Shrewd Old Man.

The Brooklyn Eagle tells of this conversation:
"You're an old married man. What do you do when your wife begins to scold?"
"Encourage her. I talk back—discreetly, of course. I say tantalizing things. I make foolish excuses. I stammer and get husky."
"But doesn't that make her a good deal madder?"
"Of course it does. That's the intention. I want her to get so mad that she won't have any voice left to ask me for money."
"Ge, I wonder if I'll ever get as hardened as that!"

A Real Cure-All.

It is the cheapest of all remedies. It is not patented or controlled by the trusts. It is guaranteed not to disturb the digestion. It is not unpleasant to the taste. It may be procured everywhere. It should be inhaled freely 17 times a minute. It is manufactured solely by God Almighty. The name of this wonderful remedy is "Fresh Air."—College of Agricultural Bulletin.

TILLMAN ON JUDGESHIP.

(Continued from page 1, column 6) always been very warm friends. Mr. Knight is an exceptionally capable man and deserves that or any other good place that any one can give him. He has been with me nine years and I will hardly know how to get along without him, but his hold on his present office depends on my life and as my health is poor I will not stand in the way of his getting this life job if it is offered him. I have joined with the balance of the delegation in endorsing Mr. C. J. Lyon, of Abbeville, for the marshal's place. That is all there is to this "cock and bull story" about it being a "family affair."

Candid Acknowledgment.

Candor compels me to acknowledge this: That but for my impaired health and the esteem in which I am held by my fellow senators, I could not have done what I did; and instead of South Carolinians caviling and carping they ought to be glad they have a man in Washington who can win the friendship and respect of his colleagues of both political parties and wield an influence, notwithstanding his health is gone. Candor also compels me to acknowledge that I do not believe there is any other man in the senate who could have done this thing under the circumstances; and I am bold enough to say I am proud of the job, for it gives us a good Democratic judge in the Western district who will be held for life, and it gives us the prospect of three new public buildings in this State—one at Greenwood, one at Rock Hill and one at Aiken.

Byrnes is tickled to death every time he talks about it and wonders how the lynx-eyed Republicans in the house allowed it to go through in that shape. B. R. TILLMAN.

LETTER AFLOAT 101 DAYS.

Canadian Officers' Messages Finally Reaches Person Addressed.

A bottle containing a letter written by Lieut. G. D. Oulster, Eleventh battalion, Fourth brigade, Canadian expeditionary force, which was thrown overboard in midocean from the Royal Edward on October 12 last, was picked up at Anglesey Valley, North Wales, on January 21. It was sent by the finder to a friend of the lieutenant, to whom it was addressed, at Drayton. It was 101 days drifting in the ocean.—New York Sun.

Lawlessness at Sea.

By stopping all commerce with Germany, Great Britain and France are as lawless as Germany, although not so blood-guilty. They will respect the lives of passengers and crews and they will not destroy ships. Their object is to prohibit all trade to and from Germany and in carrying out that policy the commercial rights of neutrals will be ignored or violated.

Like the German submarine patrol of British coasts, this amounts to a blockade without assuming the responsibilities of a blockade. It is not effective and it is not continuous. If the allies, on pleas of necessity and reprisal, may hold up neutral commerce in waters adjacent to their territory, they need be under no restraint in any one of the seven seas.

Such an assumption bears too close resemblance to the British orders in council and the decrees issued by the French emperor during the Napoleonic wars in 1806-7 to be popular in this country. It was the outrageous enforcement of the notorious paper blockades of that period which was one of the causes of the war of 1812 between the United States and Great Britain.

The British orders in council prohibited trade between the United States and any port in Europe from which British were excluded. Napoleon's final decree declared, all ships good prize that should touch at or set sail for or from Great Britain or any of its colonies.

In this high-handed manner American ships were practically outlawed even in our own waters. Referring to the situation then existing, Jefferson said that "England had become a den of pirates and France a den of thieves."

At that time it was the Napoleonic policy to embroil Great Britain with the United States, for the British navy was as troublesome to him then as at present to Kaiser Wilhelm. Are the rulers of Great Britain quite sure Napoleon's Germanic successor as the military autocrat of Europe has no such object in view now?

With international law practically wiped out by the belligerents, the only landmarks visible are those that existed before nations attempted very seriously to make laws for themselves. All of these, especially such as remain from Napoleonic times, indicate clearly that Europe is making the same mistakes today that it did a century ago.

If Great Britain had blockaded Germany at the beginning of the war, it probably would have forced the great sea fight which it professes so much desire. If not, it would have given Germany no opportunity and no excuse for declaring a war zone. It would have bottled up its adversary as we bottled up the Confederacy in 1861-65. The explanation of this was not done because of fear of submarines is neither credible nor creditable. Great Britain has had the enemy's submarines at its very doors ever since.

When all warring nations prefer to operate in defiance of law, placing the blame upon each other, it is highly important that neutrals should make their own attitude so plain that it cannot be misunderstood, and, having done so, to maintain it with all the firmness of which they are capable.—New York World.

Attacked and Took Prisoner.

A certain captain having been ordered on foreign service, gave a farewell dinner to his regiment.

Addressing the men before they commenced to eat, he said: "Now, lads, treat this dinner as you would an enemy."

After dinner he discovered Private Robinson stowing bottles of champagne away in a bag. Highly incensed, the captain asked him what he meant by such conduct.

"Why, sir," said Robinson, "I'm only obeying orders."

"Obeying orders?" roared the captain. "What do you mean?" "Yes, sir," was the answer. "You told us to treat the dinner like an enemy, and you know, sir, when you meet an enemy, those we don't kill we take prisoners."—Exchange.
