Thursday, October 10, 1918.

Our subscribers are reminded that The Herald is now cash in advance. This is government instructions, and The Herald does not intend to violate any government regulations. On October 5th about one hundred subscribers were taken off our lists because they had failed to renew their subscriptions when their time had expired. We disliked very much to do this. Of course, nearly all of them have either already come back into the fold or will do so, but it will save a lot of trouble and confusion if our subscribers will attend to this small matter of renewing their subscriptions before the time expires. We cannot agree to supply back issues, as we have signed an agreement with the government to cut our consumption of news paper to the lowest minimum, and we print just enough copies to supply those on our mailing lists. If you don't want to miss any copies of the paper, be sure to renew in advance before your subscription expires.

There will be no peace from the negotiations started by Germany at this time. In his reply, President Wilson puts at rest all fears that any premature peace will be concluded. Of course it is the earnest wish of the American people to see peace concluded, yet it is to be remembered that ten millions lives have been given to crush Germany, and it would be sheer folly now to make peace simply in order to end the war. One might ask oneself what would Germany do if her armies were marching victoriously to Paris or London or Washington? Does anyone think for a moment that she would halt her armies and declare an armistice or even talk peace? Now is the supreme moment for the crushing blow. Germany deserves no quarter, and it is our sincere hope that none will be given. The end is in sight; let us buy bonds and go to it. And the end will be reached when allied armies march into Germany. The best answer America can possibly give to Germany's so-called peace offer is a six-billion dollar liberty loan, oversubscribed.

We are rather surprised to note the attitude assumed by some of our good ladies because Senators Benet and Smith deemed it their privilege to vote against woman suffrage. A number of articles have appeared in some of the daily newspapers reflecting on the sincerity and honesty of purpose of these gentlemen. We feel that it is a senator's privilege to vote against woman suffrage or any other matter without having to be vilified for so doing. The position taken by Senator Benet is that he does not consider that the people of South Carolina desire woman suffrage, although we have an idea that personally he favors it. That position is certainly above reproach, and we have no doubt that in taking this position, Senator Benet has the approval of a majority of the people of this State, including the good ladies. We do not know the grounds of Senator Smith's vote against the suffrage amendment, but presume he had good reasons for the stand he took. That there are arguments in favor of woman suffrage no one doubts for a moment, but at the same time we do not think that suffrage ought to be bridled on to a State without its consent, and, without going into the pros or cons of the matter, we feel certain that the vast majority of South Carolinians know of many reasons why woman suffrage would be undesirable in this State. We shall have to hear the voice of more women raised in its favor before we disapprove of the vote of our senators.

Bennettsville Lad Wins in Air.

With American Army in France, Oct. 11.—The first American aviation pursuit squadron completed its one hundredth successive victory Thursday night with a "Boche strafing raid," which netted six machines. Of these Lieut. Edward Rickenbacker, of Columbus, Ohio, got two, bringing his official total to fifteen, with three more, which probably be confirmed soon.

Lieut. Hamilton Coolidge, of Boston, Mass., and William Palmer, of Bennettsville, S. C., downed one between them; Lieut. James A. Meissner, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Lieut. Ralph A. O'Neil, of Nogales, Ariz., and Lieut. Waters, one among themselves; Lieut. Reed M. Chambers, of Memphis, Tenn., and Lieut. Wilbert W. White, of New York, one each.

How It Was Better.

Lovemail had been playing for high stakes and had lost. After spending all he had on Miss Brass she had refused him.
"Turned you down, did you say?" asked a friend. "Well, old chap, it's better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all."
"Yes, better indeed," replied the rejected one. "Better for the post-office authorities, the florist, the messenger-boy, the confectioner, a dozen waiters, the jeweler, and half the theatres in town."—Stray Stories.

Caught Off Guard.

"Did the postman leave my letters, Mary?"
"Nothing but a postcard, ma'am."
"Who is it from, Mary?"
"And do you think I read it, ma'am?" asked the girl with an injured air.
"Perhaps not. But anyone who sends me a message on a postcard is either stupid or impertinent."
"You'll excuse me, ma'am, returned the girl lightly; "but that's a nice way to be talkin' about your own mother."—Boston Transcript.

A dispatch from France tells us that a German mess sergeant, anticipating the imminent arrival of American troops, cut up a large cheese and made sandwiches of it, which he served with beer to the doughboys when they came over the top. This was a German who may have served an apprenticeship at Coney Island.
