Some ten years ago the name of Carlisle Fitting school was officially changed to Carlisle school. We entertain the hope that in perhaps another ten years our esteemed friend, The News and Courier, will indicate the best boys' school in the south by its correct name.

The extension service of Clemson college has just issued a new farm bulletin, No. 48, entitled "Farming Under Boll Weevil Conditions." The bulletin contains full information concerning the cotton pest, and a full discussion of the approved methods of fighting the weevil. Every farmer ought to have this bulletin, which may be secured by application to the extension service.

The tribute paid Woodrow Wilson on armistice day was most fitting. It was described in the news dispatches as "the greatest tribute ever paid a living man in this country." It is related that when the ex-president's carriage passed in the funeral parade, solemn as the occasion was, the enthusiasm of the people could not be held in check, and loud and long applause greeted the wounded veteran of the world war who just as effectually sacrificed his health for America and the world as any veteran of the Hindenburg line.

The daily papers all carried the Cooper candidacy for the supreme court propaganda last week, in which the usual "urgency" candidates receive "from throughout the state" was related. The last paragraph in the propaganda publicity contains the "nigger in the woodpile," and is as follows: "In the event of the governor's election, Lieut. Governor Wilson G. Harvey, of Charleston, would succeed him as governor of the state." In other words, Governor Cooper is to hand over the office of governor of South Carolina to Mr. Harvey in exchange for the votes of Mr. Harvey's friends in the supreme court contest. It's all figured out nicely.

It is gratifying to learn that the federal government is to continue its support of good roads construction. We note that $25,000,000 will be available during the coming year, of which South Carolina can get $1,061,000. This means that it will be possible for practically all road projects in the state to receive the usual federal aid to the extent of 50 per cent. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are being expended annually in South Carolina building highways with the aid of the federal government. There has been more progress in road building in this state, perhaps, during the past five years than during the preceding 25 years. Let the good work continue.

The Calhoun Times has an interesting discussion of the disarmament conference in Washington, and suggests that much cannot be expected from the Japanese, French and Italian delegations, because the personnel of these delegations is composed of soldiers mostly. This paper is of the opinion that the war lords are more interested in war than in peace, and this is perhaps true, even though these gentlemen may be the finest of patriots. It appears that in the interest of peace all countries should have sent to this conference not warriors, but representative and diplomatic civilians. In fact, as the Times says, if the conference is successful in disarming the nations of the world even for only a few years it will mean putting the war lords out of jobs. However, it is the sincere hope of perhaps 95 per cent. of the world's population that the conference will be successful in attaining the ends for which it was called.

Death of Dr. J. W. Patrick.

Dr. John Willington Patrick died in Charleston Friday afternoon, aged 82 years. The funeral took place in the Episcopal church in Charleston, and interment in Orangeburg Saturday morning. Dr. Patrick, who was a chemist and pharmacist, had resided in Charleston for about 30 years. He was born at Midway, Bamberg county, July 21, 1839, and was one of the last three survivors of Walter's Battery, Washington Artillery, which originally numbered 147 men. He entered the conflict at the outbreak of the war between the states, and was mustered out of service May 2, 1865. He is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Treadwell, of Orangeburg, and several children. Dr. Patrick was prominently connected with the Masonic fraternity.

Hope to Sign 400,000 Bales.

Columbia, Nov. 11.—Meeting in Columbia, Tuesday the organization committee of the South Carolina Cotton Growers Cooperative association determined to press forward with all possible vigor the campaign for signatures to the cotton cooperative marketing contracts. A report was made on the progress made and the committee expressed itself as well satisfied.

A strong determined effort will be made to sign up 400,000 bales necessary to make the contract effective by the first of next January, it was announced after the meeting. The committee has until May 1, next to complete the campaign but it was decided to make every effort to wind up by the first of the new year. This will give the association plenty of time, it was explained, to make its arrangements for handling the 1922 crop.

C. O. Moser, secretary of the American Cotton Growers' exchange, the overhead organization of the various statewide cooperative associations. He congratulated the South Carolina organization on the results accomplished and assisted in mapping out the plans for the intensive campaign this month and in December.

Mr. Moser told the committee of the wonderful success the Texas and Oklahoma organization are meeting with in selling their cotton this year, emphasizing the fact that the members of those associations are receiving more for their cotton than are the non-members of those associations, their profits on each bale being from $5 to $15 net higher than the non-members.

D. B. Dargan told of the enthusiasm in Darlington county for the movement. The receipt of contracts representing 2,000 additional bales received from that county yesterday sent its total to over 5,000 and it now leads all other counties in the state in the number of bales signed.

J. C. Talbert reported that the movement was gaining ground rapidly in McCormick county and he felt sure that his county would sign up its quota easily.

—Miss Ethel Black, who teaches in Asheville, N. C., is spending this week at home.
