ALLEN CAUGHT IN GAFFNEY?

Man Said to Resemble Virginia Outlaw Held by Police.

Gaffney, April 18.—A man, giving his name as J. J. Maloney, was arrested on the outskirts of Gaffney this evening about 6 o'clock, suspected of being Sidna Allen, the fugitive Virginia outlaw. He was coming to the city and stopped to talk with a mill employee. After discussing several questions with him, he asked if there had been any talk of the Allens in this neighborhood. The man the stranger had accosted had already detected a likeness to Allen, and he at once turned in a call for the police. The stranger made no resistance when arrested.

When seen in a cell in the city jail to-night, the man claimed that he had been living in Atlanta, but that New York was originally his home. He claimed that he had been a traveling salesman and was down on his luck. In appearance he tallied with the description sent out of Allen. His hands and feet are small, and he does not show evidence of work. His clothes are torn and he seems to have had little to eat.

He denied any knowledge of the Allens, but his actions aroused suspicion. Notwithstanding the fact that he claimed to be headed north, it was near the outskirts of the northern part of the city that the arrest was made, and thus he seemed to be going south. Very little information of a satisfactory nature has been obtained by the police.

When questioned as to his address in Atlanta, Maloney gave a number of different places. He claimed to have been associated with some sort of business in Atlanta, with an attorney named H. J. Boswell, whose home, he said, was in Greensboro, N. C. Maloney next stated that he himself had never been in Greensboro. He said that his idea for getting to Charlotte was that there might possibly be some mail there for him.

Before Electricity Came.

Few, indeed, are left to recall those distant days preceding the application of steam engines to railroad and steamboat work. But there are plenty who well remember when electricity was considered but a natural phenomena and a plaything of nature during terrestrial storms.

It seems almost incredible, yet it is true, that but thirty years ago electricity was unheard of outside of scientific laboratories.

- We had no telephones.
- No electric railways.
- No electric fans.
- No electric elevators.
- No vacuum cleaners.
- No electric lights.
- No trolley cars.
- No electric ranges.
- Few electric motors.

We had to walk the city streets or ride a horse car. The suburban resident sections of to-day were undreamed of and everyone tried to live as close to the business section as possible. Hacks did a thriving business.

We could not call any one up on the telephone. The mails and messenger boys did the work. The telegraph was in use but the lines were few.

All housework was done by hand, without the handy electric stoves, the motor driven appliances now in use.

In hot days we sweltered for the electric fan was undreamed of.

We read by flickering candles or oil lamps and there were no arc lamps to illuminate the streets after dark.

There were no motor cars because the gas engine would be impossible without electricity for ignition purposes.

There were no electric door bells, no buzzer communication from office to office, no electric flatirons, no electric chafing dishes, toasters, grills, etc.

Factories ran by steam or water power. Cities were covered with a pall of black smook. Railroads could not run through tunnels without the gravest dangers. Electric ventilating systems for large buildings were unheard of. Electric signal systems for railroads were not used and the trains ran a good deal on luck.

Such were the good old days we hear so much about. The folk who lived and worked then did not miss these things inasmuch as they had never enjoyed them, but one of the greatest hardships which might be inflicted upon us to-day would be to deprive us of electricity. Without it we would be put to the greatest inconvenience.

Mob Lynchs Prisoner.

Forsyth, Montana, April 18.—Henry Hoffner, alleged slayer of Mrs. William Morrill, of Joppa, near the town of Rosebud, Mont., was taken from the county jail early to-day by a mob of sixty masked and armed men and, despite the efforts of the sheriff and his deputies, was hanged to a tree.

THE LAST OF A RACE.

Crazy Snake, the Aged Creek Indian Chief and Fighter.

Because it compels a comparison between the conditions which he witnessed in his closing years and those which he saw in his early prime, the death of Crazy Snake, the aged Creek chief, will be of interest to the country, says the St. Louis Globe Democrat. If he himself knew his exact age he never told it to anybody, but he was active as a fighter long before the opening of the Civil war. His own tribe belongs to the five civilized clans who were located in the Indian territory, now the State of Oklahoma, three-fourths of a century ago, but civilization, or the thin veneer of decorum superimposed over savagery which masqueraded under that name in the old Indian Territory, had no attractions for Crazy Snake. Rather was he, so far as circumstances permitted, a spiritual descendant of Weatherford, Osceola and the rest of the fighters produced by the great Mukogee confederation of Georgia, Florida and Alabama of a century ago and later.

