A Fatal Practical Joke.

Joseph Koken, who came to his death by electrocution in the shop where he worked at Carrollville, near Milwaukee, was the victim of a practical joke.

Koken was an electrician. He had started to cut a piece of pipe with a saw, and left his work for a moment to get a drink of water. During his absence a fellow employe placed the ends of two live wires on the saw, and when Koken took hold of it to pick it up the current entered his body. He was a good-natured man, as was indicated by his last words. "The joke is on me, boys—turn it off!" But before the current could be turned off the victim's body became rigid. When the fatal flow was stopped he fell a corpse.

Koken was a married man, with two children depending upon him for support. The tragedy which cut short his useful life is typical of many that have resulted from the senseless custom known as practical joking. Homicide is not funny. Joking at the risk of pain or harm to another is a perversion of humor arising from stupidity or hardness of heart. It should not be tolerated among individuals claiming to be intelligent.—Evening Wisconsin.

Did It Melt Her?

"I cannot entertain the idea of marrying you," she replied coldly. "My heart is with our brave boys at the front."

"It's a good thing for the boys," he replied, drawing himself up. "They need all the ice they can get on the Mexican border."—Life.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES AT CARLISLE SCHOOL

Most Successful Session in History of Growing Institution Comes to Close.

With the awarding of diplomas on Monday evening, the twenty-fifth annual commencement exercises came to an end, closing the best and most successful year, in many respects, the school has ever enjoyed. The enrollment for the year just ended exceeded that of any year since the school was founded in 1892.

The exercises this year were especially good. They were attended by friends and patrons of the school from all over the State, and deep interest was manifested in the annual exercises. A class of ten young people were given diplomas. The following composed the graduating class this year: Benjamin Clyde Bishop, William Nicoll Clarkson, Jr., Grace Fox, not fail to live up to his reputation Sunday morning. Taking his text from the 10th chapter of the book of Galatians, the main theme of the first part of his discourse was the worth of a man. He showed that man cannot be judged by any worldly standard, but must be judged by the standard as set by Jesus Christ. "Service" was the keynote of the latter part of his sermon. He followed more closely the lines of his text. "As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men." He showed that we are debtors not only to the past generations, but more especially to the generations to come, illustrating in a masterly way by the old coal merchant founder of Charter house school made. A programme of music was rendered by Prof. and Mrs. Klein and some of the music pupils and the literary address was delivered by Dr. Henry Nelson Snyder, president of Wofford college. The various numbers on the music programme were rendered most excellently.

The address of Dr. Snyder was, as is usual when Dr. Snyder speaks, given in a vein that was both humorous and serious. Dr. Snyder is a speaker of rare ability and personal magnetism, and always has a message for his hearers. Many striking truths were noted in his address, which was listened to with rapt attention.

Dr. Snyder took as the theme of his address the "Soul of a School." He most instructively traced that a school did not consist of the buildings, or campus, trustees, faculty or graduating class, but of the great soul of the institution. The real forces of an educational institution

Announcements.

Two important announcements by the Board of Control was made by Dr. Watson. Carlisle School has planned to add another year to her course of study. This will mean much to those who cannot go on to college and will give a good working education to those who complete the course.

The other announcement of special interest was that Carlisle has arranged to give military training to the boys who come next year. Prof. C. S. Major, of Clemson college, will have charge of the work and is enthusiastic over the possibilities of it. This does not mean that the school will be under military discipline but that the students will be given drill and otherwise made familiar with military tactics.

The marshals of the evening were: Americo Cabral, chief; Sondly Lever, McGee Bamberg, Leroy Altee, Ernest Goodwin, Fletcher Kirkland, and Leroy Brady.

He Who Knocks the Local Paper.

A Kansas editor has noticed that when a man finds fault with his local paper the chances are ten to one that he hasn't an advertisement in it; five to one he never gave it a job of work; three to one that he is delinquent in his subscription; even money that he never did anything to assist the publisher to make it a good paper, and forty to one that he is most eager to see it when it comes out.

