SOUTH'S NEW DAY.

Hog and Hominy Doctrine of Henry Grady Recalled.

Has it come? Is it approaching? We hope so. Thirty-one years ago Henry Grady of Atlanta delivered a speech in New England which made a more lasting impression possibly on the country than any one speech ever delivered by any human being. It marked the dawn of what was then termed the new South, and it contained truths and statements which are invincible, and which it would do well to recall at this time.

There was never a greater truth contained in the same words than the following brief extract from that great speech, for a great speech it was. We wish every farmer who reads this, and every other one who could hear of it, would make it a part of his creed, and if he would, then in fact would the new day dawn, and until it is made the creed of the Southern farmer there will never dawn a new day for the South. We wish every one would clip this from the paper and put it up somewhere where he could see it every morning before he went out into the field.

Listen:

"When every farmer in the South shall eat bread from his own field and meat from his own pastures and disturbed by no creditor, and enslaved by no debt, shall sit amid his teeming gardens and orchards and vineyards and dairies and barnyards, pitching his crop in his own wisdom and growing them in independence, making cotton his clean surplus, and selling it in his own time, and in his chosen market, and not at a master's bidding—getting his pay in cash and not in a receipted mortgage that discharges his debt, but does not restore his freedom—then shall be breaking the fullness of our day."

Cotton reduction and cotton holding is a good thing and the right thing to do just now, but these things are only temporary and cannot be enduring. The only way to bring a new day for the South and commercial and financial freedom for the Southern farmer is to adopt and to follow the creed contained in Henry Grady's great speech.—Newberry Herald and News.

FARMED FOR SOLDIER HUSBAND

An Iowa Woman Made Profit of $500 on Hogs.

Mrs. Ruth Smith, of Davenport, Ia., did not fold her hands and pine away when her husband went to France last July. She was much too busy for that.

There were chores to do, two cows to milk, the pigs to tend to and the corn had to be cultivated again. By that time the oats were beginning to turn. By and by when it got ripe she would cut it. She had no fear of a binder. It was a big, awkward piece of machinery, but she knew how to control it.

It was a little lonesome at times, especially in the dewy mornings when the silence terrified one. It is queer, she says, how silent the world is at a little after 4 o'clock in the morning.

Mrs. Smith keeps a sort of ledger. And last year after she had balanced all her accounts she found she was $500 to the good. "I made it on hogs," she said in a business-like tone.

Her husband, Sergt. Calvin Smith, is with the Eighty-eighth division in France, and when he comes home he will find the corn all laid by.

WILL EXHUME BRITISH DEAD.

Bodies in Isolated Graves to Be Transferred to Military Cemeteries.

(Edinburgh Scotchman.)

Scattered over the battle fields of France and Flanders are thousands of lonely graves in which British soldiers were hastily buried. But they are not to lie alone forever.

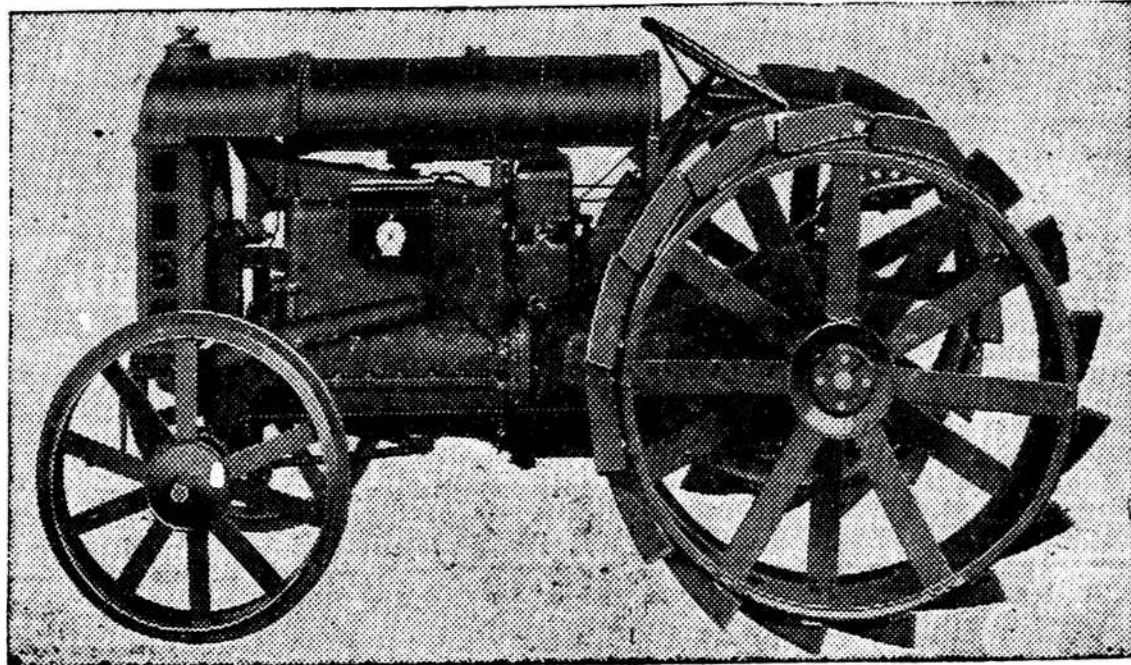

Under an agreement between Great Britain and France isolated bodies are being exhumed with a view to reinterment in military cemeteries. The French government naturally wishes this policy carried out in order that no more land than is necessary shall be occupied as graveyards, and also that none of the graves shall be lost.

We have pulled our grain binder successfully. Get one and save your mules. A 14-year-old darkey boy last week broke 15 acres of land planted in rye and packed hard by cattle. The discs and subsoiler behind went 10 inches in stiffest clay and 15 in sand.

Walter Northrup, Imperial Garage, will demonstrate any time.

J. K. Mayfield will take you on the farm and plough for you a land 16 to 20 inches wide at a round and 10 to 15 inches deep and drop the yellow subsoil back in the bottom of the furrow.
