Guns of Gold.

The Gaekwar of Baroda, an Indian prince, has a battery of artillery consisting of gold and silver guns. There are four guns, two gold and two of silver. The gold guns were made in 1874 by an artisan of Lakha, who worked on them for five years. They weigh 400 pounds each, and except for the steel lining are of solid gold. They are mounted on gun-carriages of carved wood, overlaid with silver. In 1876, when the Gaekwar went to Bombay to meet the prince of Wales, he took the gold guns with him to salute the prince, and that was the only occasion on which they have been allowed to leave the State of Baroda.—Tid Bits.

Fined if He Did, Fined if He Didn't.
"Mexico is a land of extremes," remarked William Bridger, formerly of Monterey, at the New Willard. "Some months ago when one of the numerous 'armies' of soldiers invaded Monterey, they proceeded to raise money in every possible way. The commanding officer hit upon a unique plan of levying tribute. He made a round of the more pretentious stores, and of the first merchant he visited demanded to know 'Where is your cat?' The merchant had to admit he didn't have any, whereupon the new tax collector declared that every place of business must have a cat to keep down the rats, which were spreading disease. He fined the merchant $100 which was paid.
"A little farther on he found another store minus a cat, and for the same reason extracted another tribute. The first merchant, who had reluctantly given up his money, thought he might help others out, so he sent word to a friend in another part of the town to get hold of a cat, for the absence of one would cost money. When the latter merchant was approached and asked to show his cat it was promptly displayed, whereupon the officer with remarkable resourcefulness, insisted that cats were the worst carriers of disease known among the animal kingdom and he was promptly fined $100 for keeping a cat."—Washington Post.
"Mrs. Nurich, I understand your husband is one of the stewards of the racing association."
"Look here, young man, my husband gave up cookin' years ago, and I'd rather you wouldn't refer to it."

Pitied the Bishop.

"Larry," said Mr. Greene to a good-natured Irishman who was working on a new building, "didn't you tell me that you had a brother who was a bishop?"
"Yis sor," replied Larry.
"And you are a hodcarrier!" said Mr. Greene. "Well, the good things of this life are not equally divided, are they Larry?"
"No, sir," rejoined the Irishman, shouldering his hod and starting up the ladder. "Indade they is not, sor. Poor felly! He couldn't do this to save his loife, sir!"—Everybody's Magazine.

Advice for the Fourth.

Fourth o' July comin, long,
Peace a-smilin' nigh;
Sing yer patriotic song—
Don't blow yerself sky-high!
For if you did, it's plain and fair
You'd have no chance to break in there.
—Billville Philosopher.
Alarming Symtoms.
First She—My husband says that owing to the war, capital is timid.
Second She—Yes, when mine has any he grows pale every time I kiss him.