A project for the irrigation of the Adana plain (the ancient Cilicia), to cost more than $17,000,000, and to require from eight to ten years for completion, has been undertaken by the Turkish government. It proposed to regulate the course of the three rivers which water the plain—the Sighun, Shihan and Berdan Shah—and thus open up to agriculture a tract of nearly half million acres much of which is at present arid.

Gymnasium Exhibition.

The commencement began Friday evening with a gymnastic exhibition at the Rier gymnasium. This part of the commencement was hugely enjoyed by everybody present. The Rizer gymnasium. This part students was quite evident, and some of the stunts performed were really astounding—that is out of a circus. Such a performance could not be given unless the physical body had been given especially good training.

Celebration of Literary Societies.

Saturday evening the celebration of the literary societies was held in the auditorium. A programme, consisting of music and recitations and a debate, was rendered. The three societies, the Beach, Sheridan, and Kilgo, participated in the exercises of the evening, acquitting themselves with much credit.

The following was the question for debate: "Resolved, that the United States can best help win the war by using her navy, and by supplying money and foodstuff to the allies." This question was debated by the Kilgo and Beach societies, while the Sheridan society, composed of girls, furnished the recitations. The affirmative was upheld by Ernest Goodwin and Claude Parnell, of the Kilgo society, while the negative was splendid athletic training given the argued by Faber W. Kearse and Americo Cabral, representing the Beach society. The judges were: Hon. B. D. Carter, Prof. E. P. Allen, and J. A. Wyman, Esq. The judges decided that the affirmative side won the debate.

Bishop Denny's Sermon.

Sunday morning at Trinity Methodist church the baccalaureate sermon was delivered to a large and attentive congregation by Bishop Collins Denny, of Richmond, Va. Bishop Denny is recognized as perhaps the most scholarly bishop of the Southern Methodist Church, and he did near London. He recited the records of many of its graduates, ending with John Wesley, the founder of the Methodist Church.

His peroration was unusually striking. He compared one class of men to the Dea sea, which takes in all the waters of its surrounding valleys, but without any outlet of its own. Thus are the lives that these men live. They are below the level of even common things, grasping everything, but giving nothing in return. The other class he compared to the river Nile, having its source in Lake Victoria, above the clouds, and as it passes through the desert lands of Egypt, it gives the very essence of its self to the upbuilding of the arlands around it. So do this class class of men render the best service to all who come in contact with them.

Sunday night the annual address before the Young People's Christian association was delivered by the pastor of Trinity church, Rev. E. Watson, D. D. Bishop Denny was to have preached before the association, but on account of another engagement, he had to leave the city Sunday afternoon. Dr. Watson, in his own peculiarly pleasing way, stressed a few of the points of the morning's sermon, especially as they have to do with young people. For two such sermons in one day, the people of Bamberg ought to feel particularly thankful.

The Class Exercises.

The class exercises were held Monday afternoon, presided over by Arthur Whetsell, president of the class, with Miss Grace Fox, secretary. The following was the programme of the afternoon: Salutatory address, Raymond Wilson; class will, Clyde Bishop; class poem, Austin Moore; class prophecy, Miss Grace Fox; valedictory, Waldo Lever. These papers showed careful preparation, and were delivered with ease and much expression.

