Gets Peanut Hull in Lung.

Greenville, Oct. 16.—Clarence Cooper, aged 14, of Piedmont, tonight is in a critical condition as a result of getting a piece of peanut hull lodged in one of his lungs.

Young Cooper, with a number of companions, was eating peanuts this afternoon. He and the other boys were joking and laughing. In some way a piece of peanut hull went down his windpipe and lodged in his lung.

The doctors to-night sought to find where the piece lodged. When they discover its location they will operate.

The boy's parents are prominent residents of Piedmont.

Authorities Watch Immigrants.

New York, Oct. 13.—The health authorities of every city and town in the United States where immigrants coming from infected districts of Russia and Italy take up their residence, will be asked by the federal immigration authorities to assist in preventing cholera from gaining a foothold in this country. This decision was reached at a conference to-day between the Ellis Island authorities and a representative of Dr. Walter Wyman, surgeon general of the marine hospital service.

Every immigrant and steamer passenger coming from the countries where cholera is epidemic who is allowed to enter will be followed to his point of destination by a report from Ellis Island to the local board of health. The boards will be expected to keep a watch on all such arrivals and isolate them at the first indication of suspicious disease.

The plan is regarded as an extreme of precautionary measures and it will necessitate the sending out of an average of 10,000 notices every week to health officers throughout the country.

Donkey Causes Fatal Wreck.

Roswell, N. M., Oct. 16.—One man was killed and another badly injured when a donkey derailed the engine of Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe train No. 113 at Greenfield, 20 miles south of here last night. Fireman J. H. Suter was scalded to death and Engineer A. A. Richley burned.

When the train struck the donkey the animal went under the pilot. No passengers were injured.

BIG THINGS OF THE WORLD.

Those That are Highest, Deepest, Longest or Costliest.

The tallest monument is the Washington obelisk, 555 feet high; but the largest monolith is in Karnak, Egypt, being 109 feet high. The highest chimney, measuring 474 feet, is in Glasgow.

The largest aqueduct in use is the Croton, of New York, which is thirty-eight miles long, but the longest ever built is in Perue, 260 miles.

The deepest coal mine is near Lambert, Belgium, 3,500 feet deep; the biggest dock is at Cardiff, Wales, and the strongest electric light is at the Sydney lighthouse, Australia; while the largest lighthouse is at Cape Henry Virginia, being 165 feet high.

The greatest bank, says Harper's Weekly, is the Bank of England, in London; the oldest college is University college, Oxford, founded in 1050; the largest library, the National in Paris, containing nearly 3,000,000 volumes.

The largest theatre is the Paris Opera house, covering three acres; the largest bronze statue, that of Peter the Great, in St. Petersburg, weighing 1,100 tons. The biggest stone statue is in Japan, 44 feet high; the largest college is in Cairo with over 10,000 students and 310 teachers. Damascus has the honor of being the oldest city.

The most costly book in the world is a Hebrew Bible, owned by the German government, which a few years ago, refused the Pope's offer of $125,000 for it. The most costly medicine a few years ago was metallic gallium, sold for $150,000 a pound; but radium is now the priceless gem of the mineral world, selling for more than that price per ounce.

Though orchids frequently bring prices that make the poor man stagger, the highest price for a single flower was given for a tulip in Amsterdam by an enthusiast, who paid $250,000 for it. The Rothschilds smoke the most costly cigars that are made—the Henry Clay Sobranos, which cost $1.50 each. They are wrapped in gold leaf and packed in little inlaid cedar wood cabinets.

Hog Raising in the South.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—The people of the South should keep at home the thousands of dollars which they are annually sending into the west for meat and the farmers of the South can bring about this much desired condition and can at the same time realize handsome profits for themselves if they will engage in the raising of hogs more extensively, declares Professor Dan T. Gray, of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, who has charge of the animal industry at Auburn and is also an expert in animal husbandry in the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture, in "Farmers' Bulletin 411, entitled "Feeding Hogs in the South," just issued by the department.

"Hogs can be raised as cheaply in the South as anywhere else and in many cases more cheaply but hogs cannot be raised profitably on corn alone," says Prof. Gray, and in the bulletin he gives in full detail the proper methods of feeding hogs in order to realize a profit. Figures are given showing the results obtained from the use of various feeds in experiments conducted at different points in the South. The bulletin should prove of much value to any Southern farmer and its circulation will doubtless result in a greatly increased activity in hog raising. President W. W. Finley, of the Southern Railway Company, who is greatly interested in having the South raise its food supplies at home will be glad to have a copy of this bulletin sent to any farmer in the South who will address a request to him at 1300 Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, D. C., or request may be made directly to the department of agriculture.

Before going into the details of the proper feeding of hogs, Prof. Gray makes some very interesting observations, showing how the raising of more hogs in the South will prove a benefit to the whole section. He gives figures showing the consumption of home raised and Western animals in Birmingham, Ala., in 1907, proving that in that year alone more than a million dollars went out of Birmingham into distant States all of which should have gone into the pockets of Southern farmers. Other reasons why Southern farmers should raise more hogs are stated as follows:

"Pork can be made as cheaply, and perhaps more cheaply, in the South than in any other section of the country. And there are many reasons why our Southern farmers should introduce this line of animal production into the farming system. One of these reasons is mentioned above, the money spent for meat would be kept at home. Another is the influence it would probably have on cotton. It will never be possible for the South to control the price of cotton until the Southern farmer places himself in such a position that he can hold the crop after it is pro-
