DINNER CAUSE OF TRIP.

Visits Retail Stores

Former Governor Heyward Unable to Find South Carolina
Goods on Sale.

Former Governor D. C. Heyward went marketing the other day. Putting his arm through the handle of a regular market basket, capacity about one-half bushel, he called at half a dozen grocery stores along Main street in Columbia, asking for and buying canned goods only. At the end of about an hour he had spent more than $4, his basket was filled—and he had not been able to purchase a single thing he had set out to get for his family's and his own sustenance.

It happened this way: Mr. Heyward had promised to make a little talk that evening at the "Do it for South Carolina" dinner. He had selected the topic of "Let's Do It." He fell to thinking about this subject. "Do what?" he said to himself, and in the same thought answered the question with "develop the resources of South Carolina." Now one of the most obvious resources of South Carolina is its food-producing possibilities.

He Goes Marketing. "If South Carolina was feeding itself," thought the former governor, "the retail provision stores right here in Columbia and in every other city and town in the state would be selling South Carolina products and the prices would be lower. I wonder if they are doing that. I think I will go and see." Hence the market basket and the trip along Main street.

"Please give me a package of hominy—South Carolina hominy," said Mr. Heyward to the clerk in the first store he called at.

"Sorry, sir, but we haven't any South Carolina hominy," said the youth behind the counter. "Here is same from St. Joseph, Mo., which we sell large quantities of."

Mr. Heyward took a package of the Missouri hominy.

"Now give me a can of syrup—South Carolina syrup—to put on that hominy when it is cooked; I like it that way," said the former governor.

Again the clerk was very sorry; the only syrup he had came from Philadelphia.

In the next store the distinguished customer gave a larger order. He wanted a can of sweet peas, a can of black-eye peas and a can of string beans—he insisted on having South Carolina peas and beans if they were in stock. The clerk looked over everything he had on the shelves and then handed Mr. Heyward sweet peas from Columbus, Wis., black-eye peas from Baltimore and string beans from Bel Air, Md. Not a pea or a bean grown in South Carolina was to be had.

Having some doubt about the usefulness of his errand, the former governor walked to another store.

No South Carolina Tomatoes.

"Can you sell me a can of tomatoes, a can of asparagus and a can of sweet corn that were produced in South Carolina?" he asked. The dealer could not. But he did sell tomatoes from Ohio, asparagus from Del Monte, Cal., and sweet corn from Livingston county, N. Y.

Still determined to eat something that was grown in South Carolina, Mr. Heyward in the next store asked for pickles and catsup. After some parley, he added to his collection a bottle of pickles from Louisville, Ky., and catsup from Rochester, N. Y.

His ventures in the domain of relishes having failed, Mr. Heyward thought he would make one more trial in the canned goods line. So in the fourth store he inquired for pumpkin, okra and condensed milk. The two cans of the former which he was handed came from New York city and the milk from Spokane, Wash.

The former governor was losing patience—the basket was getting heavy to carry in the hot sun, and he was all out of luck anyway, but he had started out to get something to eat, that had the flavor of the South Carolina soil about it and so he made one more call and asked in desperation for some South Carolina potatoes—sweet or Irish—in any form whatever except as they come from the ground.

Same With Potato Chips. "We have some very fine potato chips," said the young man behind the counter, "we sell thousands of packages of them."

"Where'd they come from?" demanded the now slightly exasperated shopper.

"From Chicago," said the clerk. "That will be all," muttered Mr. Heyward.

His basket was full. It contained eleven cans and two bottles and one package of foodstuffs; enough to keep his family well for two or three days. He had visited six different stores doing business on the main street in the capital city of South Carolina, asking for and earnestly desiring to buy something—anything—that was produced in South Carolina. His collection consisted of stuff that had been gathered from the four corners of the United States—but not one thing that had a South Carolina label on it.

"I guess I know what to talk about tonight at that 'Do It For South Carolina' dinner," said the former governor as he toted his mess of canned stuff home.

A FAMILY MEDICINE

In Her Mother's Home, Says This
Georgia Lady, Regarding Black-Draught, Relief From Headache, Malaria, Chills, Etc.

Ringgold, Ga.—Mrs. Chas. Gaston, of this place, writes: "I am a user of Thedford's Black-Draught; in fact, it was one of our family medicines. Also in my mother's home, when I was a child. When any of us children complained of headache, usually caused by constipation, she gave us a dose of Black-Draught, which would rectify the trouble. Often in the Spring, we would have malaria and chills, or troubles of this kind, we would take Black-Draught pretty regular until the liver acted well, and we would soon be up and around again. We would not be without it, for it certainly has saved us lots of doctor bills. Just a dose of Black-Draught when not so well saves a lot of days in bed."

Thedford's Black-Draught has been in use for many years in the treatment of stomach, liver and bowel troubles, and the popularity which it now enjoys is proof of its merit. If your liver is not doing its duty, you will suffer from such disagreeable symptoms as headache, biliousness, constipation, indigestion, etc., and unless something is done, serious trouble may result.

Thedford's Black-Draught has been found a valuable remedy for these troubles. It is purely vegetable, and acts in a prompt and natural way, regulating the liver to its proper functions and cleansing the bowels of impurities. Try it. Insist on Thedford's the original and genuine. E 79

"Didn't Rest Well"

Prominent Georgia Lady Suffered from Faint Spells and Sleeplessness—Relieved by Ziron.

PEOPLE who get to feeling weak every now and then, and who do not seem to get the proper refreshment from rest, sleep and recreation, need a tonic to help their blood revitalize and build up their system. For this, you will find Ziron Iron Tonic very valuable, as the testimony of thousands already has proved. Mrs. J. W. Dysart, lady of a prominent Georgia family residing near Cartersville, says:

"I didn't rest well some nights. I would be just as tired when I got up in the morning as when I went to bed. I would get weak, and have kind of faint spells—at times hardly able to do my housework. I heard of Ziron, and felt maybe a tonic would help me. I thought I would at least strengthen me. I believe Ziron has done me good. I feel better. I am glad to recommend it as a good tonic. Try Ziron. Our money-back guarantee protects you. At your druggist."

"I didn't feel like myself."

Try One Brunswick Then Decide

The best way to know for yourself the superiority of the Brunswick Tire is to buy one and compare it.

That is, if the very name of Brunswick isn't sufficient proof to you, as it is to most men, that here is an extraordinary tire.

Thousands of men who have known the name of Brunswick for years, realize that a Brunswick Tire has to be the best—for a mediocre product could never bear this historic name.

Long before the Overland Trail became famous, the House of Brunswick was established. It was one of the chief users of rubber for fifty years before automobiles came into use.

No concern with such a history could afford to offer anything but the best. For reputations are built slowly, but can be quickly destroyed.

This is a practical guarantee that Brunswick Tires offer more than the usual, yet at no added cost.