When, in 1908, Crazy Snake raised his little rebellion against the acceptance by his tribe of the conditions drawn up by the white man for land allotment and government under white man's law, he found that the situation had changed since the days when he could go on the war-path with a powerful band behind him whenever the whim seized him. His rising attracted comparatively few of his tribe. For a few weeks he kept the field, with some of the Oklahoma militia on his track, and then his band gradually dispersed. His tribe had lost its old "fighting edge," because there was no longer excuse or incentive to fight. Railroads were running through their region. The small band of implacables to which he belonged were only a little oasis of savagery in a vast sea of civilization. His tribe had lost the nomadic habit. The frontier had vanished, the buffalo was quite extinct, and great commonwealths confronted them whichever way they turned.

In Crazy Snake's own State of Oklahoma, which was making its advent just as the old Creek reaction-ary was starting on his last war foray, are 1,700,000 people. Among them there are 117,000 Indians, all except 15,000 or 16,000 of which belonged to the five clans—Cherokees, Choctaws, Chickasaws, Creeks and Seminoles—which he tried to array against the new order. Indians are engaged in all the pursuits of the white man. Among them are merchants, farmers, bankers, miners, stock raisers and lawyers. Three of them—Senator Curtis, of Kansas, and Senator Owen and Representative Carter, of Oklahoma—are in Congress, and assist in making laws for white men and red. The day of King Philip, Pontiac, Tecumseh and Black Hawk had passed when Crazy Snake started on his last raid, and even Red Cloud and Sitting Bull had been knocked obsolete.

He Got His Half.

"Can I get any work around here?" said Rastus Johnson, safe in the knowledge that there wasn't any.

"Yes, I want you to collect a bill for me from Mr. Sawyer, the lawyer. He has owed me this bill of $20 for twenty years. If you can get the money I will give you half."

Old Rastus went to the business place of Mr. Sawyer and found him among a group of clients.

"Mr. Sawyer," said he, "Mr. Jones done tole me you owed him $20 for about a hundred years."

"You idiot," said Sawyer, coming over to him, "don't you see you are ruining my business? Here's a $10 bill, now go on."

Rastus went back to the merchant and was asked if he got anything.

"Well, suh, I got mah half, suh, but you better watch when you go after yo's, he's right hot over it."—Mack's National Monthly.

Bleese Paroles Young.

Columbia, April 18.—Gov. Bleese to-day paroled until October 1, Jas. Stobo Young, who was convicted in January, 1910, of breach of trust in connection with the Seminole Securities Company. The parole was issued on the recommendation of the pardon board and bears the condition that Young report to the superintendent of the penitentiary on October 1, or else be arrested and re-committed. No parole was recommended for Garlington.

Young was formerly secretary of the Seminole Securities Company, and was convicted along with John Y. Garlington, formerly president of the same company. Young was sentenced to one year and Garlington to three years. They both began their sentences on December 4, 1911. Young leaves for his home in Laurens this afternoon.

Bleese also commuted the sentence of Lewis Bartley, who was convicted in Bamberg in March, 1912, of larceny and given three months to pay fine of $50 or serve three months.

Bridges Time and Space

IT WAS A QUESTION of life or death and the victim's life hung by a slender thread. A difficult operation was necessary. To be successful the operation must be performed at once. The services of a specialist were required, but he was in a distant city.

The specialist was reached over the Long Distance Bell Telephone, the case described and the operation arranged for.

The sufferer's life was saved through the ability of the Universal Bell Telephone Service to bridge time and space.

By the way, have you a Bell Telephone?

BROUGHT TO LIGHT.

Bamberg People Receive the Full Benefit.

There have been many cases like the following in Bamberg. Everyone relates the experience of people we know. These plain, straightforward statements will do much toward relieving the suffering of thousands. Such testimony will be read with interest by many people.

Mrs. J. Q. Adams, Main St., Bamberg, S. C., says: "Nothing has ever given me as much relief as Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured several years ago at the Peoples Drug Co. Kidney trouble made me miserable for several years and there was a steady, dull ache across the small of my back. The kidney secretions bothered me and sometimes I felt dizzy and unsteady on my feet. The contents of two or three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills restored me to good health." (Statement given March 12, 1908.)

A Second Endorsement.

Mrs. Adams was interviewed on January 26, 1911 and she said: "I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally since I endorsed them and they have always helped me. I still value this remedy highly and you may continue to use my former endorsement of it."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
