LIFE AT ITS BEST

Advantages of Dwelling in Country Town.

City Man Knows Nothing of the Sweet Contentment That Is the Lot of the Resident of Rural Places.

Observing the inconveniences and sometimes discomforts of city life, some of the brethren of the country press are taking a shot at the city dweller and emphasizing the fortunate position of the citizen who contrives to spend his life in some quiet town of the country, says a writer in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. The country gentleman never cares whether the street cars run or not; he is not concerned with the electric light plant or the water supply, having his reliable kerosene lamps and a good well in working order for emergency use. He is not afraid that 400,000 of his townsmen will run out of coal at once and freeze to death, because the old grove on the east forty is capable of furnishing his fuel should his supply of five cords of sawed and split wood that he has in his woodshed become depleted. He lives away from the mass, and his small wants are not pushed and crowded by the small wants of hundreds of thousands of other people. He feels that if there is anything that he really needs that he does not possess, he can go out and procure it any morning without much trouble, and he is generally quite right about it.

Charles M. Horton, of Hadley, N. Y., cites the cases of the city and the country citizens in a recent issue of Collier's Weekly. Writes Mr. Horton:

The man who started the back-tothe-farm movement had something! The man who shouted "Back to nature," said something; The advice was directed at city dwellers, of course, because folks who were living out of the cities already did not need it.

He takes up the case of the $25 a week married man, who hardly exists in the city, and shows what he is accomplishing in the country town:

A clerk in the store here gets $25 a week, owns his own home and a boat on the lake and a jitney, goes hunting in the north woods in the fall, fishes evenings and days off without number, picks berries, kills his own beef in the fall, raises his own pigs, has a piano and a library and a silver service and linen, modern pictures on the walls, good rugs on the floors, mission furniture around the rooms, twin beds, a dog, two cats, a bear rug, low ceilings, plain wall paper, electric fixtures everything, in short, that the city dweller has, or wants, but can't have—and he is a clerk in a grocery store at $25 a week. And he had these things when he was getting $18-six months ago, before he got a raisehad more, in fact, because he owned a trotting horse that could go some; this animal has since died. The writer himself was beguiled from the country to the city under the cmmon belief that the city is the only place for the man of ambition who would go far. He had brains, in a measure; he had money, in a measure, and then he tossed the whole thing up in the air and made back for the country, where he now exists in contentment. And when one sees city folk bedeviled and harassed and bepinched by every human want, living from hand to mouth, and worrying lest some necessity of existence be cut off by some whim of man or vagary of fate, one is inclined to give the argument of the country citizen large value and credence.

Carnegie Doubly Interested.

One more statue was unveiled, recently, of the immortal Robbie Burns, this time in Boston. Andrew Carnegie spent much of his holiday time in Scotland, and divided it between dedicating free libraries, opening church organs, and unveiling Burns statues. Meeting Mr. Carnegie at a St. Andrews dinner in New York, a braw Scot but recently come over said, "Mr. Carnegie, I would like to shake you by the hand; you unveiled a statue of Robbie Burns last summer in my home town." "Aye," said Mr. Carnegie, after a pause, "that would be Montrose, the only place I ever had anything to do with a Burns statue that I didna pay for. On that account I'm doubly pleased to meet you."-Christian Science Monitor.

Modest Linguist

Prof. Robertson of Louisville has published a little book of his own on the Greek of the New Testament, a book weighing more than eight pounds and containing 1,540 closely printed pages. In the preface Prof. Robertson apologizes for his small linguistic attainments. He is not, he says, a specialist in the Semitic tongues, though he knows Hebrew and Aramaic and can use Coptic and Sanscrit. He knows Latin, Greek, French, German and Anglo-Saxon, but beyond those languages only Assyrian, Dutch, Gothic and Italian are to be added to his "modest linguistic equipment."

Cement's Adhesion Iron.

The adhesion of cement 'a iron that rives strength to reinforce concrete is found by Vasilesco Karpen to be unlike the gluing effect of mortar on bricks. The cement does not stick to the iron firmly, if at all, but the adhesion is given by a gripping of enclosed iron as the concrete contracts in setting.

We are pleased to announce that we have obtained for this city the exclusive sale of the Nationally known and the Nationally favored

Wirthmor and Welworth Waists

After a very careful investigation we have arranged to distribute these two nationally-known and nationally favored lines of Waists in this city. Before deciding on this step we learned the Wirthmor and Welworth Waists were being handled by many of the best stores in America; that they had attained through their unvarying excellence a nation-wide popularity; that because of the unique Wirthmor Plan under which they are made and sold they always represented the highest possible � standard of value in popular price Blouses, and further because of the very unusual method of making and selling Waists we would be able to show the new and wanted styles first, in many instances long in advance of their appearance in the market � generally.

Under the Wirthmor Plan you will be enabled hereafter to have the same new Styles in Waists at the same moderate prices and at the same time that these Styles first make their appearance in the recognized Style Centers of the Country.

These are America's only known priced Waists, and they are sold at the same low price the Nation over.

$2.00 (for the Wirthmor)

$3.00 (for the Welworth)

The first shipment of these very desirable Waists has just arrived and will go on sale tomorrow. We urge that you come in and see them; for we know that acquaintanceship will mean substantial savings for you whenever you're in need of a popular price Blouse.

Now is the Time

We will allow money placed THIS WEEK in our Savings Department to draw interest the same as if it had been deposited April 1, 1920.

This is the beginning of the second quarter, and it is a good time to change that deposit so that it will draw FIVE PER CENT. IN-TEREST.

Did you ever take time to figure how much more interest you would get by changing from four to five per cent?

$2,000 for five years at 4 per cent. compound interest amounts to

$2,000 for five years at 5 per cent. compound interest amounts to

Five Per Cent. Amounts to $320.00 More.

DOES THIS MEAN ANYTHING TO YOU?
