, and some of us seem content to rest upon that reputation. But it won't do. We must get up and hustle.

The editor of the Walterboro Press and Standard has put himself in a hole by his answer to the telegram sent him, for he says he is not willing for the people of Warren township to vote themselves into a better county even were the name of that county changed to Warren and Smoaks made the county seat. We would not misrepresent him for anything, but this answer can only mean, it appears to us, that the people of Warren township must be kept as hostages for taxes in Colleton, no matter how much they could better their condition by a change. This is hardly magnanimous. He should want the very best thing for his people, and by voting themselves into a better county and having the county called Warren and Smoaks made the county seat, he ought to be glad that the people among whom he was born and reared should thus have the opportunity to better themselves, and he should say: "Yes, while we hate to lose you, we realize it is for your best interest to go elsewhere, and we are glad that you are to better your condition." But he is selfish enough to say no and thus commit himself to the proposition that he is willing to keep the people of Smoaks and Warren township down.

YOUNG BOY BULLET'S VICTIM.

Charley Revan Accidentally Killed by James Garrison.

Spartanburg, Oct. 15.—While sitting beside his mother on the front porch of their home, at Tucapau, a cotton mill settlement near this city, Charlie Revan was shot and instantly killed by James Garrison this afternoon. The dead boy was but six years old, and Garrison was two years his senior.

Garrison's father had been using his shotgun during the day and a shell became caught in it in some unaccountable manner. The youth got hold of it, and while experimenting with the fire arm, it went off with fatal results. The coroner's verdict was that the deceased came to his death by an accidental gunshot wound.

ROLL OF TRAGEDIES.

Which Marked End of Persons Connected With Death of Lincoln.

Through the suicide of a fine old soldier who was buried here to-day another name has been added to the roll of tragedies which have marked the end of several persons connected with the assassination of Abraham Lincoln and the capture of his slayer, John Wilkes Booth. The name is that of John F. Shanley, an inmate of the Soldiers' Home in Vineland, who killed himself in a lodging house in Commerce street, this city, last week, having despaired of his effort to conquer his craving for liquor.

Not until recently was it known here Shanley was one of the men who captured Booth. He also had an interesting civil war record, as shown by newspaper clippings and other documents produced by his wife. She lives with a daughter at No. 74th street, Passaic, and with the daughter came here to-day to attend the funeral.

From April 22 to April 26, 1867, Shanley was a member of the detachment, under Lieut. T. B. Doherty, which embarked on the steamer John B. Ode in Belle Plain, crossed the Rappahannock river and traced Booth and Herold to Garrett's farm. There Herold was arrested and Booth was shot. Shanley was a member of the party which brought Booth's body back to Washington and turned Herold over to the provost marshal.

It would seem as if a strange fatality had been in store for those who witnessed the tragedy of April 14, 1865, or were present at the capture and death of the assassin. Among the names of those on the list is that of Mrs. Lincoln, who never recovered from the shock and went out of her mind before death relieved her sufferings. More recently, Major Henry Rathbone has been reported dying in an insane asylum in Germany. He was confined after he killed his wife, formerly Clara Harris. With her he was a guest in the President's box on the night of the assassination.

Sergt. Boston Corbett, who shot Booth as he came out of the blazing barn, died in a madhouse in Kansas after he had developed a mania to kill himself. Laura Keane, the actress, who helped to care for the wounded President, never regained her old spirit after the tragedy.

Still another whose name may be mentioned in connection with that of Shanley and the rest, is that of Oliver W. Cooke. He was connected with the government service during the war, and on the night of the assassination was in Ford's theatre and sat close to the stage. When Booth leaped from the box to the stage, Cooke sprang after him and was the first from the audience to do so. He afterward said his ignorance of the passageway behind the stage prevented him from following the assassin.

Four years ago Cooke, not in robust health, but still able to attend to his duties as a tax official of Sussex county, was found in the morning kneeling at his bedside lifeless.—Newark, N. J., correspondence New York Press.

Young Actor Drowns.

Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 16.—Robert Barton Pahr, an actor, was drowned to-day while surf bathing at Wrightsville Beach, near this city. He was caught in heavy undertow, and though several men made desperate efforts to save him, the young actor was swept out to sea. His body has not been recovered.

His father and mother reside in Baltimore.

Robert Barton Pahr was leading man in "The Sins of the Fathers" company which is now making a Southern tour.

Attack of Hookworm.

"O, John!" cried the farmer's wife, so Punch avers, "I'm afraid I've taken that dreadful new disease!"

"What makes you think so, dear?" he asked, alarmed, gathering the frail little woman into his arms and stroking the thinning hair, as she sobbed out the story of her fears upon his broad shoulder.

"Well, she explained, "after I have gotten up, dressed myself and the children, cooked breakfast, washed the dishes, prepared the children for school, strained the new milk and set it away to cool, churned and worked the butter, swept and dusted, done the ironing, given the baby his bath, cooked dinner and washed the dishes, sewed all afternoon, cooked supper and washed the dishes, undressed the children and put them to bed, and sat down for the evening, I am too tired to do any darning. I never used to feel so. It must be the hookworm!"

After a fashion almost everyone believes in heredity. That is a man will credit himself for all the virtues he may possess, but he will lay the blame for all his failings upon his forefathers.