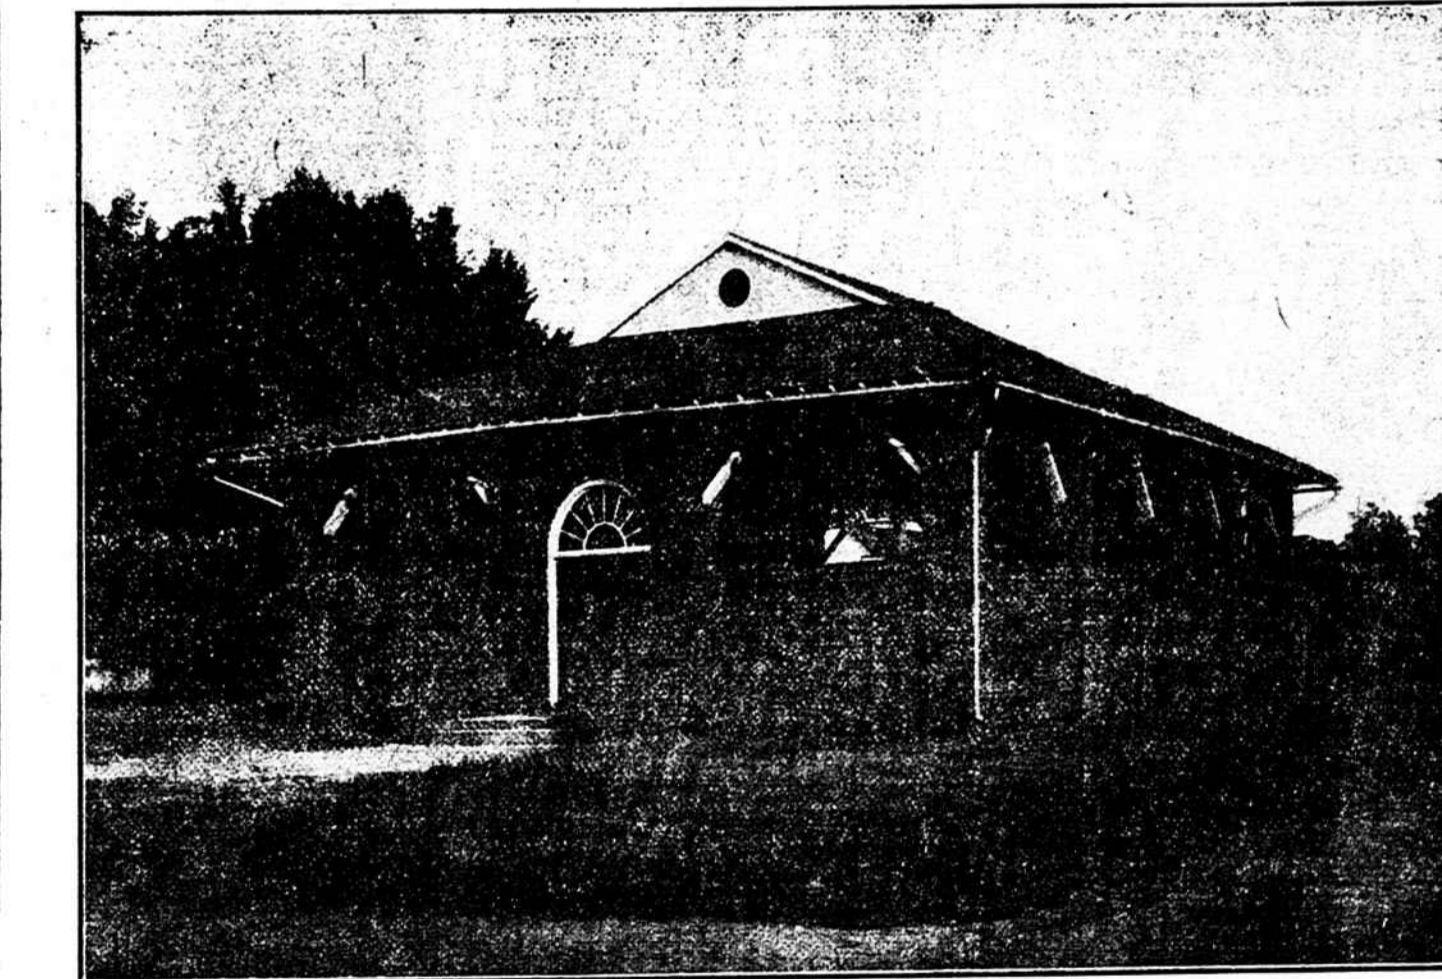

Literary Address.

Monday evening the literary address was delivered, diplomas and medals awarded, and announcements are the spirit of progress, the spirit of research or knowledge and the spirit of brotherhood and service. The speaker emphasized that the great spiritual forces are after all the forces which control the universe. He closed with the plea that America do her part in winning the world to democracy and freedom.
