NEVER GET AHEAD.

One Reason Why Some Men Never Succeed.
One man says to another in an article in the February American Magazine:
"Bert," he said, speaking very slowly and impressively, "I've always made it a rule in business to accept resignations, and I'm going to accept yours. But I'm going to tell you something, and you can pass it on to Anderson with my compliments. You two young fellows are in the most dangerous position of any two young men I know. You have ability, too darned much ability. If you had only a little, so that you had to sit tight and plug every minute, you'd be fairly safe. You'd move along up in business slowly, but surely, as the fellows ahead of you died off. But you two are brilliant. It's true you can get your fifty a week whenever you want it. And that's your danger. You will go rolling around collecting fifty a week here and fifty a week there, and you'll never stay long enough in one place to get seventy-five a week, or a hundred a week, or two hundred a week. Oh, I know your type! You may not give me credit for much sense now, but when I was your age I was exactly in your fix. And I want to tell you that if I hadn't taken myself by the neck and forced myself to stay put, I'd still be collecting fifty a week as a reporter on some newspaper instead of pulling down thirty-one thousand, as I did last year. With just your brilliancy, and no stability, you're worth just about fifty a week. But it takes more than brilliancy to be worth a really big job."
